LINDBERGH OFF TO BAKER LAKE; RADIO IS MUTE

Plane's Signal Weakness Keeps Friends From Being Anxious.

ROUTE FAR TO NORTH CHANGED SLIGHTLY

Churchill, Manitoba, Aug. 3 (A.P.). Bound for Baker Lake, 375 miles distant, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh streaked away today into a northland illuminated by Aurora Borealis and filled with static, which drowned the radio signals of their speedy plane.

The atmospheric conditions after the Lindberghs left here at 1:45 p. m. (E. S. T.), were so unfavorable that neither the radio of their plane nor the station at Baker Lake could communicate with the outside world.

The many futile efforts of the Ottawa, Churchill and intermediate official and amateur stations to contact the Lindbergs led Government authorities at Ottawa to express the belief the static would not permit any word to filter through the ether until morning.

Were Due by 7 p. m.

Even the most leisurely flying along the rocky shore of the west side of Hudson Bay would have brought the flying couple to Baker Lake by 7 p. m. (E. S. T.).

They had spent the morning thoroughly overhauling their plane, replenishing its fuel supply and checking engine and radio. To make sure that all was well, and that they would not be cut off from the world again as they were for hours before and after their arrival at Moose Factory, the fliers circled over this town, trying their wireless, before heading into the north. Hundreds of cheering workers lined the shores as the Lindbergh plane dipped in a final salute.

At Baker Lake they will find a small settlement of a few whites, including only one woman, and native Eskimos. From there they will turn westward, heading toward Aklavik, 1,115 miles away.

Original Route Changed.

Statements made by Col. Lindbergh before he left here today were erroneously interpreted as meaning he would pursue the original northerly course he had plotted from Baker Lake to Aklavik. Later it was learned that his plans now are to traverse a longer route to the south over a more densely populated territory. This will take him from Baker Lake 650 miles due west to Hunter Bay, thence 275 miles to Fort Norman, and from there 350 miles to Aklavik.

"I would rather be in a plane than anywhere else," Mrs. Lindbergh told the eleven women inhabitants of Churchill, who gathered beside their ship. "I feel safe with Charles at the controls."

As they proceed northward the nights are getting shorter and the northern lights more brilliant. They had only five hours of darkness here last night, and that period was made

Footprints Found Near Girl's Body

May Prove Clue to Killer of Texas Choir Singer; Sweetheart Held.

Aransas Pass, Tex., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Through footprints o' a man's bare feet on a Texas beach, officers hoped to identify the slayer of Miss Dorothy Doris Symon, 18, attractive church choir singer, whose body clad in a bathing suit was found Saturday night in a shallow grave strewn with sea weed. There were marks on the throat.

Newton Yarberry, her sweetheart, was arrested and charged with murder.

Deputy Sheriff J. D. Barber said presence of water in the girl's lungs led officers to believe she was strangled while held under water. Footprints were found leading to and from the improvised grave, indicating that the slayer carried the body.

Deputy Sheriff Barber said officers learned that Miss Symon was last seen alive with Yarberry. They said she left her home to attend choir practice Thursday night and told a friend she had a date to go swimming.

Economic Conference Will Be Held in Utah

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 3 (A.P.). Gov. George H. Dorn, of Utah, today issued a call for the Western Economic Conference in this city August 17. He said its purpose is to work out relief for drought sufferers, farmers unable to finance seeding, and the live stock industry. Governors of Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado, Nevada, Utah, North Dakota, South Dakota and Nebraska were asked to attend or send representatives.

Others invited included the Secretary of the Interior Department, the Secretary of Agriculture, the Red Cross, Federal Intermediate Credit Banks, the railroads, and the live stock associations.

WORLD PLANE READY TO RESUME VOYAGE

Damaged Wing Delays Pair at Khabarovsk; Far Behind Post, Gatty Mark.

Tokyo (Tuesday), Aug. 4 (A.P.).—A Rengo News Agency dispatch from Khabarovsk, Siberia, today said repairs were completed on the plane of the American fliers, Hugh Herndon, jr., and Clyde Pangborn, and that they apparently planned to continue their round-the-world dash.

The dispatch said the repairs were completed at 8:40 a. m., Tokyo time, today (6:40 p. m., E.S.T., Monday), but that the fliers were delaying their flight across the North Pacific on account of unfavorable weather. High winds whipped across Japan and the region to the north. The fliers did not set any definite time for their takeoff to Nome.

Later dispatches said the fliers denied New York reports that they had considered abandoning their round-the-world flight attempt. They said they would continue as soon as weather reports indicated conditions were more favorable.

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Hugh Herndon, jr., today received a cable from her husband announcing that he and Clyde Pangborn had abandoned their attempt to beat the Post-Gatty round-the-world flight record because a wing on their plane had been damaged.

The message was sent from Khabarovsk, eastern Siberia, where the fliers had landed at 1:50 a. m. (E.S.T.) today. At that time they were 22 hours and 58 minutes behind the time of Post and Gatty.

Tonight there were reports in aviation circles here that the pair would ship their plane to Tokyo and, when repairs had been completed, attempt to fly nonstop from there to Seattle.

Mrs. Herndon, who came to New York yesterday from her father's home in Loudonville, N. Y., and Mrs. Dixon Boardman, mother of Herndon, both expressed unhappiness over the abandonment of the round-the-world flight, but said they were proud of the fliers' grit and glad they had shown good judgment in giving up the race "as soon as they saw the last chance had gone."

It was explained by a representative of the fliers that a message received in Wenatchee, Wash., by Mrs. Opal Pangborn from her son today, in which he said, "Motor and ship fine; will bring home record or bust," had been relayed to her from New York nearly two days ago.

Tokyo, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, American Globe-encircling aviators, arrived at Khabarovsk, Eastern Siberia, at 3:50 p. m. (1:50 a. m. E.S.T.), after flying 950 air miles from Chita, Siberia, through rain and fog that hid the Khingan Mountains, over which they soared.

Muscle Shoals Board To Receive Proposals

Florence, Ala., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—S. F. Hobbs, of Selma, Ala., newly appointed chairman of the Muscle Shoals Commission, in a statement at the conclusion of its meeting here tonight, announced the commission will receive proposals for leasing and operating the Muscle Shoals project "in the interest of fertilizer production and agriculture" at Washington September 1.

Edward A. O'Neal announced shortly afterward that the American Farm Bureau Federation, of which he is president, at that time would submit a bid for leasing the entire project. He declined to amplify this statement prior to submission of the bid.

BROWN ASSAILS ABSURD JOBS IN VIRGIN ISLANDS

Efficiency Bureau Chief Declares Positions Unauthorized.

CHAUTAUQUA FRIENDS HELPED BY GOVERNOR

Entertainment Director, at $4,800 Annually, Stages Operas for Natives.

The action of Paul M. Pearson, American Governor of the Virgin Islands, in hiring a "director of public entertainment" and paying him $4,800 a year to regale the poverty-stricken natives with Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, served to lift the curtain on a long-smoldering row yesterday.

Herbert D. Brown, chief of the Bureau of Efficiency, openly turned on Gov. Pearson and accused him of flaunting Congress and exceeding the authority that Congress had given him.

It was Mr. Brown who recommended that the Virgin Islands, St. Thomas and St. Croix, be transferred from the Navy Department to the Interior Department, and it was he who urged President Hoover to name Dr. Pearson as the first civilian governor.

Break of Long Standing.

That Mr. Brown had broken with the man he sponsored has been generally known for some time. About a month and a half ago, it was reported—and not denied—that Mr. Brown had asked President Hoover to remove Gov. Pearson.

While Mr. Brown declined to discuss the matter yesterday, it was learned in other quarters that he had filed a 75-page complaint against Gov. Pearson with President Hoover. President Hoover turned the charges over to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur. This far Secretary Wilbur has taken no action.

Until yesterday, Mr. Brown had remained silent about his feelings in regard to Gov. Pearson.

What stirred him to talk was a dispatch which The Post received from its correspondent in the Virgin Islands, Robert B. Smythe, and which was published Sunday.

In the article Mr. Smythe told how Gov. Pearson had surrounded himself with friends who worked under him when he conducted the Swarthmore Chautauqua, and how he had even imported stenographers to St. Thomas, although there existed a plethora of stenographers educated in the local high school.

Friend Gets $4,800 Job.

The Post correspondent also found that Gov. Pearson had created a new and unauthorized job for his old friend of Chautauqua days—Ralph Dunbar. Mr. Dunbar was made "director of public entertainment," a job calling for a salary of $4,800 a year.

Thus far Director Dunbar has staged "Pinafore" for the Negroes of the islands, and he is now planning to put on "Pirates of Penzance."

Gov. Pearson also has created another job not authorized by Congress—"director of adult education." This pays $3,900 a year and is held down by Mary L. Flynn, who also

Early Morning Fire Empties Apartment

250 Tenants Are Forced to Street in Their Night Attire.

Fire breaking out early this morning in a clothes closet on the fifth floor of the eight-story Francis Scott Key apartments at 600 Twentieth street northwest forced the 250 tenants out of the building in their night attire. Many brought their pets. Others hastily carried out suit cases and other belongings.

The fire broke out in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gray, who were out at the time. It was discovered by J. H. McCuen who lives in the adjoining apartment. He smelled smoke as he was about to retire. After breaking the glass in the fire alarm on the floor, he hastened to the corner and pulled the alarm box.

Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze but the smoke was so dense throughout the building that the tenants were not allowed back in their quarters for several hours.

DEFIES GANGS

DAVID BURNET.

GANGSTERS DEFIED BY REVENUE CHIEF

No Exemption for Master Minds in Tax Law, Burnet Warns.

(Associated Press.)

The income tax laws "are still on the statute books" and there are no exceptions to "master minds," David Burnet, commissioner of Internal Revenue, said yesterday in hurling a defy to gangsters throughout the country.

It was the bureau's intelligence section, under Elmer Iry, its chief, that ferreted out the hidden incomes of Al Capone and other Chicago gangsters, sending some to jail while Capone awaits trial charged with evasion of income tax laws.

Mr. Burnet's challenge was printed in the Internal Revenue News, a monthly service bulletin.

"In the eyes of the Federal Government a gangster is merely a person and not a personage," he said. "Recently indictments have been secured against a number of men whose names have figured prominently in the press as opponents of constituted authority.

"Some are in the penitentiary, others are headed in this direction, guided to their journey's end by the effective and determined work of the representatives of several cooperating agencies. The Bureau of Internal Revenue takes a natural pride in its part of this accomplishment, not because of the notoriety of the men involved but because it is a forward and compelling step in the disintegration of organizations that have let them go aboye the law.

"I have read that others are 'aspiring to vacant throne.' Speaking for one branch of the Federal service my only observation is that the income tax laws are still on the statute books. There are no exceptions for master minds.'"

Carol and Helen Will Be Friendly

King Says Divorce Was by Pact but Michael Will Continue as "Tie."

Bucharest, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—King Carol was reported today to have discussed with a British newspaperman, for what he said was the last time, his divorce from former Queen Helen. The king is quoted as declaring that their divorce was a pact, but that Crown Prince Michael, their son, remained "a tie" between them.

The king was reported to have said he discussed the affair "in order to kill forever the wild inventions which have been disseminated so persistently."

Every father and mother, the king said, would understand the importance of such a link as their child.

Friendly relations, he was quoted as having said, would continue between himself and Helen.

GERMAN CREDIT RENEWAL GIVEN BY WORLD BANK

COMMITTEE TO VIEW NEW FUND SATURDAY

Officials in Berlin Express Great Satisfaction Over Action.

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The Bank for International Settlements went to the temporary relief of Germany again today. The directors voted renewal of the bank's participation in the $100,000,000 rediscount credit which expires Friday.

It was generally assumed the Bank of France, the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York would act in agreement with the World Bank and thus make the entire $100,000,000 available for the Reichsbank for a period up to three months.

It was understood the Bank of France already had given its approval and it was confidently believed the Federal Reserve would continue its participation. A spokesman for the Bank of England, however, again asked for time to consult his directors.

More far-reaching in its possibilities for restoring German financial stability was the action of the World Bank directors in constituting a special committee to study Germany's immediate needs for new credits and to examine the possibility of converting existing short-term credits into long-term loans.

Meeting Set for Saturday.

The directors set the first meeting of this committee, of which Albert H. Wiggins, of New York, is the American member, for next Saturday afternoon at Basel. In well-informed quarters it was suggested that after organizing here the investigators would move to Berlin.

Taking note of a statement of accounts showing the bank's position July 31, an official communique issued after today's brief session said, "The total for this statement is 1,632,000,000 Swiss francs (about $318,240,000), or a reduction of 148,000,000 francs (about $28,860,000), as compared with the previous statement."

The communique explained that the decline was due in part to the Hoover war debt plan and in part to the fact that some central banks had been "compelled to sell foreign exchange in order to meet withdrawals of capital from various European markets."

Satisfaction in Berlin.

Berlin, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—German official circles today expressed great satisfaction at news that France and the United States have granted Great Britain a rediscount credit of $250,000,000.

German commentators saw in this action renewed evidence that a

Diplomatic Immunity Granted Miss Dawes

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Diplomatic immunity from police court appearance was extended today to Miss Virginia Dawes, daughter of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, American Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Police notified her she need not appear in court on a charge of speeding 45 miles an hour, but that she might send in $5 to cover her fine. Miss Dawes did not want to come to court for fear she would be photographed and the ambassador might hear of her encounter with the law.

Director of Traffic Plans Ban Upon Defective Autos

Action Against Operators Proposed After Titling Job Is Complete; Adoption of Inspection System Favored to Find Mechanically Imperfect Cars.

Traffic Director Van Duzer plans to take action against operators of mechanically imperfect automobiles as soon as he can spare time from the job of titling Washington's cars, he told The Post yesterday.

He said he considers cars that have outlived their usefulness, whose faulty brakes and general disrepair menace motorists and pedestrians alike, a hazard second only to "mechanical imperfection in the driver himself."

Indorsing the stand taken editorially by The Post, Mr. Van Duzer said he has already made a preliminary study of this problem and plans to take remedial steps in the near future.

He favors Pennsylvania's method of ruling mechanically unfit automobiles off her arteries by means of an annual or semiannual garage check on the condition of motor vehicles licensed, he said.

Periodically every automobile would be gone over by skilled mechanics, who would check brakes, steering apparatus, mirrors, windshield wipers, headlights and other features, to see that the car was in a safe condition for operation.

If the check disclosed a low safety rating, Mr. Van Duzer said, the Traffic Bureau would only need to withhold registration until mechanics certified a car's fitness to operate again.

The traffic director said he has already discussed the matter with a number of dealers, and found a general willingness to cooperate.

A plan superior to that of allowing dealers and garage men final say as to an automobile's mechanical perfection would be a system of official inspections by a staff employed by the District for the purpose, he said.

This would preclude possibility of a dealer seizing the opportunity to benefit personally and financially by the arrangement, as the driver would be permitted to select any garage he saw fit to make repairs recommended by the inspector, said Mr. Van Duzer.

He added, however, that lack of funds for the employment of inspectors makes immediate institution of such a plan impractical in the District, and it is possible that the first method, with modifications, will have to be followed here.

Rescue Squad Makes Run Of 50 Miles Against Death

A 50-mile race against death was begun early today by the Fire Rescue Squad and a brain specialist, who sped to the Fauquier County Hospital at Warrenton, Va., in an attempt to save the life of Miss Mary Ann Tracey, 23 years old, of Silver Spring, Md., who is near death from injuries received in an automobile accident.

Oxygen and heart stimulants were carried to the hospital by the Fire Rescue Squad and will be used in an effort to prolong respiration. Dr. Harry H. Kerr, a brain specialist, was speeding to the hospital to perform an emergency operation on Miss Tracey's skull, which was fractured in the accident.

Mrs. Louis Coffman, 31 years old, of 6316 Second street northwest, is also in a serious condition in the same hospital from concussion of the brain. William Armstrong, 24 years old, of Kensington, Md., a student at George Washington University, is also seriously hurt. He has a fractured pelvis, a broken arm and possible internal injuries.

The call for oxygen came shortly

OUTSIDE INTERESTS BEGIN NEGOTIATIONS TO LEASE TROLLEYS

COMMISSION IS BUSY MAKING VALUATIONS

Promoters Indicate Cut in Fares and Improvement in Service.

Negotiations are under way for the lease of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the Capital Traction Co. by foreign public utility interests with the aim of modernizing and consolidating the operation of both systems under a third corporation.

This was confirmed last night by A. K. Shipe, of Esch, Kerr, Woolley, Newton & Shipe, attorneys and counsellors, with offices in the Transportation Building, who are representing the outside capitalists. Mr. Shipe declined to reveal the identity of his clients, but said they are experienced in street railway operation and public utility matters.

The interests have plenty of money and are willing to invest several million dollars in a program of rehabilitating the two street railway systems if the deal goes through, according to their counsel, who stated that the negotiations are still in a tentative stage.

A thorough checking of the properties and stock of both companies and a survey of the problems of electric railway operation in the District is already under way, and officials of the two lines are understood to be favorable to the proposal. The chief obstacle just now is the legal interpretation that is to be put on the street railway merger act of March 4, 1925. If this is interpreted favorably, the deal will probably go through in the near future; otherwise, it may have to await approval of Congress.

Would Lease Both Lines.

Under the plan, as presented to the street railway companies, the outside interests will probably form a local corporation and will lease both lines for a considerable period. With the authority of operation in their hands they will junk most of the street cars and some of the tracks of the traction companies and will replace them with up-to-date carriers. Some track changes will be made, and the two lines will be operated so that there will be no friction or duplication in service.

The promoters have indicated, it is understood, they will even be able to reduce the present fares, while at the same time provide a greatly improved service. By providing attractive transportation and lower costs they believe the railway systems will reward their investments by bringing in a considerably better return than the 4 per cent average now received.

The deal must have the approval of not only the directors of both railways, but the Public Utilities Commission. As to the former, little opposition is likely to be raised in view of the present market value of the stock. And, unless the commission sees an obstacle in the street railway merger act or the LaFollette anti-merger law, there will probably be no official objection.

The 1925 act states in part: "That any or all of the street railway companies operating in the District of Columbia be, and they are hereby, authorized and empowered to merge or consolidate, either by purchase or lease. * * * Provided, that no merger of said companies shall be finally consummated until the same is approved by a joint resolution of Congress."

Sought for Several Years.

Attorneys representing the promoters believe that this act does not prevent a consolidation through lease of the two companies.

Merger of the street railways has been sought for several years before Congress. A number of plans have been advanced, but each has been opposed successfully by one faction or another.

Meanwhile, with the raise in fares last summer to 10 cents cash and four tokens for 30 cents and the growing competition of taxicabs, the street car companies have been steadily losing patronage and revenue. During the taxicab rate war of the past ten days their daily income dropped approximately $1,000 a day for each line.

For the first six months of this

Severe Winter Is Seen If Rail Men Get No Aid

President of Brotherhood Says Roads' Executives Have Rejected Proposal for Joint Parley to Consider Solution of Unemployment.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The 350,000 unemployed railroad workers in this country will face "a very severe winter" unless something is done soon for their relief, David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said today.

A request of executives of the 21 railroad labor organizations comprising the Railway Labor Executives Association, of which Mr. Robertson is chairman, that railroad executives meet with them to consider a solution of unemployment has been rejected, Mr. Robertson said, as well as a counter-proposal of the lines that each deal separately.

Mr. Robertson said the labor executives have not yet decided what their next step will be, but would probably meet in about two weeks to determine it.

The brotherhood chief said that the railway unemployed were being helped now by funds contributed by employed fellow workers, but these funds were almost exhausted. He said outside help is imperative.

The labor executives made the proposal for the general conference with the railroads last spring, suggesting that such railroad problems as regulation of highway, waterway and pipeline transportation services "to eliminate unfair competition" be discussed along with the labor problems. The labor executives wanted also to discuss the six-hour day and the five-day week as an unemployment solution.

The railway executives argued that diversity of labor problems throughout the various systems prevented them from dealing with them as a group and that individual lines were trying to solve unemployment problems.

(United Press.)

Organized railroad labor, seeking shorter work-days and work-weeks as permanent preventives of unemployment, has been unsuccessful in an

CUBAN POLICE HELD FOR GENERAL STRIKE

Havana Unions Walk Out in Sympathy With Street Car Employes.

Havana, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Police reserves were held at headquarters tonight and Maj. Rafael Carrera, chief of national police, ordered that all meetings of more than three persons be dissolved as unions affiliated with the Cuban National Labor Confederation prepared to strike at midnight for 24 hours.

Typographers walked out at 6 p. m. to return tomorrow evening at the same hour. The Spanish language dailies, hence, will not publish tomorrow, although the Havana Post and Telegram, English papers, will print their regular editions.

It still was not known this evening just how many of the 30 or more organizations affiliated with the confederation would join in the strike, which is intended as an expression of sympathy with striking street railway men and of protest against the imprisonment of labor leaders, closing of labor centers and banning of assemblies.

Bus company employes indicated they would not strike. Union officials claimed the walkout, however, will involve most of the 40,000 or more workers in other lines connected with the federation. Street car service was suspended again tonight until 6 a. m. tomorrow.

About 120 of the normal 450 to 500 street cars were operated today.

Strikers and police fired on each other in Marianao suburb, but so far as could be learned no one was injured. Other cars were stoned, and police several times had to dissolve groups of strikers.

About 500 of the 2,400 strikers, only ten of whom have returned to work, gathered this evening to consider the offer made by Frank Steinhart, president of the Havana Electric Railways Co., to try to adjust the wage reductions put into effect August 1. The strikers issued a manifesto thanking the public for supporting them. Few persons rode the cars today or yesterday.

Emergency Operation Performed on McAdoo

Santa Barbara, Calif., Aug. 3 (A.P.). William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, was recovering today from an emergency abdominal operation performed last night.

McAdoo, here working on his autobiography, was stricken suddenly and removed to a hospital where the operation was performed immediately. Dr. Rexall Brown, his physician, said he is "resting well and there is no danger of complications."

14 ARE OVERCOME BY EXTREME HEAT

Second Highest Mark for Year Reached; Five Treated From Cell Block.

The second hottest day of the summer descended on Washington yesterday, sending fourteen heat victims to the hospital and playing havoc with 175 prisoners in a small cell block at Police Court. The maximum temperature was 98 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, exceeded once before this summer by 1 degree, on July 20. Kiosk temperature was 101 degrees.

Thundershowers last night sent the temperature down to 84 degrees, slightly cooler weather is predicted for today, with continued warm weather tomorrow.

Washington was the second hottest city of 56 listed by the United States Weather Bureau. Baltimore was the hottest with a 100-degree official temperature.

Five of the fourteen receiving hospital treatment were prisoners in the cell block. Fifty others were affected by the heat, but did not require hospital treatment. All the prisoners who were not affected were given air in the court yard, after the wholesale heat attack.

Two women who live at the same house, succumbed to the heat at the same time. They collapsed while talking together in front of a downtown department store. They were Mrs. Lucille Houimet, 25 years old, of 300 Ninth street northeast, and Mrs. Helen Thompson, 32 years old, of the same address. They were taken to Casualty Hospital in a passing automobile and returned to their homes later in the afternoon. Mrs. Thompson had virtually recovered early last night, but Mrs. Houimet was reported to be still suffering.

Henry Loeffler, 56 years old, of 612 Maryland avenue southwest, was treated by the Rescue Squad. After collapsing at his home, William Wakeman, 21 years old, a truck driver, of Takoma Park, Md., reeled over while on foot at Tenth and F streets northwest. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Jack Stephenson, 52 years old, of Alexandria, Va., was felled by the blazing heat at Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue northwest. He was treated by the Rescue Squad and then went home.

Two men, whose identity had not been learned at an early hour last night, were treated by the Rescue Squad. One collapsed at 117 M street southeast and the other at Eleventh and Maryland avenue southwest.

Alfred W Reese, 41 years old, of 1321 Four-and-a-half street south-

$25,000 Missing From Mail As Liner Docks Starts Quiz

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Postal authorities have been investigating the disappearance of a package containing $25,000 in currency from a mail pouch delivered here by the Cunard liner Mauretania, it was disclosed tonight.

The currency, consigned to the New York branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, was the only piece of mail missing from the pouch, which arrived here on June 8 from Nassau, Bahamas.

Since the outer seal of the pouch were unbroken and signs of tampering were absent, postal inspectors were of the opinion the theft occurred in Nassau.

Every employe who handled the mails in any way was questioned as a matter of routine by Cunard officials, but none has been able to throw any light on the mystery, so far as could be learned.

The record of the theft has been sent by postal inspectors here to Washington, indicating the investigation has been closed. Officials of the Royal Bank of Canada declined to discuss the matter.

The currency package apparently was extricated by slitting an inner pouch and a leather bag.

MEXICO'S TREATIES ON CLAIMS MAY END

Twice Renewed Pacts Now Involve $600,000,000 Asked by U. S. Citizens.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

The treaties with Mexico, providing for settlement of private claims of citizens by mixed claims commissions, will not be extended, but will expire at the end of this month unless there is an entirely unforseen change in the situation.

Whether a new treaty will be agreed to remains to be seen, but the status of the negotiations between this Government and Mexico is such that there seems to be no prospect of an immediate agreement, and it probably will take several months to agree on a basis of settlement.

There has been a suggestion that the Mexican government might pay to the United States a lump sum in settlement of all American claims within the scope of the existing treaties. The United States would assume responsibility for the payment of the claims of its own citizens under this plan.

Pending the outcome of the negotiations with Mexico there will be no action on the claims of American citizens, many of which are of years standing, dating back to the regime of Huerta and the campaigns of Villa.

$600,000,000 Involved.

Claims filed by American citizens before the general and special mixed claims commissions named, under the expiring treaties total more than $600,000,000, though the total amount claimed probably would be very materially cut down in any settlement of the claims in view of the predilection of claimants not to err on the side of understatement in filing claims for damages.

The treaties have expired and been extended twice. It had been hoped that another extension could be agreed to before the end of this month.

The United States has a great deal more to lose than has Mexico, however, and the government of the neighboring republic apparently is anxious to get whatever advantage it can out of negotiations incident to a new treaty. Mexico already has laid down certain conditions which are unacceptable to the United States. For one thing, she wants all sessions of the future commission held in Mexico City.

Exclusion of Claims Sought.

Mexico also wants excluded from consideration all claims of American citizens growing out of the regime of Huerta and the activities of Villa. President Huerta, Mexico points out, was not properly at the head of the Mexican government, but was a rebel, and therefore Mexico should not be held responsible for damages incident to his usurpation of power.

And, just by way of bolstering her argument, Mexico points out that the United States Government thought the same thing about Huerta and refused to recognize him as the government of Mexico. Villa never got to the Mexican presidency, and, Mexico argues, there is less justification for holding the Mexican government responsible for the activities of a bandit, or a rebel, against whom it took vigorous action.

There are other points at issue, too. Mexico does not like Fred K. Nielson, American international lawyer of wide experience, who is the American member of the existing general and special claims commissions.

Speeding Up Tried.

Mr. Nielson has sought to have the work of the commission speeded up, and recently registered his objection to the manner in which Fernandez MacGregor, Mexican commissioner, and Horacio Alfaro, of Panama, presiding commissioner, were settling American claims without consulting the American commissioner. Mr. Nielson politely expressed his opinion that an international commission of three should function as a commission of three.

Subsequently apparently inspired newspaper stories appeared in Mexican newspapers and were sent to the United States saying that Commissioner Nielson was persona non grata to Mexico.

Although State Department officials refuse to discuss the pending negotiations, it is understood that this country has let it be known that it has had a change of heart since the day it approved the naming of Mr. Alfaro as presiding commissioner, and if and when a new commission is formed, it will be headed by a different presiding commissioner.

The negotiations are being watched with keen interest by many Americans.

Report on Slaying Of Girl Submitted

Columbia Student Held to Have Disobeyed Advice; Killer Not Found.

(Associated Press.)

A detailed report on the death of Henrietta Schmerler, Columbia University research worker, on the White River Apache Indian reservation in Arizona was forwarded by the Indian office yesterday to Columbia authorities.

Commissioner Rhoads did not disclose the exact contents of the report, just received from Superintendent Donner, of the Apache Reservation, but it was indicated it reemphasized previous statements that the young woman had disregarded advice of Government workers in studying the Indians.

VIRGIN ISLANDS JOBS ATTACKED BY BROWN

Efficiency Bureau Head Says Gov. Pearson Is Acting Beyond Authority.

was associated with Gov. Pearson when he was running a chautauqua.

In denouncing Gov. Pearson's acts yesterday, Mr. Brown, the Bureau of Efficiency chief, pointed out that Congress, in appropriating money for the Virgin Islands, had clearly specified how the money was to be spent and had listed each job that was to be filled by the governor.

Congress, he said, did not authorize $4,800 for director of public entertainment, or $3,900 for a director of adult education, and consequently Gov. Pearson exceeded his authority when he created just jobs and set out to pay such salaries.

In the opinion of Mr. Brown, the appointment of a man who put on Gilbert and Sullivan operettas in a community that is struggling to buy bread was "absurd."

In a statement, Mr. Brown said:

"'I have read the article published by Robert B. Smythe in The Washington Post in regard to the Virgin Islands, and I am distressed at the unfortunate condition of affairs there.

Not Authorized by Congress.

"I am particularly out of sympathy with Gov. Pearson's action in creating high-priced positions that were not authorized by Congress, and in filling those positions with friends from his home town in Swarthmore, Pa.

"It was through my interest in the work now being carried on by two Philadelphia Quakers in the Bureau of Indian Affairs—Mr. Rhoads and Mr. Scattergood—that prompted me to look in the same quarter for a man of their spirit to take up the work in the Virgin Islands. I wanted somebody with the missionary spirit.

"I appealed to the Quakers in Swarthmore and Philadelphia, and was assured that Dr. Pearson possessed the necessary qualities.

Regrets His Recommendation.

"I hesitate at this time to go into all the causes that have induced me to change my opinion about his qualifications. There is nothing that I have regretted more. I had much rather face public criticism myself than to jeopardize the welfare of the islands."

The Interior Department evidently is going to side with Gov. Pearson in the latter's controversy with Brown, for yesterday Assistant Secretary of the Interior John H. Edwards issued a statement that was tantamount to a defense of the Virgin Islands' executive.

"The present governor," said Edwards, "was selected by Mr. Brown. He has been in the islands slightly more than four months. During this period the transfer from naval to civil administration has been under way and has not yet been entirely consummated."

Assistant Secretary Edwards said the cost of the central administration of the islands under the civil government is $126,000, whereas the cost under the Navy Department was $139,000.

Under the Bureau of Efficiency setup, Assistant Secretary Edwards said, the cost of the central administration was to be $96,586.

"The Department of the Interior and not the governor," he said, "transferred from municipal expenses to central administrative expenses certain positions which increased totals to $126,000, but caused a corresponding decrease in municipal expenses."

Brown Asked for Survey.

Mr. Edwards said that only four positions were created that had not been recommended by the Bureau of Efficiency. One of these, he said, was the post of Commissioner of Industries. Such an official he said, was essential in order that Mr. Brown's $60,000 hotel plans and his $106,000 homestead plans might be carried out. The appropriations for these two plans did not provide for an official to direct the work.

To illustrate how the Interior Department is seeking to cut down expenses in the Virgin Islands, Assistant Secretary Edwards pointed out that Gov. Pearson uses a Chevrolet automobile, whereas his predecessor, the Naval Governor, used a LaSalle.

Purchased from Denmark in 1917 for the ridiculously high price of $25,000,000, the Virgin Islands always have constituted a problem for the American Government.

At the outset, Uncle Sam made the natives American citizens, and then proceeded to lavish attention and money on them, until the annual appropriation was averaging half a million dollars a year.

Two years ago Congress asked Mr. Brown to make a survey of the islands and work out some plan whereby the islands might be made self-supporting. At that time, a naval officer, Capt. Waldo Evans, was serving as governor, and most of the administrative work was being done by Navy men.

In the end Mr. Brown became convinced that if the natives were to be encouraged to acquire homesteads and go in for diversified farming; if hotels were to be erected and a bid made for tourist traffic, if the sugar industry and the bay rum industry were to be stimulated, then a civilian governor, rather than a naval governor, would be needed. Secretary of the Navy Adams agreed with him.

Last winter, President Hoover issued an order transferring the islands from the Navy Department to the Interior Department. At the same time he named Dr. Pearson as governor. Prior to this, the President had asked Mr. Brown to recommend somebody, and, as has been explained, Mr. Brown recommended Dr. Pearson.

Relations Strained Early.

The relations between Mr. Brown and Dr. Pearson evidently became strained before the new governor left for his post. Mr. Brown objected to his taking so many persons with him to the capital at St. Thomas.

Thus the two men must have been on the "outs" when President Hoover visited St. Thomas in the course of his Caribbean cruise last spring. It was on his return that the President described the Virgin Islands as an "effective poorhouse."

That the present controversy over the Virgin Islands will be aired in Congress next December seems certain, for Congress is exceedingly jealous and likely to become exceedingly wrathful when officials set up offices for which there is no congressional authority.

Life in Virgin Islands One Grand Sweet Song

By JOHN J. DALY

GIVEN time, the United States will have a Paradise of its own; down in the Virgin Islands.

Only one tourist has visited the tropical pastures this summer. He is sending back to The Post some glowing reports. If only one-tenth of what he writes is true, soon there should start a stampede by steamer and plane for these romantic southern shores, where the illiterate enjoy all the exquisite pleasures of having Swarthmore professors read books to them, where Chicago letter carriers become postmasters, where college students (of Swarthmore) their first year out, attain financial heights seldom scaled by bank presidents.

For many years, scientists have been searching for the precious spot on earth where Adam and Eve lived in the Garden of Eden. George Bernard Shaw, just home from Russia, believes he got a glimpse of it in the land of Sovietism, saying he was sorry to be back in London town. Had he gone to the Virgin Islands, he never would be seen again near Picadilly Circus, or even in Tipperary.

It may be, of course, that Russia has a shade on the Virgin Islands. The only one to verify that would be Mr. Shaw, and he refuses to speak in detail about the great experiment he has seen. What he has to say must be carefully thought out and written, he announces, "and I have made arrangements to do this"—at so much a word.

Uncle Sam, it seems, got the tropical islands—the lost land of the blessed—from Denmark. There must have been something rotten in the state of Denmark to have let this prize possession go. It provides a heaven on earth, where nature if you are sad will charm you out of your sadness, and if you are glad will vibrate your heart to the breaking point, the summit of ecstasy. In the Virgin Islands life is one grand, sweet song. At any moment, however, once Congress convenes, some knight of the holy flail, bent on spoiling the pleasure of the innocent, is liable to start an investigation into the vagaries of the vertiginous islands. Then the virgins will depart, blowing out their lamps as they go.

In a golden zone, like Apollo's, the politicians of the islands are living off the fat of the land, while their brothers at home are confronted with the lean.

It is a district only about the size of Washington, and with a meager population of 20,000. For every voter there is a political leader, and an assistant, to see that the politician gets what the voter wants. For every mouth there is plenty of food. For every man, woman and child there is diversion. It sounds too good to be true, but it is fairer than the pleasant places by the Mediterranean.

The tranquil waters that surround the islands are filled with pearls—and there is gold in them thar hills, back of the bay—but no one has to dive for pearls, no one digs for gold. They are just there for the taking, by the politicians. The land is bathed in milk and honey; swathed, more or less, in golden opportunity.

Old fighting men of the Norse breed were first to discover the place. There they rested after arduous days of adventure. Some of them are still there, regaling the youngsters with stories of high exploits. Babies do not cry on the Virgin Islands. The nations at large may be suffering from depression, wages of workers cut, but in the Virgin Islands a world of warmth and shelter awaits mankind, where there are no wage earners, for no one works; but salaries of officials are raised instead of lowered whenever there is an adjustment.

The governor, so the story goes, rules with a bounteous hand; to prove the old statement, as it were, that there is a Santa Claus.

Blue are the peaceful seas, serene the cloudless skies that enfold and embrace the happy-go-lucky Paradise on Earth.

It is the Island of Dreams, the Land of Elysium. Once the Elysian fields were thought to be in the Fortunate Islands off the coast of Africa. Some placed them in the Island of Luce. Virgil thought they were in Italy. All were wrong, these guessers. We know now where the Elysian fields are plowed—in the Virgin Islands.

"And how do we get to the Virgin Islands?" ask those with the inclination, but who have not the wherewithal.

Well, if the chronicles are read aright, all you do is write a letter to the governor of the Virgin Islands, setting forth your needs, requesting passage to Paradise. Ask him to address you in care of General Delivery, Swarthmore, Pa. This, of course, presents the problem of getting to Swarthmore; but that o ht to be comparatively easy in this, the age of hitch-hiking. Beyond the Alps lies Italy; beyond Swarthmore, the Virgin Islands.

MEXICAN NATIONAL BANK BATTLES RUN

Credito Espanol Closes Its Doors and Liquidation Is Requested.

Mexico City, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Failure of the Credito Espinol de Mexico, a Spanish bank, to open this morning was followed by reportedly unusual withdrawals from other banks, with the Banco Nacional de Mexico closing its doors temporarily this afternoon to preserve order in the crowd of depositors seeking to withdraw money.

It was announced the Banco Nacional de Mexico, which is not an official institution and has no connection with the Bank of Mexico, would open as usual Tuesday morning. It was reported depositors in this bank withdrew 4,000,000 pesos today before the doors were closed.

Officials of the Spanish Bank said they hoped to reopen in a fortnight. The directors issued a statement saying they had requested a judicial liquidation of the bank's affairs. They claimed the bank's assets were sufficient to pay all obligations, but that present conditions in Mexico prevented continuance of operations at present.

A newspaper survey indicated that many Spanish grocery stores are faced with forced closure because of the closing of the Spanish Bank.

Withdrawals from other banks here today were said to be larger than usual. Reports from Tampico and Puebla said there were heavy withdrawals from banks there.

The Mexican government recently instituted a new monetary law removing gold from circulation, and there have been protests from several quarters.

Tentative Poll Date In Chile Determined

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—The first Sunday in October was fixed tentatively today as the date for election of a President of Chile.

Whether or not the election will be held on that date depends largely on the ability of the government and the leading political parties to prepare for the contest.

Bomb in Express Train Kills 2, Injures 13

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A bomb explosion in the Munich-Belgrade express today resulted in the killing of two persons and in serious injury to thirteen others. One of the two killed was an 11-year-old boy, whose father and mother were seriously hurt.

The father, a Prof. Brunetti, told police he suspected a man who entered the train at Ljubljana and left it a few stations before it left Belgrade.

A second bomb, unexploded, was found in the Berlin coach. It was filled with a pound of high explosive.

Buildings in Oklahoma Damaged by Tornado

Chickasha, Okla., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A tornado swept over Chickasha tonight, damaged several buildings, but was reported to have caused no deaths.

The wind was accompanied by 1¼ inches of rain. Willard Hall, dormitory of the Oklahoma College for Women, which was in the path of the tornado, was slightly damaged.

2 KILLED IN STORMS OVER NEW ENGLAND

Four States Suffer Damage by Lightning, Wind and Swollen Streams.

Boston, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Lightning, wind and a downpour of rain struck parts of Massachusetts, Connecticut and southern Vermont and New Hampshire late today, taking two lives and causing thousands of dollars' property damage.

A score of buildings were struck by lightning, four of them burning to the ground. Telephone and power lines were crippled, scores of streets were flooded and others strewn with broken branches of trees.

Alfred Adams, 16, of Fitchburg, was killed by lightning in Lunenburg after he had run to shelter in a small building.

A section of North Adams, where flood conditions were most severe in 1927, had a foot and a half of water. The north branch of the Hoosac River rose a foot in an hour and crews of workers were mobilized hastily to clear up a tangled mass of fallen wires and trees. Two buildings were struck by lightning.

In Adams, trees were blown across the main telephone line, cutting off communication with points north.

At Dover, N. H., 12 buildings were struck by lightning, one of them, the home of Peter Robin, being destroyed by fire. Approximately 500 telephones were reported out of order in that district alone.

Keene, N. H., reported the worst storm in several years, with a precipitation of 1.03 inches in a half hour. Children waded through streets in bathing suits as sewers clogged and failed to carry off the rain.

In Stamford, Vt., two barns were struck and burned.

Joseph Madden, 36, of Southwick, was killed while driving his automobile during the storm. The top of a high tree crashed down on the car. Stanley Mikuski, 30, Madden's brother-in-law, a passenger in the vehicle, suffered severe injuries.

In Connecticut heavy winds, accompanied by a driving rain, tonight blew down trees, blocked roads, and ripped down wires, disrupting electric light service throughout a large section of Westport and the eastern section of Norwalk.

6 Seized in Abduction Of Workers at Polls

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Six men were arrested late today and tonight and charged with abducting four precinct workers in Saturday's primary. Three of the workers had testified in court they were arrested on breach of peace charges by two deputy constables Saturday, then turned over to armed men, who took them outside the city in automobiles and did not bring them back until the polls closed.

The workers who swore out the warrants are supporters of a Republican faction led by Mayor William B. Harrison, which was opposed by a ticket sponsored by Sheriff Hubbard Petty.

DEATH RACE MADE BY RESCUE SQUAD

before midnight and the Rescue Squad ambulance, equipped with every facility for emergency treatment and with extra oxygen aboard, set out on its 50-mile run. Dr. Kerr, in company with another physician sped to the hospital in a private automobile.

Louis Coffman, husband of Mrs. Coffman, and manager of the Citizens Building & Loan Association of Montgomery County, was called from Norristown, Pa., to the beside of his wife.

The accident occurred when the automobile driven by Mrs. Coffman, tried to avoid a collision with another automobile which drove from a side road on to the Warrenton-Luray highway, about nine miles from Warrenton.

Mrs. Coffman's automobile overturned. The driver of the second automobile sped away. Miss Tracey is employed by the same company as Mrs. Coffman's husband. She formerly lived in Blue Ridge Summit, Pa.

10 Captured After Jumping From Yacht With Rum Load

Cape May, N. J., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Nine men and two girls were in the county jail at Cape May Courthouse tonight while the pleasure yacht Allegro was en route to Philadelphia, after its capture early today by Coast Guards. Eight men and the girls were captured after a leap from the yacht, on which was found a contraband cargo of liquor valued at $120,000.

Among those captured was a man who said he was Charles Abbott, of Philadelphia, who claimed to be the owner and captain. He was still aboard the yacht when it was captured. The rest, taken after their leap into the water, gave the names of George Silver, 39; Oscar Olsen, 23; Louis Thompson and Frank Miller, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Fred Anderson, 31, of New York, and Charles Keller, 44, of Hoboken, N. J.

The girls and two men refused to give any names.

Those held in jail will be arraigned in Camden tomorrow before a United States commissioner.

The Allegro was 95 miles out to sea when captured by coast guardsmen, who trailed the vessel for 35 miles. Although the yacht was cruising leisurely along, with two girls promenading the decks, and all the crew in snappy yachtsmen's clothes, the guardsmen noticed the vessel listed, apparently from a heavy load. They commanded the vessel to halt, but instead it put on speed and the chase resulted.

Aboard the Allegro were found 2,000 cases of liquor, guardsmen said. The girls, they asserted, had boarded the vessel Friday night at New York for a cruise to Atlantic City. The liquor, they said, was taken aboard Saturday night from a large vessel anchored 65 miles off Atlantic City. It had been planned to run the cargo ashore immediately, but the vigilant Coast Guard had hindered completion of the plan.

The Allegro is listed in the maritime register as 125 feet long, displaces 559 tons and is equipped with two 800-horsepower engines. It was valued at $375,000 and has been sold at auction twice since the death of its original owner, a Philadelphia man. It was bought in 1929 by Commander MacMillan and used in the second MacMillan-MacDonald expedition to the Arctic, officials reported. Its present owner is listed as a Philadelphian residing at one of the large hotels.

STIMSON PROPOSAL ON PEACE IS LAUDED

System of Inquiry and Public Reports Held Weapon Against War.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Speaking at the armament conference of the Institute of Politics here tonight, Edwin L. James, night managing editor of the New York Times, dwelt on the plan of Secretary of State Stimson, proposing a system of international inquiry and public reports on issues menacing international peace. He offered the Stimson plan as an answer to France's demand for security and as a possible American contribution to the forthcoming Geneva armament conference.

The Stimson plan proposal came as part of an evening discussion on "The Press, Public Opinion and Disarmament" participated in by Arthur S. Draper, assistant editor of the New York Herald-Tribune, and Stanley High, until recently editor of the Christian Herald.

Mr. James contended there is much to be said for the proposed Stimson plan which, he indicated, may not be presented to the public for some months.

"In the first place," Mr. James said, "the plan means that the power of the United States would be back of the proposed inquiry which, enforcing a period of suspension of intense hostilities, would by that alone contribute enormously to avoiding the danger of open conflict. A country which, during the period of inquiry, resorted to arms would, ipso facto, convict itself of being an aggressor and it would thereby be assured that we would stand aligned against the aggressor."

This morning the institute heard Admiral W. L. Rodgers, of the United States Navy, contend that this country needs a powerful Navy to protect her world trade. Capt. John Willis Greenslade, U. S. N., spoke on phases of the draft treaty for the world disarmament conference, pointing to unrestricted use of airplanes in indiscriminate bombing and gas attack against civil populations as an even greater menace than submarines.

Other speakers at the morning session were William T. Stone, Washington representative of the Foreign Policy Association, and Henry Cabot Lodge, grandson of the late senator.

Cuban Financial Study Progress Is Reported

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Prof. Carl S. Shoup today reported favorable progress in Havana in his work of preparing data for Dr. E. R. Seligman, noted American economist, engaged by the Cuban government to study the republic's tax laws with a view to revising them.

TENNESSEE UNABLE TO PAY EMPLOYES

Hundreds of State Workers Face Prospect of Salaryless September 1.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Tennessee's treasury is bare. For two days its condition was even more dire, for the coffers stood more than $136,000 "in the red," but an expected remittance of fees today pulled the treasury temporarily out of difficulties.

Meanwhile, hundreds of State employes, many of whom have taken salary cuts, face the possibility of a payless September 1. In the same status with them are the University of Tennessee faculty members.

Comptroller Roy Wallace wrote Gov. Henry H. Horton late today of the State's financial condition, and said he was "compelled to withhold all warrants drawn on the general fund until such time as the treasury will permit the payment of same."

Revenue this month is not expected to exceed $350,000, and the September 1 pay roll alone will total $250,000. Then there is the monthly Confederate pension roll amounting to $110,500. Payment of $95,000 due the University of Tennessee for expenses during August is being held up.

The recent Legislature failed to pass a revenue bill to make up for the repeal of the property tax that produced $3,500,000 annually. It passed appropriations in excess of $26,600,000 for the biennum, and spent on the session more than $600,000, the most costly ever held in Tennessee.

Man Sues Country Club After Getting Members

The Beaver Dam Country Club and Severine G. Loeffler, its manager, were named defendants in a suit for $2,888 brought by Paul Bradshaw, 901 C street northeast, in District Supreme Court yesterday. The suit alleges that Bradshaw was to be paid $16 for each new member or reinstatement he secured for the club, and he charges that $2,888 is still owing to him.

ADDED GANG VICTIM FOUND IN NEW YORK

Man Is Slain as Efforts Are Redoubled to Locate Killers of Child.

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—While the aid of August grand juries was being solicited today in the campaign to rid New York of bandits and desperadoes, a patrolman stumbled upon the trussed-up body of another victim of gang vengeance.

Ripping open the ropes which tied a strange looking bundle lying in a roadway near Queensboro Bridge, the officer found the body of a man who had been garroted. Six strands of heavy rope had been knotted around his neck.

From fingerprints the victim was identified as Angelo Marino, 40, who was arrested in 1928 for felonious assault, but later acquitted. He is believed by police to have had racketeering connections in "Little Italy," the section of Harlem in which five children were wounded, one fatally, in last Tuesday's display of underworld ruthlessness.

Dead Short Time.

A dentist's card was found on the body, but the man whose name it bore was unable to remember ever having seen the murdered victim.

Police surgeons said Marino had been dead only a short time when the patrolman found the body, wrapped in two blankets and tied in an almost square bundle. Detectives were working tonight on the theory the victim had been killed in Manhattan and that his body had been taken to the neighborhood of the bridge by automobile.

The plea to grand juries was made in General Sessions Court by Judge John J. Freschi, who said:

"Certain law violators in their own peculiar warfare, in which they have recklessly and unlawfully used firearms and other contraband, have not only endangered the lives and property of a considerable number of our people, but have actually caused the death of one child of tender years and seriously injured four others, and outraged the dignity of the people of this community.

Patrol Hunts Men.

"I am sure that if any evidence is argued before these grand jurors they will act with dispatch and justice and effectiveness in this emergency."

At the same time a search has begun in the densely populated sections of lower Harlem and in Brooklyn for three men known to police by name and believed to have been the gunmen responsible for last Tuesday's outrage.

All the sixteen patrols of detectives cruising the city in automobiles, with shotguns at their sides, were given descriptions of the men. They have orders to "shoot to kill" if they spot the men responsible for the child killing.

CHINA NATIONALISTS CRUSH REBEL ARMY

Shih Yu-San Uprising Beaten as Government Troops Surround Reds.

Shanghai, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The rebellion of the northern war lord, Shih Yu-Shan, was reported nearly crushed today by Nationalist government troops at the same time the government announced that Kiangsi Province Reds had been defeated and scattered after two months' fighting.

Only a few fleeing bands of the Red hordes that had drenched the countryside with blood for a year and burned cities, were left intact after the vigorous campaign directed by President Chiang Kai-Shek.

These reverses, suffered by Nationalist foes, were believed to have made unlikely the advance northward by Canton insurgent government armies planned to begin last Saturday.

More than 250,000 rebels of Gen. Shih Yu-San were said by neutral news sources to be virtually surrounded in southern Chihli Province as Nationalist armies advanced northward in cooperation with the southward movement of their Manchurian allies.

Pouring eastward through mountain passes, the Shansi Province troops of Gen. Shang Chen drove against the rear of the rebels who had been fighting the Manchurians several days. They were said to have been the added factor that caused the insurgents to ask for peace.

President Chiang Kai-Shek, however, said dispatches, ordered the fighting continued until the rebels were completely defeated and the military and political power of Shih Yu-San destroyed.

Commenting at Nanking upon Nationalist successes, Foreign Minister C. T. Wang remarked cryptically that the whole world should now understand the significance of the recent events including the secession of Canton, the rebellion of Shih Yu-San, the visit of Eugene Chen, Canton insurgent foreign minister to Japan, and the riots against the Chinese in Korea.

INDIAN NATIONALISTS BEATEN IN BOMBAY

Rioting Between Factions Is Staged on Eve of Gandhi's Trip to London.

Bombay, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—On the eve of the participation of Mahatma Gandhi in the second round-table conference in London, a group of Indian nationalists were attacked tonight by members of the opposition and more than a score of them were seriously injured.

The trouble arose when S. A. Brelvt, editor of the Bombay Chronicle, tried to address a meeting of nationalists and Mohammedans, which was convened to support the formula of the nationalist congress for solving the vexed communal problem.

"We don't want Brelvt as chairman of the meeting; we want one of our own men!" shrieked groups of Mohammedans who are opposed to solving the problem by joint electorates.

Speaker Severely Beaten.

This objection was opposed by Hakim Abdul Jalil, a Nationalist Mohammedan, and the opposition became the signal for wild commotion. Hakim was dragged from the platform and assaulted. When he attempted to escape, his opponents threw sticks, umbrellas and clubs at him.

After running frantically from pillar to post and pleading with his assailants, Hakim risked his life by climbing up a rickety ladder to the roof, where he escaped.

In the meantime wild disorder prevailed in the meeting hall. After the chairman had asked the audience to disperse, Editor Brelvt tried to escape through a side door. The lights were suddenly switched off and the audience became still more panicky. Although he was struck with clubs and umbrellas, Brelvt managed to escape by jumping through a window.

Battle Royal Follows.

A battle royal followed between the Nationalist Moslems and their opponents in which sticks, stones and other missiles were used with painful effect.

The Associated Press correspondent received a stunning blow while trying to emerge from the melee.

Within less than five minutes 30 persons were severely beaten, windows were smashed, furniture was wrecked and the audience entirely stampeded. It was two hours before quiet was restored by the arrival of political leaders who rebuked the crowd.

THREE ARE KILLED IN RIOT IN CHICAGO

Three Policemen Injured in Halting Mob Protesting Eviction of Family.

Chicago, August 3 (A.P.).—Three negroes were killed and three policemen were injured late today in a riot by several hundred negroes protesting the eviction of a family for nonpayment of rent. The negroes were slain, officials said, after police had been attacked with knives and pistols. The crowd was dispersed by police reserves and several scores were taken into custody.

The bailiffs summoned police aid when a crowd of negroes, estimated by police at more than 300, gathered and threatened them as they started to move to the street the belongings of a negro family whose eviction had been ordered in court. The building is at Fiftieth and Dearborn streets, a district densely populated by negroes.

Start to Fight Way.

The three policemen responded in a patrol wagon, and started to fight their way through the crowd to reach the bailiffs.

They were attacked with clubs and knives. One suffered a fractured skull. The other two were severely cut on their faces, but returned to duty after receiving medical attention.

The arrival of a squad car caused the crowd to transfer its attention from the patrol wagon crew to the new arrivals. One Negro drew Sergt. Henry Lion's pistol from his holster and pressed the muzzle against the officer's stomach.

Death Threat Made.

"I'm going to kill you!" the Negro threatened.

Policeman William Jordan reached over the menaced officer's shoulder and shot the Negro in the head. He fell dead. Then the crowd became wildly excited, striking at the officers with knives and clubs. The police fired several bullets into the crowd and several Negroes fell, two dead. The others were carried away by friends.

Tonight every police reserve in the city had been mobilized in the South Side Negro district as a precaution against further outbreaks.

The GIRL About Town

GEN. SMEDLEY BUTLER was deep in conversation with several Marine officers at the Army and Navy Club when I lunched there yesterday. Talking about his projected retirement, I suppose. A long sigh of relief will go through the Corps when that stormy petrel is off the active list. Butler is a soldier of marked ability, brave enough and smart enough, but the way he can disrupt an organization has come to be a motto in the corps. He is a martinet with his men, not that they mind that, but night drills and sudden expeditions are different matters. I have been noticing that Gen. Lejeune has been sticking rather closely to the V. M. I. since Butler has been in the vicinity of the Capital. I hear that there is no love lost now between the two generals, although Butler is said to boast that he made Lejuene Commandant.

NOTICED Mrs. Harry C. Barnes also lunching at the club. Mrs. Barnes is busy with Red Cross matters these days, and Army and Navy circles are buzzing with the rumor that a romance is to come out of her activities in this direction. The lucky man is said to be Brig. Gen. John A. Johnston, former District Commissioner, a widower of several years' standing.

"Ted" Joslin, President Hoover's energetic secretary, has a new job, according to one of the boys who covered Rapidan for the week-end. It seems that the newspaper men who escort the President part of the way to his sylvan retreat in the Virginia mountains and then wait at Orange for news to be telephoned them from headquarters have composed a marching song. "Ted" is anxious to keep the President from hearing this song, so he is trying to stop the leaks from newspaper men's camp. It's dollar to doughnuts the President would only laugh if he should hear that song, but "Ted" is taking no chances.

WHEN I cabled Jane in Paris not to forget my favorite perfume a friend was in the telegraph office at the same time, sending a birthday telegram to Senator Samuel Shortridge of California. Yesterday was his birthday, seventy years young. He is a man of courtly manners, with a keen sense of fun.

I know more about politics now after a dinner I attended at the New Shoreham. Everybody was talking about forgiving everybody their debts. I intend to tell my dressmaker all about moratoriums. Father may be right when he says I need a wider vocabulary, I added quite a number of new words to it last night. All of them said that Ruth Hanna McCormick, Katrina's mother, does not choose to run for Congress again, but has her eye on a Cabinet post.

TRIAL OF LUKE LEA OPENS AT ASHEVILLE

Tennessee Publisher Attacks Court's Jurisdiction in Bank Fraud Case.

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The State today began presenting evidence upon which it hopes to prove that Luke Lea, Tennessee publisher, conspired with Wallace B. Davis and others to defraud the Central Bank & Trust Co. here of $1,300,000.

M. R. Blackwell, head bookkeeper at the bank prior to its failure last November, testified he flew to Nashville, Tenn., with $305,000 worth of City of Asheville tax-anticipation notes when Lea telephoned the notes were needed to aid that day's business.

The witness said the notes were delivered to Luke Lea, jr., and E. P. Charlet, also defendants in the present case, but were later delivered to Caldwell & Co., Nashville, investment corporation, of which Rogers Caldwell, now under a prison sentence, was president.

Caldwell & Co. assigned a credit of $250,000 to the Central Bank for the notes, and one $10,000 note was returned to the bank by New York bond attorneys who passed on the validity of the issue; but the remaining $45,000 was never paid, Blackwell said. Caldwell & Co. went into receivership early in November, and the failure was credited with playing a large part in the downfall of the bank here. The State announced this transaction would be connected with the illegal actions charged against Lea and his codefendants.

Attorneys for Col. Lea, at the opening of court, contested the jurisdiction of the court and filed a motion excepting to trial at this special term.

Judge M. V. Barnhill, of Rocky Mount, assigned by Gov. Gardner to preside, denied the motion. A defense motion for a mistrial also was overruled.

Edison Improves, Jokes With Family

Atmosphere in His Home Takes on Definite Optimism.

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Continuing his steady gains, Thomas Alva Edison closed today with "encouraging improvement" after spending the evening amusing his family with humorous remarks.

Dr. Hubert S. Howe, personal physician to the aged inventor, forecast another good night for his patient, and the Edison family was considerably encouraged at the sick man's satisfactory progress.

The atmosphere in the home, filled with foreboding when the wizard of Menlo Park collapsed Saturday, tonight took on a definite optimism, that Mr. Edison's remarkable recovery would continue.

west, collapsed while at Four-and-a-half and O streets southwest. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment.

Mrs. Ann Abraham, 32 years old, of 2101 New Hampshire avenue northwest, was prostrated while at Ninth and Delafield streets northwest. She was treated at Walter Reed Hospital.

Prisoners removed from the cell block for hospital treatment were: William R. Smith, James Irwin, George T. Baker, Carroll Reitz and Ross Schilling. They were treated at Emergency hospital. Prisoners have collapsed once before this summer in the cell block. In future, during the hot weather, they will wait in the court yard under guard. The fact that many of the police court prisoners have been drunk the night before makes them doubly vulnerable to heat attack, court attaches believe.

Census Bureau employes were dismissed at 3 o'clock after receiving their pay. The temperature was more than 100 degrees at the bureau. The Interior Department dismissed all employes that could be spared. This is the first time such action has been taken this summer at a major government department.

State Department workers were dismissed early but War Department employes in the same building were not. About 400 employes in temporary buildings of the Treasury Department were released at 1:30 o'clock and offices of the General Supply Committee and Public Health Service closed at the same hour. Complaints were received from employes at the Veterans Bureau that the heat has been intense in their building but that no steps have been taken to give them liberty, they complained.

After sweltering in an afternoon drill at Fort Meade, Md., about 300 reserve officers of the Eighteenth Division, School of Arms, were cooled by a thundershower that broke over the camp as the officers were returning from drill.

Most of the officers were drenched when they were compelled to brave the elements in order to hold down the tents, which were nearly blown away by a wind that accompanied the shower.

SEVERE WINTER PREDICTED UNLESS RAIL MEN GET HELP

attempt to draw its employers into a conference on the subject.

Labor men disclosed here that the heads of the 21 strong rail unions offered recently to name a committee to meet with a committee on railroad executives on the subject. The employers, through the Association of Railway Executives, refused to confer.

The employers said all labor matters are up to individual lines.

The railroad executives said their organization was specifically barred from action on labor questions, but did designate two of its members to meet with union representatives to discuss "competition." Presumably this means the competition of the bus lines, trucks, and pipe lines with the steam railroads.

Lack of Enthusiasm Denied.

Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the railroad executives and one of the two members named by his association on the committee, denied that the executives showed lack of enthusiasm as charged by the labor men. His committee is ready to talk over matters within its province at any time, but the articles of association specifically exclude any jurisdiction over labor questions, he said.

This development was an outgrowth of the railroads' recent demand for a 15 per cent freight rate increase, and the stand of the union leaders against any cut in wages. Few labor men believe that the Interstate Commerce Commission, under the law and the facts, will see fit to grant the increase. The labor men are fearful of wage cuts in event the increase is denied. Indeed, some of the railroad executives have intimated broadly that wage cuts were alternative to a rate increase. It was with this feeling that the railroad brotherhoods held their meeting here last week, and it was then that the proffer of a conference was made. It was at that time, too, that they expressed approval of any rate increases if found justifiable. But the 21 unions at the same time took a strong stand against wage cuts, and said if consummated they would retard economic recovery.

Figures were produced to show that productivity has been increasing in last years faster than wages, hence, that wages were still "low."

Plan for Congress.

The union men decided also to draw up and present to Congress this winter a plan for retirement insurance, to provide for the railroad men who are worn out in the service of the great iron horse. A committee was formed to write a measure, along lines which have been under study for years by the railroad unions. This would amount to an old age and service pension plan, imposed by the Federal Government upon the railroads.

The unions' stand on unemployment favors a six-hour day and a five-day week, to absorb an estimated 350,000 workers now "off the railroads." The unions desired to revise the whole setup in an effort to stabilize employment.

Union men said yesterday that it was not feasible to discuss these proposals with individual lines, because of the national scope of the plan. A remedy can not be worked out without the cooperation of the national industry, they believe.

(Associated Press.)

Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives, said yesterday the association did not deal with labor matters.

He said R. H. Ashton, chairman of the association's executive committee, had so advised David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, in reply to the latter's suggestion of a general conference to discuss rail unemployment.

In his letter, Ashton said:

"Because experience has shown a wide diversity of conditions throughout the country as to labor problems, and because of the technical details connected with them, the Association of Railway Executives, as you know, does not deal with labor matters.

Through Customary Channels.

"Accordingly, I am directed to suggest that such matters should be handled through the customary channels provided for that purpose.

"As you know, much has already been done by individual managements for the relief of unemployment through joint cooperative action of the employes and the managements of the individual carriers."

Thom said the articles of the executives' association precluded its consideration of traffic, labor or publicity matter.

The "customary channels," it was said, would be for the labor group having contracts with individual carriers to approach the latter first. It were then desired that the matter be given broader consideration, the labor men and individual operators could take them up in regional groups.

Hoover Returns From Mountains

Three of President's Guests Return With Him at Noon Yesterday.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover arrived at the White House shortly after noon yesterday, after a week-end rest at his camp in the Virginia mountains.

Contrary to his usual custom of starting from the camp early in the morning, the President did not leave his camp until about 9 o'clock.

Only three of the President's guests returned with him. They were Thomas E. Campbell, chairman of the Civil Service Commission; Representative Free (Republican), California, and Will Irwin. The other guests, including Secretary and Mrs. Doak, already had returned.

24 Ordered Held In Strike Disorders

Mine Labor Organizers Accused of Violating Court Injunctions.

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 3.—Judge Allen B. Kittle, of the Taylor County Circuit Court, today issued writs against Nicholas Aielo and Frank Miley, organizers of the United Mine Workers of America, and 22 striking miners of Wendel, charging them with violating antitrespass injunctions.

The writs will be served at once by the sheriff, and those who fail to furnish bonds will be jailed. Aielo is charged with a fourth violation of an injunction issued for the Maryland Coal Co. at Wendel in 1925. Miley and three miners are charged with third offenses; four, with second offenses, and fifteen with first offenses.

Twenty-two Galloway miners have been arrested and jailed at Philippi in default of bonds for violating an old injunction of mining properties at Galloway, while writs have been issued for five others.

Dead Horse, Heat Victim, Is Left Lying on Bridge

Washington police were in a quandary last night as to the disposition of the body of a horse, which has lain on the Highway Bridge since early yesterday afternoon, after it had been shot by an officer of the Humane Society when it was overcome by the heat.

At a late hour last night the horse was still there, flanked on either side by red lanterns as a warning to motorists.

According to police, it is up to the District to move the body, but they "just haven't gotten around to it."

It will probably remain until after daylight for the District to "get around" to moving it.

First Steam Railway Line In Nation to Be Abandoned

(United Press.)

The first steam railroad line operated in the United States, a revolutionary development in its day, is to be abandoned as no longer useful in an age of vastly different transportation methods.

A coal shortage in Philadelphia after the War of 1812 led to the building of the Honesdale branch, in Pennsylvania. On August 8, 1929, an imported locomotive puffed its way over shaky tracks while country folk, gathered for the strange spectacle, ejaculated in amazement.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the Delaware & Hudson Railroad to abandon the line over which America's first locomotive was operated. Just as that line superseded the wagon and the canal boat, motor trucks have come in to make its further operation unprofitable.

The "Stourbridge Lion," as the first locomotive was called, is now in the Smithsonian Institution here as a relic of early railroading days. It was purchased from George Stephenson, British inventor, along with the "America," the "Delaware," and the "Hudson."

Two Philadelphians, William and Maurice Wurts, developed the railroad to haul anthracite coal from the mines. Locomotives were used over a 10-mile level stretch and stationary steam engines were used for upgrade hauls. The original rails were of wooden pieces capped with rolled iron strips and the "Stourbridge Lion" was forced into temporary idleness while the rails were strengthened.

The commission's abandonment authorization was for a 23-mile portion between Carbondale and Honesdale Junction. A four-mile section will be retained for switching in the vicinity of Carbondale.

Missouri Pacific Gets Right to Buy 65 Miles

(Associated Press.)

The Missouri Pacific Railroad was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday to acquire control of the Chester & Mount Vernon Railroad, operating from Chester to Mount Vernon, Ill. The road is about 65 miles long.

The Missouri Pacific owns all of the preferred stock and mortgage bonds of the line and yesterday's authorization gave it permission to purchase 2,000 shares of common stock owned by the Brinkley Coal Co. for a total of $196,060.

RENEWAL OF BERLIN CREDIT IS VOTED BY WORLD BANK

Franco-German understanding is not so improbable as pessimists picture it to be.

The argument advanced here is that France knew very well England would use this credit to freeze her short-term credits in Germany. In other words, France's agreement to participate in the English discount credit is taken as an indication of her willingness to help stabilize conditions in Germany at the same time that she is helping the Bank of England out of a tight place.

Gold Transfer Rumor Denied.

In some high places here it is insisted that the sudden withdrawal of $150,000,000 in gold from the Bank of England during the past two weeks and the transfer of this immense sum to France was not, as alleged, Machiavellian work on the part of France but was caused by the panicky feeling of Spanish and South American capitalists.

Far from causing withdrawals from London, France, according to these German officials, has come to the help of England and through her indirectly to the help of Germany, for France realized that hoarding too much gold in one place might so restrict the circulation of currency that only a new inflation could point the way out.

France, it is argued here, had its taste of inflation and wants no second one—not even in contiguous territory—and hence she now is willing to abandon her isolation, overlook her chagrin at the fact that England helped the Austrian Credit Anstalt, and to help put credit conditions of the world in order.

That J. P. Morgan's hand was a factor in fixing things up between England and France is taken for granted here.

A full monthly statement of the bank's position is expected to be issued tomorrow evening, and it was believed this would give some practical evidence of the effects of the Hoover moratorium.

RADIO DISRUPTION FEARED IN REPORT

Bar Committee Is Opposed to Restrictions of Allotments by Commission.

(Associated Press.)

Disruption of this country's radio communication system if certain broadcasting facilities are reserved for special interests or groups was forecast yesterday by a committee of the American Bar Association.

The committee, headed by Louis G. Caldwell, a former attorney for the Federal radio committee, prepared its report for submission to the bar association's convention in September.

Reviewing the year's trends in radio law, it opposed proposals to reform the American private development system and to legislate restrictions on allotment of facilities by the commission.

Besides Caldwell, the committee included William C. Green, counsel for the Senate interstate commerce committee; Cassius E. Gates, of Seattle, and John C. Kendall, of Portland, Oreg., a former judge.

Await Supreme Court Decisions.

Without commenting, the committee called attention to antimonopoly decision of the courts and the commission. It cited that the Supreme Court has not passed upon the constitutionality of the radio act nor on property rights of stations with respect to channels they occupy.

Outright repeal of the Davis amendment, under which facilities now are divided on a basis of population, was recommended.

Referring to a bill by Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, to place 15 per cent of the radio facilities at the disposal of educational enterprises, the committee asserted "no more formidable legislative issue faces the next Congress * * * than that raised by proposals to require the commission to set aside and reserve broadcasting facilities for particular groups or interests."

The committee forecast that broadcasting stations would come to be regarded "as a sort of public utility, not under a common carrier obligation like a telephone company, but under a public service obligation to deliver good program service."

Requirements of ess Bill.

The minimum consequences of enacting the Fess bill, the committee said, would be, on one hand, "putting out of existence about 30 stations on clear channels (most of them of high power representing large investments) and, at the other extreme, it would force the elimination of 240 local stations of 100 watts or less, plus about 50 regional stations of from 250 to 1,000 watts.

The American system of radio development was described as superior to the European.

Citing some overcommercialization, the committee said that remedies such as administrative regulation and restrictions on advertising "should be directed at the evil and not at the programs which in themselves are not a source of complaint and are vastly superior to those found in any other country."

Cunard Line to Reduce 1st Class Fares Aug. 17

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The Cunard Line today announced the reductions in first-class transatlantic steamship rates, partially described in cables from Europe a few days ago, would go into effect for eastbound sailings August 17, and for westbound sailings October 1.

Changes will also be effected on those dates in cabin and second cabin charges, and in third-class one-way and round-trip rates, the line announced.

Inquiry Is Rushed On Cigarette Price

Possible Violation of Anti-Trust Laws Being Checked.

(Associated Press.)

The Justice Department announced yesterday numerous complaints had been received about the almost simultaneous action of four major tobacco companies in increasing the price of popular brands of cigarettes and that the antitrust division was pushing its investigation.

Intimation that an inquiry was under way came from the department late last week, although no formal announcement was made. It was understood at that time that the antitrust division was acting upon its own initiative.

It was said officially yesterday, however, that nine complaints were received during July from dealers whose wholesale business was affected, one of them coming from the American Wholesale Grocers Association. Prices were raised about the same time by the American Tobacco Co., Liggett & Myers, the R. J. Reynolds and P. Lorillard Tobacco Companies.

Texas Wants Congress To Stabilize Money

Austin, Tex., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The House of the Texas Legislature today adopted a resolution asking President Hoover to call a special session of Congress to enact legislation to stabilize the national currency.

The resolution charged Congress had delegated control of the monetary system to selfish interests to the detriment of the people. The resolution urged that Congress reassume control.

Canadian Parliament Ends Second Session

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—To the booming of cannon and the fanfare of ceremony, the curtain was rung down today on the second session of the seventeenth Canadian Parliament.

A spirited debate on estimates of the agricultural department preceded the prorogation ceremonies, which ended a session that lasted almost five months.

MURRAY IS DRAFTING OIL SHUTDOWN EDICT

Prepares for Protest and Is Making Brief for U. S. Supreme Court.

Oklahoma City, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Apparently unaffected by the tense situation in Oklahoma's oil industry, Gov. W. H. Murray proceeded calmly with drafting a shutdown order for prorated wells that will include a brief of a test case on State rights for the United States Supreme Court.

Time, said the governor, no longer is an element in the crude shutdown controversy. He indicated the order might be forthcoming no earlier than tomorrow or Wednesday.

Meanwhile, many Oklahoma oil wells were wide open, some of them completing allowable production for August, the period for taking of which started Saturday morning. Previously the governor had given crude oil buyers until Saturday night to increase prices to $1 per barrel.

"I realize," the governor said, "that when I put out the order I will have to go to the Supreme Court of the United States and I want to be ready for it. The order will cite statutes and constitution by section and number and will name important cases bearing on the subject. I want to know just where I am going."

Attorneys for oil companies have challenged the governor's right to use the National Guard in enforcing his proposed order.

There was a rumor, however, that civil police authorities instead of the National Guard may be used for the order's enforcement.

(Associated Press.)

Department of the Interior officials yesterday were studying a request by Gov. Clark of Wyoming that the Governmnet set a price of $1 a barrel on oil produced on Government land in that State, but they were not optimistic that anything could be done about it.

Gov. Clark's request was telegraphed to Presidnet Hoover who referred it to the Interior Department. Acting Secretary Dixon said he could see no way for the Government to sell its oil if it set the price so far above the market rate.

The Interior Department is permitting operators on Government leases to close their wells if they can not make money, unless the wells would be ruined by idleness. This has been done, Dixon said, in numerour instances in Oklahoma where royalties accumulate principally to Indians.

ECONOMICAL AND EASY TO MAKE JAMS AND JELLIES

Don't let summer go by without putting up some preserves, jellies and jams. Your family will thank you and with every glass and jar you open next winter, you'll save real money. Sugar is being sold everywhere at a price that is unusually low, and bargains in fruit may be expected throughout the season.

There is a place in every meal for canned fruit of some sort. You can make economical desserts and salads with them that are wholesome and delicious. Jellies also make a taste-pleasing dessert when served with cream cheese and crackers. And when you have rice pudding, top each serving with a spoonful of jam.

Remember, too, that sweet relishes made of vegetables are delicious with meat and fish. Watch your fruit and vegetable market so you can take advantage of the bargain-day prices. Preserve with refined cane sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Fight on Autonomy In Catalonia Seen

Observers Predict Protest When Measure Comes Before Assembly.

Madrid, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Stiff opposition to autonomy for Catalonia when the measure comes before the National Assembly was predicted today by political observers.

Indications were the Catalonian deputies would try to obtain the support of Basque and Gallegan representatives, who have similar aspirations for their districts. Republicans and Socialists were expected to form the opposition.

The national government, under the San Sebastian pact, promised only to submit the Catalonian proposal to the Assembly and did not guarantee to approve it. Many persons believed a compromise would be tried. It was suggested that a statute granting autonomy to Catalonia might be made effective during a trial period.

New York City Ranks As Biggest Jewelry Mart

New York, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—About 25 per cent of all the jewelry sold in the United States is disposed of in and about New York, according to the census of distribution figures prepared by the Government.

There are 1,486 jewelry stores here that dispose of jewelry valued at $95,000,000 yearly. The bulk of sales are made in Manhattan.

Clark Trial Opens; Charge Is Murder

Wife of Attorney Accompanies Him to Court in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—David H. Clark, former deputy district attorney, who received more than 60,000 votes for municipal judge while he was in jail charged with a double murder, faced a crowded courtroom calmly today as his trial opened in one of the slayings, that of, Herbert P. Spencer.

Superior Judge Stanley Murray, of Madera County, was selected by Presiding Judge William Doran to try the case and at once took the bench.

Eight women and four men were tentatively seated in the jury box as Special Prosecutor Joseph Ford read the charge accusing Clark of the murder of Spencer, a former newspaperman.

Spencer and Charles Crawford, wealthy political boss, were found slain in Crawford's office in Hollywood last May 20. Mrs. Clark accompanied him to the courtroom. Clark is at liberty on $100,000 bail.

Standard Oil of Indiana Reduces Dividend to $1

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Standard Oil Co. of Indiana directors today placed the stock on a $1 annual basis against $2 previously by declaring a quarterly disbursement of 25 cents a share, payable September 15 to stockholders of record August 15.

Robert Moses Chosen To Aid in World's Fair

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Gov. Roosevelt today announced the appointment of Robert Moses, former Secretary of State, as a member of the commission to prepare and compose plans for New York State's participation in the World's Fair in Chicago in 1933.

The other members are State Senator Cosmo A. Cilano and Ralph A. Gamble.

King George Sees Drowning.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—King George witnessed a tragedy today when the second mate of his own yacht, Britannia, was swept overboard and drowned. The yacht with his majesty aboard was on the way to participate in the opening race of the Cowes Regatta.

"TOASTING" expels SHEEP-DIP BASE naturally (Black, biting, harsh irritant chemicals) present in every tobacco leaf

"They're out—so they can't be in!"

Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey—the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip*, as well as a powerful spraying solution for fruits, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

TOKYO FLIERS LAND; WILL NOT TRY AGAIN

Fog and Clouds Mar Vision of Helping Plane on Second Flight.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Reg L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones, Fort Worth, Tex., fliers who were forced down here on their second attempt at a nonstop refueling flight from Seattle to Tokyo, will not try the hop again, they said today.

After sleeping soundly for 5½ hours, but still showing the effects of their 27 hours in the air, the Texans were cheered to learn their refueling plane had landed at Ruby, Alaska, after they lost it in the fog early today.

Dropping their white monoplane Fort Worth through a hole in the clouds which covered a large part of the Yukon River Valley, Robbins and Jones landed here at 7:35 a. m. (12:35 p. m., E.S.T.), after almost 27 hours in the air since their take-off from Seattle early yesterday.

James M. Mattern and Nick Greener, pilots of their refueling plane, landed at Ruby, a settlement on the Yukon about half way between Fairbanks and Nome to take on additional gasoline after battling fogs and clouds which shrouded mountain passes and valleys leading into Unalakleet, on Norton Sound.

After they landed, the weather closed down completely and the fliers were unable to get off again. Meanwhile the Fort Worth cruised around through cloud and fog banks over the lower Yukon and, concluding the refueler had become lost, returned to Fairbanks and gave up their second nonstop Seattle-Tokyo attempt.

WORLD FLIERS DROP PLAN TO SET RECORD

porting the arrival, said one wing of the plane was damaged and the fliers were near exhaustion.

The field at Khabarovsk was muddy and rain continued. This condition was similar to that which held Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in the mire many hours at Blagoveschensk, west of here, when they set the world-encircling record of 8 days 15 hours and 51 minutes.

Utterly weary, the fliers remained on the field long enough to direct mechanics at work on plane repairs and then stumbled off to bed.

Amy Johnson Hops Off On Trip to Khabarovsk

Chita, Siberia, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Miss Amy Johnson, British woman flier en route from England to Tokyo, continued eastward today toward Khabarovsk. She departed at 9:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m. E. S. T.).

Karachi, India, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—John Mollison, attempting to set a record for flight from Australia to England, arrived today some 24 hours ahead of the record pace set by C. W. A. Scott. Mollison, an Australian, left Wyndam, in western Australia, at 1 a. m. last Wednesday. Scott's record is 10 days and 23 hours.

Soviet Body's Safe Is Opened by Police

Documents Reached After Torches Are Used in Argentina.

Buenos Aires, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Three men, working for five hours with torches, succeeded today in cutting open the safe of the Yuzhamtorg, Soviet South American trade organization, the headquarters of which was raided by police last week. An investigation of the contents was begun immediately.

Former Ambassador Pueyrredon and Dr. Mario Guido, who constituted the winning radical ticket in the recent elections in the Provnice of Buenos Aires, today disclaimed any responsibility for the activities of the Yuzhamtorg.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A judicial order of the court of instruction today ordered police to raid all Communist clubs in Montevideo and to confiscate all documents found in them. The order was believed to have been the result of the recent raid on the Yuzhamtorg headquarters in Buenos Aires.

Mississippi Votes At Primary Today

7,000 on Ticket as Campaign Is Ended in Flood of Oratory.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Mississippi's political campaign closed tonight in a flood of oratory as the candidates made their final appeal for votes in the Democratic primary tomorrow. The candidates are 7,000 in number, led by four seekers for the governor's seat.

While not a candidate, Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo took the spotlight of the final days by a bristling exchange with Senator Hubert Stephens. In two statements issued from his bed in Memphis, the senator criticized the governor, who had taken the field in support of the gubernatorial candidacy of George T. Mitchell, attorney general. The governor came back with a heated reply.

Gov. Bilbo, at Pontotoc today, ran into another candidate for governor, Mike S. Conner. They spoke five blocks apart and the voters had a field day as they trotted from speech to speech.

interesting for them by the spectacular play of Aurora Borealis.

"I just love the north," Mrs. Lindbergh confided to new friends today, and Col. Lindbergh seemed just as pleased with the early stages of the long vacation journey so carefully plotted by himself and his wife.

"We had a great sleep last night and feel much refreshed," said the colonel as he emerged from the cottage home of George D. Kydd, resident engineer of Canada's newest seaport. "A night's rest here is as good as a week in the south."

The colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were up at 6:30 a. m., had an early breakfast, and at 7 o'clock the famous airman, accompanied by Capt. A. Pentz and W. J. Carter, of the Dominion department of railways and canals, was taken to his plane at anchor in the harbor. He made a general inspection of the machine and supervised its refueling, assisted by mechanics of the railways department stationed here.

WILD WEST CIRCUS IS SEEN BY 17,000

Indians, Well Trained Horses Are Features of 101 Ranch Show.

A crowd estimated at 17,000 persons last night saw the 101 Ranch Show and Wild West Circus, featuring copper-skinned Indians and well-trained horses, at the Union Market Grounds at Fourth street and Florida avenue northeast.

All the glamous, shining costumes, spangles and elaborate cowboy outfits which have marked the show in the past, along with some new features, marked the presentation. Indians, Cossacks, Arabs and troops of cowboys and cowgirls came into the big top with a blaze of color and excited yelling for the opening act.

Leading the Western performers were Reckless Billy Keene and Claire Belcher, rodeo champions, and Chief Wolf Mule and Chief You Shoot 'Em, as heads of the bands of Sioux, Cheyenne and Seminole Indians. It was apparent, from their yells, that the vanishing American is still here and likely to stay as long as there is a Wild West show to dress up for.

The performance last night closed the show's first day in town, which opened with a spectacular parade winding through 7 miles of Washington streets, largely in the residential sections. There was a matinee yesterday afternoon, as there will be today, with the concluding show tonight.

Capt. Mike Raedy, commander of the Ninth Precinct, with twenty of his men, handled the flow of traffic that swarmed through the streets neighboring on the show grounds.

The Indians in the show will be presented to Vice President Curtis at 9:30 o'clock this morning in his office in the Senate Office Building, by Mrs. N. S. Acker, of Washington. She, like the Vice President, is of Indian descent, and as a child was a protege of the late Col. Joe Miller, of Oklahoma, one of the founders of the 101 Ranch and the show bearing its name.

CUT IN COAL COSTS IS URGED IN BRITAIN

Miners' Commission Plan May Involve Dismissal of 100,000 Workers.

London, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Reduction of costs in the coal industry, possibly involving dismissal of 100,000 miners, was recommended by the coal miners' reorganization commission today as part of Britain's nation-wide economy movement. The report forecasts division of the nation's coal fields into six major geographical units, with only one colliery in each.

"The vital need is that costs be reduced by concentration of productive efforts," the report said. "More pits ought to work to fuller capacity, while some ought to cease altogether.

"The day of easy supremacy is gone. The supply exceeds the demand, and costs have increased by part-time work by miners. Unrestricted competition by many hundreds of independent units was well enough when we had things all our own way, but is positively self-destructive today."

The economy campaign in the coal industry reflects the government's efforts toward reduction of all expenditures to strengthen the budget. Conservative newspapers said that the government declaration on economy last week had left the pound sterling in a much weaker position on the exchange markets because of fear that the Labor government would not be able to balance the budget.

Foster Mother's Killing Laid to Boy

Youth, 15, Accused of Death Because She Opposed His Leaving.

Savannah, Mo., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Robert Deaton, 15, was charged with first-degree murder after he was quoted by Sheriff Harold Holt as confessing he killed his foster mother today with a piece of pipe and an ice pick, and considered slaying his foster father. Sheriff Holt said the youth fatally beat and stabbed Mrs. Anna Deaton in the basement of the Deatons' farm home because he thought she opposed his desire to go to Chicago and "see things."

The youth, who was adopted by the Deatons from a foundling home at St. Joseph, Mo., when he was 4 years old, was said by Sheriff Holt to have related he enticed Mrs. Deaton to the basement by telling her a jar of jam had spilled.

He was alleged to have plotted the slaying after returning home from church last night, where he was to have led a Christian Endeavor meeting. It was not held because of muddy roads.

Hawks, Post, Gatty at Wheeling.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Capt. Frank M. Hawks, flying from Auburn, Me., arrived here at 2:05 E. S. T., today, ten minutes after Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, 'round-the-world fliers, arrived from Cincinnati, Ohio. The aviators were guests at a banquet tonight.

AIRMEN AT ISTANBUL TO FLY TO CALCUTTA

Boardman and Polando Plan 3,750-Mile Flight Later in Week.

Istanbul, Turkey, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—A nonstop flight along the treacherous 3,750-mile route from Istanbul to Calcutta was planned today by Russell Boardman and John Polando, holders of the world distance record.

Although the New York-to-Istanbul fliers had not definitely decided on the route of their new air adventure, Boardman said they were making arrangements to leave with their monoplane heavily loaded and hoped to reach the Bay of Bengal without a stop.

Later they would continue on a Far Eastern air tour, visiting Tokyo and perhaps continuing home along the Northern Pacific route.

Boardman examined the runway at Yechilkeuy, where the Cape Cod landed from New York, and decided that it would be impossible to get into the air with a heavy load from that field. He said he and Polando probably would fly to Eskicheyir on Thursday and start for Calcutta on Friday. The facilities there are better than at Yechilkeuy.

The flight to Calcutta would be over a difficult route, particularly on the last stage. The American fliers would encounter extremely warm weather on the hop of about 2,400 miles over Asia Minor and Persia. They also would be faced with the danger of landing in desolate desert regions where hostile tribesmen occasionally molest foreigners.

The last 1,300 miles of the flight would carry them over India, where they would find few suitable clearings for a forced landing, should their fuel run low.

The flight to Calcutta would not be as long as the New York-Istanbul journey, but it would include stages as dangerous as their trip over the North Atlantic.

The fliers were guests on President Mustapha Kemal's yacht over the week-end. The president received them at Yalova, where they were accompanied by American Ambassador Joseph Grew.

Navy Denies Using Foreign Tobaccos

Letter Declares Cigars for Service Men Made in America.

(Associated Press.)

A protest from American cigar manufacturers against the purchase of foreign made cigars by the Navy has been answered by the department with a statement that all those bought in this country by the Navy are of United States manufacture.

The letter, addressed to John H. Duys, of New York, president of the Associated Cigar Manufacturers and Leaf Tobacco Dealers, pointed out that under the 1932 appropriation act the Navy was required to purchase its supplies for home consumption in the United States unless the difference in cost was "unreasonable."

Two Soldiers Held On Several Counts

Civilian Also Accused in Disturbance at Upper Marlboro.

As the result of a "night out," two Fort Washington soldiers and a civilian are in jail at Upper Marlboro and may have to face serious charges.

The two soldiers, William Mahoney and Francis Sealock, are alleged to have started a dispute at the store of Mrs. Ida Sansbury, at Sunnybrook, Md., and to have thrown cantaloupes about, one of them striking Mrs. Sansbury. The soldiers then met LeRoy Icenhour at a nearby speakeasy, police allege, and the latter was chasing the soldiers with a shotgun at the time they were arrested by county police.

Sealock is charged with assault and battery, disorderly conduct and driving an automobile while intoxicated; Mahoney with assault and battery and disorderly conduct. They were held for action of the county police court by Justice of the Peace Horace Taylor, of Upper Marlboro.

Jalisco State Officials Close Catholic School

Mexico City, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Catholic Church authorities here were advised today of the closing of the Catholic College at Atemsjac de Brizuelas, Jalisco State, by the local authorities on charges that the college gave religious instruction in violation of the law which confines such teaching to the churches themselves.

Russian Avers Worst Thing He Saw on Trip Was Capital

Boris Pilnyak, Wealthy Soviet Writer, Ends Tour in Ford and Says Capital Is America's Most Definite Link With European Culture.

New York, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Boris Pilnyak, the Sinclair Lewis of Russian novelists, sailed away tonight on the Bremen after five months in the United States, admitting that virtually all he learned over here was "Okay," "Oh yeah" and "Whoopee."

Every time Pilnyak raises his glass he says "whoopee." He thinks it is a toast. When asked to define it, he said, through his interpreter, "It means that the soul is rejoicing."

The worst thing he saw, while he was in America touring the country in a Ford which he intends to take home with him, was the City of Washington, he said. Washington, he believes, is our most definite link with European culture. New York and Chicago are American cities, but not Washington.

Having crossed the continent with plenty of time to look around, Pilnyak feels that American cities need to be classified under three categories.

1. Industrial cities, dear to his Soviet heart: New York, Chicago, Detroit and Birmingham.

2. City-villages, as he calls them: Moscow, Ill.; Flagstaff, Ari.; Shreveport, La.; Charleston, W. Va., and Akron, Ohio.

3. Spanish-American cities (he considers these more important than the second classification): New Orleans, Santa Fe, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles.

He had a look at Boston, and he thinks that Boston represents the seventeenth century in America more than any other city.

Pilnyak is the richest man in Russia, according to popular legend, and he did not deny the appellation today. Writers in Soviet Russia, he admitted, don't have to kick in like merchants—only 20 per cent of their earnings, and since Pilnyak's earnings are equivalent to those of Rex Beach or Zane Grey, he is considered very, very rich in the Soviet money.

SHORTER WORKING HOURS.

Shorter working hours are being considered in many quarters as a cure for unemployment. Secretary of Labor Doak has reiterated his stand in favor of a five-day week and a six-hour working day. The American Federation of Labor is conducting a campaign for shorter hours. Recently a number of men in public life, including Senator Watson, Republican floor leader in the Senate, have expressed themselves in favor of dividing available jobs among a greater number of workmen.

It is unfortunate that this problem is being considered under the stress of hard times. The ideal balance between work and leisure, between productive capacity and purchasing power and between fatigue and efficiency has not been established. Shorter working hours are being advocated chiefly because several million men have no jobs at all, and there is a growing conviction that what work is available ought to be distributed more equitably. If the average working day should be trimmed from eight to six hours or the working week from six to five days to meet this emergency it might have little effect upon the ultimate decision of how long the average man should work.

In some instances the shorter week has worked well. One large company in Michigan put its men on a six-hour basis and found that their efficiency was substantially increased. Hourly production was stimulated to the extent that some of the employes earned more on piece work in six hours than they had done in eight. Since this concern ran four shifts per day instead of three its total output was considerably increased and the overhead was spread over a larger number of units. Now it operates on the theory of shorter hours for men and longer hours for machines.

In other instances the shorter week has not proved so successful. Each industry must decide the question according to its own needs.

One consideration is vital, however. If industry should shift to the five-day week or the six-hour day during this period of hard times, what will happen when prosperity returns? Perhaps there will be more work available within a few years than all the workmen of the country can do in six hours a day. In that event there would be a demand for lowering the immigration bars. More extensive use of labor-saving machinery would be encouraged. Then another period of hard times might bring about demands for five-hour days and four-day weeks. Working men would begin to suffer from the application of their own theory.

It might seem advantageous for industry to allow the number of working hours to fluctuate in accordance with the demand for labor. But that would be an extremely difficult undertaking in view of the rigid agreements between employers and labor unions. The solution of the problem is by no means clear. In all probability it will not be worked out on a theoretical basis but will be solved automatically by the adjustment of wages to productive capacity. The important thing after all is to maintain purchasing power at a point where the people will be able to consume all that is produced whether men work six or eight hours a day.

REBEL REVERSES IN CHINA.

The situation in northern China has apparently changed to the decided advantage of the Nanking Nationalists. Gen. Shih Yu-San, who last week defeated the Manchurians and was preparing a southern advance, has been virtually surrounded and, according to Shanghai advices, is suing for peace. The retreating national armies, heavily reinforced, returned to confront the rebels with a force of 250,000 men, and were able to turn the fortunes of war in short order.

Floods on the Yangtze River have added to the never-ending troubles of China. Many thousands of refugees have crowded into Hankow and Rear Admiral Williams sends word that virtually all dikes between Changsha and Hankow have been broken, flooding the country back to the foothills, drowning many and ruining all crops. Relief for this area adds one more burden to the already heavily laden National government, which is occupied with campaigns against the menace of red armies and opposition forces from both north and south.

Opponents of the Nationalists, not content with their mass attacks, evidently are singling out officials for special attention. The recent attempt to assassinate Finance Minister Soong at Shanghai has now been followed by an attack upon President Chiang Kai-shek himself. He was fired upon from ambush at Nanchang but escaped. The southern insurgents are apparently adopting western gangland methods of disposing of their political and military opponents.

The surprising reversal of conditions in the north has increased the prestige of Nanking immensely. It is prophesied that not only minor movements against the government may subside, but that even the leaders of the Canton rebellion, seeing the large forces that can be sent against them, may decide to sue for a peaceful settlement.

BERNARD THE RED.

That rollicking Socialist, George Bernard Shaw, is back again in London after a hurried visit to Moscow. His sojourn in the land of the Soviets was like a dream of peace. Everything was made delightful for him. The Soviet put its best foot forward on every occasion. In this marvelous land of bolshevism George Bernard pretends to see the answer to his dreams.

It is notable, however, that during all these years of experimentation in the Soviet the distinguished Irish novelist has been content to take his communism in theory only. When he was finally induced to make a short excursion into the "land of hope" he remained only a few days and then rushed back to "our Western countries of despair." Of course, he found it was "torture to get back," but that does not alter the fact that he lost no time in returning to civilization. Mr. Shaw makes no reservations in his lavish praise of the Soviet, but his actions seem to betray a feeling that bolshevism is all right so long as it is confined to the peasants of Russia.

Moreover, this Simon-pure Socialist has ventured to lend his indorsement to the Soviet at a time when communism is being rapidly abandoned in favor of state capitalism. A few weeks ago Joseph Stalin proclaimed a policy of unequal wages and special rewards for skilled workers. Now he has introduced a bonus system in the cattle-raising campaign. The dictatorship is appealing to the peasants on exactly the same basis as a manager of a great organization appeals to employes under the capitalistic system. Efficiency, hard work and careful planning will bring special rewards. No successful economic civilization has been built up on any other basis. But this arrangement is in direct contravention to the ideals of communism, which contemplate that each individual shall contribute to the community according to his ability and be rewarded according to his needs.

It is not to be supposed that the Soviet officials who entertained Mr. Shaw would take the trouble to point out how they have abandoned the impractical ideas which he cherishes. Perhaps Mr. Shaw purposely cut his visit short so that these ugly facts would not be forced upon his attention to spoil his Pollyanna dream of a delightful new civilization. Mr. Shaw is somewhat advanced in years to suffer such an overwhelming disillusionment.

In view of these facts, Mr. Shaw's flippant remarks about all other nations "playing the fool" take on an air of whistling to keep his courage up. All his life he has loved to shock people. When communism may be seen crumbling before his eyes, giving way to a system of capitalistic slavery, the necessity for saying shocking things becomes still more imperative.

A GENERAL SURVEY.

The Commission on Law Enforcement has proved to be very adept at handing down general indictments. It has ranged over the whole field of law enforcement, pointing out the defects. Prisons of the country were found to be antiquated and inefficient. Court procedure was pronounced cumbersome. Prosecuting attorneys were criticized for taking too much authority into their own hands. Now the commission has brought a sweeping indictment against police forces.

George W. Wickersham, chairman of the now-disorganized commission, found it advisable to express regrets to Sanford Bates, superintendent of Federal prisons, because the commission had not taken proper note of the recent reforms in Federal penal institutions. The report on prisons spoke in general terms. It condemned the prison system and ignored many instances in which the abuses complained of have been corrected.

The most recent report pronounces police forces a "general failure." Charges of graft, incompetence, collusion between underworld gangs and corrupt politicians run through the report. Yet the commission admits that some police departments are functioning very well. The public can not refrain from asking specifically where does this corruption exist? Who are the corrupt politicians?

The commission has painted on a large canvas with broad strokes. It was, of course, impossible for the commission to make detailed investigations of law enforcement conditions in all parts of the country and to point out to each locality what its deficiencies are. Its function has been to lay a broad groundwork on which each State and each community can judge its own administration of justice. Those who have depended upon the Law Enforcement Commission to solve the crime problems of the country will be disappointed. With each new report it becomes more apparent that Mr. Wickersham and his associates have given the country only a general background of conditions. Individual States, communities and institutions must supply the details, but they should find the commission's conclusions a valuable guide.

EXCESSIVE AUTO TAXES.

The rising level of taxation aimed at the automobile has about reached the traditional limit of "all the traffic will bear." In some States it appears already to have exceeded that limit. Florida, for example, has this year increased its tax on gasoline to 7 cents a gallon. The resentment shown by tourists and residents near enough the border to patronize vendors in adjacent States may result in an actual loss of revenue from this source. South Carolina and Georgia exact a 6-cent tax.

The general increase in the gasoline tax throughout the Nation this year will average between 1 and 2 cents a gallon. A survey of the situation recently completed by the American Automobile Association shows that the various taxes assessed against motorists in this form and as registration fees and personal assessments amount to nearly 20 per cent of the value of all cars. No other item in such general use is taxed to compare with this. The revenue paid by car owners today in one way or another exceeds $1,000,000,000, or one-fourth the amount of the Federal budget. Automobile owners and oil interests are being urged to organize for protection against the menace of constantly rising imposts.

The District of Columbia remains one of the few political units still taxing gasoline at the rate of 2 cents a gallon. Others are New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Mississippi. States that charge 5 cents are Alabama, Arkansas, Idaho, Kentucky, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia. Dealers in high-tax States complain that near the border of a low-tax State it is necessary for them to pay the difference in taxes in order to retain trade.

The gasoline tax, in addition to other burdens put upon automobile owners, was originally intended to provide funds for the improvement and extension of highways. Today it is being extended to secure income for all kinds of general uses. It is an antiquated idea that loading taxes upon the automobile is taking money from the rich. The motor car is no longer a luxury in this country. It has become every man's vehicle. With more than 26,000,000 cars operating in the United States, there is one for every family. They are as necessary for every-day use to millions of working men as they are to the few millionaires. In the early days of the automobile it was a luxury because of excessive costs. It should not now be made a luxury through undue taxation.

JACKSON'S LETTERS

From the New York Times.

In the fifth volume of the "Correspondence of Andrew Jackson," published by the Carnegie Institution of Washington, it is remarked by Dr. Jameson in the preface that it is the family letters—clearly the "products of the President's unaided pen"—that represent the actual "quality, furnishings and functioning of his mind." The literary gifts and powers of expression of his advisers, manifest in some of his correspondence in matters of state, did not touch these letters, some 60 or 70 in number. No secretary revised their spelling and punctuation. They are as he wrote them with his own hand, and give us "attractive and affecting glimpses" of the weary, harassed President, of impaired health and lonely, "seeking consolation in the love of a family to whom he had endeared himself by every evidence of paternal consideration, gentleness and warm affection."

The volume begins with a letter dated January 2, 1833, to "My dear Sarah" (the wife of his adopted son) which finds him "left alone," for everybody had gone to hear Mr. Benton replying to Mr. Clay in the Senate and Col. Polk to Mr. McDuffie in the House. He sends a "breast pin" as a New Year's gift, having nothing better that could be conveyed by mail, with a kiss for his "dear little Rachel," his infant granddaughter, whom no succeeding letter fails to mention in an affectionate manner. On one occasion, ill himself—too ill to go to church—and seeking to get rid of his trouble by putting on a "medicated Hare skin" for such complaints as "Astma * * * dispyspepsia, &c.," he forgets his own pain in his delight that little Rachel is in improved health and has cut two teeth. But, he adds:

"Whilst we are thankful for the gift of this charming child let us not forget how thankful we ought to be to Him who gave her, and how earnest we ought to supplicate a throne of grace for her preservation and that she may live to become an ornament to society, and a true deciple of her blessed saviour."

In every letter to his son, the father of Rachel, there is also the concern about practical affairs at Hermitage; the proper caring for the slaves, the planting, the saving of seed for the next year, the selling of cotton, the breeding of horses, and above all the meeting of obligations. In the midst of his second term, being painfully ill and his life "uncertain," Jackson urges the son to shun "dissapation" and especially "intoxication which reduces the human being below that of a brute." But "nothing can be more disgraceful * * * than the charge truly made that he has promised to pay money at a day certain, and violating his promise." "Buy nothing on credit" was also a frequent injunction.

For the burning of Hermitage he imputed neglect to no one and met it as "an act of providence." "It was he that gave me the means to build it, and he has the right to destroy it and blessed be his name." And Jackson straightway sends orders for "Scantlin and Brick" with which to begin the repairs. But most striking of all is his "hasty and laconic reply" to give peace of mind to the grandmother of the writer of a letter:

"I was brought up a Presbeterian to which I have always adhered [though he did not join the church till his retirement to the 'shades of private life,' knowing that scoffers would say that he had done it for political effect]. * * * Charity is the real basis of all religion. * * * We ought to consider all good Christians whose walks correspond with their profession, be him Presbeterian, Episcopalian, Baptist, methodist or Roman Catholic. Let it be remembered by your grandmother that no established religion can exist under our glorious constitution."

He was too weak to copy the last letter that he wrote before the day that ended his "official carier forever" and the next letter, written a few days later, makes clear that he has for the time being forgotten all else in his concern for his very sick little granddaughter, Rachal Jackson.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

A THOUGHT.

Perhaps we've wandered far from what God meant
And planned these lives of ours to be—
Made ourselves slaves instead of staying free,
And sowed the world with crops of discontent.
With every year new trifles we invent,
Which not to own is labeled poverty,
Increasing thus the stream of misery
'Gainst which our strength and courage must be spent.
Fortune and fame and pride vexations make,
If we were wise enough these lures to scorn,
Perhaps our hearts would not so often ache;
There might be less to fret about and mourn.
Seeking too much may be mankind's mistake!

The Muzhik Thinks There Is No Honesty Because He Has None Himself

By ROBERT QUILLEN

NUMEROUS popular and pseudo-scientific writers in America and other lands inform the world that romantic love is a thing of the past.

The world has gone to school and gained new freedom, and now it sees in the mating of sexes no more than a biological necessity!

The grand passion that once inspired poets has gone the way of Santa Claus and fairies!

Such writing has value only as biography.

The writers unwittingly make confession.

They see no sweetness in grapes beyond their reach.

They are old men, no longer capable of love, who judge the fires of youth by their own cold ashes; or they are young men, made cynical by a little knowledge, who doubt the existence of rose petals because their own experience has been limited to thorns.

Bernard Shaw recently expressed the opinion that modern women lack the charm possessed by women in his youth.

Doubtless he also finds moonlight less bewitching than it was 40 years ago—and green peaches less appetizing.

Age and inexperience seem equally absurd when they use themselves as standards to measure one another.

Times and conditions have changed, but human nature has not. "In the old days," says Hindus, "women lived chiefly and almost solely for the fulfillment of their love. They thought, talked, dreamed of it perpetually, because they had so little else to talk, dream and become excited about. But the precious day is dead."

It may be dead in the Hindus set, but it isn't elsewhere.

Little girls in their teens still go "boy crazy." Adolescent boys still stand in the protecting shadow of trees and gaze soulfully at the chamber window of their beloved. Older lads and lasses in countless number block and enrage Sunday traffic as they snuggle together in creeping cars, oblivious of the world. Everybody young enough, free enough and fortunate enough is holding hands, cooing endearments and pledging eternal loyalty.

Love—romantic, tender, thrilling love—is too deep-rooted in the human cosmos to be disturbed by the follies or fads of a generation.

The burned-out oldsters and unthawed youngsters incapable of loving or winning love may be unaffected by moonlight, poetry and sunsets, but the world is full of lovers still.

If a man has no ear for music, what right has he to judge the world's melodies?

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Minneapolis Journal.

More than 96,000 aliens, it is announced, were denied visas that would have admitted them to the United States, in a period of five months. They were barred as immigrants because they were deemed likely to become public charges. The rule was put in force at the direction of President Hoover, as a measure opposed to unemployment. From 21 countries whose immigration quotas total 149,466, only 10,277 permits were issued—an under issue of 86 per cent.

Thus the administration of the immigration law is operating to protect American labor. As it stands today, this limitation is optional; that is, the rule might be suspended in other times. The rule is applied through the Department of State, consuls in quota countries withholding the visas.

This optional angle is criticized by the head of the House committee on immigration, Representative Johnson, of Washington. He declares it leaves the matter subject to administrative latitude, where it should be a requirement of specific law. It is his purpose to press for amendment of the immigration law at the next session of Congress, reducing the quota total by 90 per cent or thereabouts—which is about the reduction effected by applying the rule against persons likely to become public charges.

Hawes in the Philippines.

New York Herald Tribune.

On the heels of that notorious parade at Manila in which American women and children were stoned, Senator Harry B. Hawes continues his efforts to turn Filipinos against the American flag. Addressing the Manila Legislature, he urged a "united front" in the Philippines for separation from the United States. The increase in taxes and loss of trade which would be among the many calamitous results that would follow independence were mentioned by Senator Hawes, but in a very casual fashion.

Thus does Senator Hawes conclude his Philippine visit. Instead of telling the Filipinos that true freedom can be achieved only through economic development, he dwells on all that is most harmful and most unreal. He would be a remarkable sight if only because he represents the demagogue's art at its most typical stage. He is an even more extrordinary spectacle because, as a United States senator, he is actively devoting himself to undermining that government of which he is a member.

Gov. Ritchie's Advice.

Brooklyn Citizen.

Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, who is regarded as a contender for the Democratic Presidential nomination feels that measures should be taken at once by industry to meet another similar crisis which is bound to come. He is opposed to Government unemployment insurance, such as prevails in England, Germany and France, and he is equally opposed to the "dole" system as it exists in England.

He, therefore, recommends that industry itself take the matter in hand and warns the business world that unless it does so, public sentiment will compel the Government to intervene, which would be, in his opinion, a disaster both for the taxpaying public and the business world.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Postoffice Is Criticized for Allowing Policital Influence to Interfere With Seniority Rule.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Washington Postoffice cut a big cake which proved to be a disappointment when it was found to contain too much of an ingredient called favoritism. This metaphor is applicable to the fact that 30 special clerkships were distributed to as many clerks, only three of which were awarded to men who have had 20 or more years in the service, the remainder being given to younger men with shorter periods of service and no higher ratings.

One glaring instance was the promotion of a clerk with fourteen years of service over the heads of five deserving and faithful men who have given the best of their years and efforts to the postoffice work. The local office through its executive officials would make it appear that they are giving good service with the greatest possible speed, but instead they are putting into practice a system which destroys initiative and honest endeavor. It is not reasonable to believe that men will strive for something they can not obtain, however efficient they may be, unless they have the aid of some one outside of the classified service. Diligent inquiry has disclosed the fact that in most of the large postoffices throughout the country the seniority rule is adhered to more strictly, always providing of course that the individuals keep up to a certain mark of efficiency.

From the same sources I learn that in various places within the postoffice placards are posted which in substance read thus: "Employes are advised and cautioned not to seek outside influences to secure promotions or special assignments. That instead of helping them this will weaken their cause. All will be dealt with solely upon merit." Notwithstanding this, more than two-thirds of the special clerkships that have been bestowed in the last twelve years were upon those who had intermediaries soliciting these favors. When the principle of the square deal is applied then will the business men and other taxpaying citizens of the Nation's Capital get real service.

British Reader Thinks United States Would Be Benefited by Paying Europe's Debts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When I was in Berlin, in the summer of 1928, I was informed that Germany was paying its reparations with borrowed money, and that this would end in national bankruptcy, within three years. I believe that my informant had inside information.

The recent meeting of European and American statesmen, in London, does not seem to have arrived at a solution of this very serious danger of Germany's threatened bankruptcy—a bankruptcy which would probably be followed by a revolution and bring ruin to the rest of Europe.

Does it not seem logical to state that the only way to save the German Reich from financial collapse would be to cancel the reparations entirely, having previously canceled all of the international war debts?

I believe that such enlightened action would benefit the United States of America, equally with Europe, and the rest of the world.

If I remember rightly, this mutual cancellation of all war debts and reparations was proposed, many years ago, by Lord Balfour.

Why Are Cigarette Prices Advanced, Consumer Asks, When Tobacco Is Plentiful and Prices for the Raw Product Are Low?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Noticing an article in your paper about the investigation of four of the leading manufacturers of cigarettes, I am led to write a few remarks from a user of one of the brands.

Why should the price of cigarettes be raised at all, whether in concert or curiously coincidental, or any other way? Passing through both manufacturing and agricultural tobacco countries one sees rows upon rows of stored tobacco, plenty of it. The fields are yielding abundantly and the price of raw tobacco is astonishingly low. Yet up goes the price of the finished product! Why? There is no decrease in the consumption of cigarettes. In fact, there are more users now than ever. There has been no increase in wages in the manufacturing plants, so where is there any justification for a raise in prices? It looks like exploitation to me.

The closest parallel to this new raise is the long distance between the price of wheat and the price of bread. We, the users, who are "stuck" with these higher prices would like to know why? J. B. VERNER.

Virginia Democrat Denounces Senator McKellar for His Attack on President Hoover's Plan to Aid Germany.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Misrepresenting Facts," in the issue of July 30, expresses just about what 99 per cent of the Democrats of this country think of Senator McKellar's recent blast regarding the efforts of President Hoover in extending aid to Germany. Such reasoning as that which emanated from the senator is not at all surprising to those of us who remember a great many of his past utterances which were equally as illogical and unreasonable. But it should not for a moment be even inferred that his views on this or any other subject of moment are shared by any substantial number of Democrats.

If the senator's recent utterances were typical of the leaders in the Democratic party, that party would die a natural death in less than a week because the American people will not tolerate such bunk.

STRONG DRY PLANKS SEEN BY W. C. T. U

Prediction for Both Parties for 1932 Made; Wet Drives Held Failure.

(Associated Press.)

The prediction that both Republican and Democratic parties would be strongly dry in the 1932 campaigns if political leaders heed the results of the wet drive in State Legislatures this year was made yesterday in a statement by the National Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Another statement by Dr. Eugene L. Crawford, secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Social Service, said:

"The church people of the South, and especially the membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, do not intend to abandon for the 1932 campaign those principles to which they have adhered through many decades.

Will Cooperate.

"This board and the constituency which it represents plan to be entirely consistent with their past records in their cooperation with the W. C. T. U. and the Antisaloon League and with other temperance groups representing the various churches in all proper and necessary action for the support of the eighteenth amendment and for its enforcement by the legally constituted authorities."

The W. C. T. U. statement declared that the campaign "to smash prohibition, State by State," in the Legislatures, "is a fizzle."

"The fate of the wet drive this year," it continued, "convinces the W. C. T. U. that political misfortune lurks in repeal or modification.

Wet Proposals Rejected.

"Nearly 7,000 State Legislators, fresh from the people, met this year, considered 115 wet measures, and adjourned without modifying or repealing one line of any prohibition law. The only successful wet measures were eleven in number, from six States, calling for referenda on the eighteenth amendment, or asking Congress to call constitutional conventions. They are indirect and nonmandatory, have no effect on existing law, and afford meager promise to wet leaders.

"New York is responsible for five of these eleven gestures, the remaining half-dozen coming from the five States of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and Wyoming."

It added the wet drive appeared to the W. C. T. U. to have "turned in to a device for staging nonmandatory smoke screen referenda under which small time politicians can run for office and avoid discussing their real qualifications.

year the number of passengers carried by each railway fell 6,526,652 as compared to the corresponding period last year. The difference in the rate of fare, however, brought about a slight increase in revenue.

Nevertheless, the rate of return of the Capital Traction Co. on a valuation which the railway officials contend is too low was only 3.87 per cent last year, while that of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. on an even lower valuation was 4.73 per cent.

Both of the lines have many cars that are quarter of a century old or older and admittedly obsolete, and yet their officials say they are unable to replace them.

Valuations Being Made

Valuations of both companies are being made by the Public Utilities Commission and are scheduled to be completed by the end of this year. The last previous rate basis was set by Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District Supreme Court, when the latter permitted the fare increase.

This valuation for the Captial Traction Co. as of December 31, 1926, was $25,726,683, computed on the basis of a valuation given by the Court of Appeals on January 1, 1925, plus net additions and betterments.

For the valuation of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. the court set only $17,236,409 as of December 31, 1921, although it has more property than the Capital Traction Co., based on a Public Utilities Commission valuation of June 30, 1919, plus additions and betterments. The Washington Railway & Electric Co. contended in its bill of complaint in the school fare case, however, that its actual valuation is in excess of $30,000,000. The 1919 valuation, it was asserted, was based on prewar costs, and therefore unfair.

The Washington Railway & Electric Co. is controlled by the North American Co. and in turn owns the Potomac Electric Power Co. The Capital Traction Co. is locally owned as far as is known.

Mr. Shipe denied emphatically that his clients are the North American Co. or are associated with that holding company. He likewise stated that the Potomac Electric Power Co. would not be entered in the deal.

Chinese Wife's Citizenship Restored by Capital Court

Mrs. Ying Lu Kiang Regains Rights Lost in Marriage 11 Years Ago.

Favorable action by the District Supreme Court yesterday on the petition of Mrs. Lillian Ying Lu Kiang, American-born woman of Chinese ancestry, for restoration of her American citizenship, lost by her marriage to a Chinese national, marked the first administration of the recently enacted Cable act in the District. The Cable act provides for the retaining or restoration of citizenship status previously lost by women of American birth marrying aliens.

Mrs. Kiang, who is the wife of Dr. Kiang Kanghu, noted Chinese scholar and head of the department of Chinese studies at McGill University, Montreal, came to Washington several days ago to be present when her petition was passed upon by the court. She is a member of the National Woman's party and is stopping at the Alva Belmont House of that organization here. A small daughter, Phoenix, accompanied Mrs. Kiang here, and they will return to Montreal in a few days.

Born in San Francisco, in 1898, and educated in the public schools and Teacher's College there, Mrs. Kiang married Dr. Kiang in 1920. With her wedding to the Chinese scholar, who was then connected with the Library of Congress, in a research capacity, Mrs. Kiang automatically lost her American status under prevailing citizenship laws.

Not only is Mrs. Kiang the first woman to regain her citizenship in the District under the Cable act, but she is one of the few women who have taken advantage of the new act throughout the nation. National Woman's Party officials believe she is the first American woman of Chinese blood to petition for the benefits of the new law.

The Woman's Party officials last night pointed out that Mrs. Kiang's case is an example of the removal of a particular drawback of previous laws which took away the citizenship of women in the status of the scholar's wife, who married men of their own race.

Hunting Knives Found Strapped to Prisoners

Chicago, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Hunting knives were found strapped to the legs of two Georgia bandits today just before they were turned over to Superintendent B. H. Bunaway, of Milledgeville, Ga., State prison.

How the prisoners, Leland Harvey, 26, and J. B. Rowland, 25, came into possession of the weapons was a mystery. The knives had 5-inch blades and the desperate convicts, facing imprisonment for long terms upon their return to the Southern penitentiary from which they escaped July 15, might have slashed their way to freedom had they not been detected.

IMMIGRATION TOTAL LOWEST SINCE 1865

New Restrictions Affect All Nationalities; Deportations Show Increase.

(United Press.)

The smallest influx of foreigners since Civil War days was recorded during the last fiscal year, Harry E. Hill, Commissioner General of Immigration, announced yesterday. Immigrants totaled only 97,139, the first time since 1865 that entries have fallen below the 100,000 mark.

This drop, largely due to new restrictions, was reflected in entrants of every major nationality. Immigration from Europe as a whole dropped from 147,438 to 61,909 as compared with the previous fiscal year. British immigrants decreased 70.6 per cent, German 60.8 per cent, and Italians 40 per cent. Canadian and Mexican immigration declined nearly two-thirds and three-fourths, respectively. Immigration from Canada dropped from 63,502 to 21,687 and from Mexico 12,703 to 3,333.

A substantial exodus of aliens was also recorded during the June, 1930, to June, 1931, period. During May and June departures exceeded arrivals.

Deportations, Hull said, also reached a high-water mark during the 1931 fiscal year. A total of 18,142 aliens were deported, an increase of 1,811 over the fiscal year 1930. Mexico led in deportees with 8,409. A total of 6,162 aliens were returned to Europe, 2,276 to Canada, and 710 to Asia.

President Hoover's order to apply strictly the old clauses of the 1924 immigration laws against aliens was responsible for the drastic decrease in immigration. He issued this order nearly a year ago. The law forbade entry of immigrants who appeared likely to become public charges, and upon Mr. Hoover's order, the Labor and State Departments, instructed their agents to refuse visas to all who could not qualify.

The large number of unemployed in this country was responsible for the order, which has been reported as having been construed in some cases to forbid entry to men because they had no jobs, and in others to refuse them entry because they had promises of jobs and therefore might supplant Americans. Coincident with this effort, Labor Secreatry W. N. Doak has carried on an enlarged deportation drive.

Asiatic Fleet Wins Naval Gun Honors

Borie Is Victor of Battle Efficiency; Hoover to Laud Commander.

Highest hoonrs in battle efficiency, gunnery and engineering for the past competitive year in the destroyer class were monopolized yesterday by the Navy's Asiatic Fleet.

The battle efficiency honors went to the Borie. Her commanding officer, Lieut. Comdr. Paul S. Theiss, of Indiana, Pa., will receive a letter of commendation from President Hoover.

Gunnery honors were won by the Barker, commanded by Lieut. Comdr. James K. Davis, of Tionesta, Pa. In engineering the winner was the John D. Ford, under Lieut. Comdr. James C. Clark, of Columbus, Ga. All three winners are members of the Asiatic Fleet.

that EXTRA something . . .

CLICQUOT has it!

You know what it takes to be successful — that all-important something more that only the leaders seem to have. Extra skill or extra speed...that EXTRA something.

In Clicquot Club, it's EXTRA quality... smoother, mellower flavor... finer ingredients subtly blended by a longer, slower process. No wonder three generations have cheered it as the one fine old American ginger ale. Three different ginger ale flavors from which to choose. And SaS, that delicious confection drink.

Hoover Back From Rapidan Camp Rest

President Will Receive Argentine Naval Officers Today.

The President returned yesterday at midday from his camp on the Rapidan, but was not accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, who remained at the Virginia retreat. They had guests over the week-end, the majority returning yesterday to Washington.

President Hoover will receive Capt. Francisco Lajous, commander of the Argentine frigate, President Sarmiento, this noon at the White House. Other officers of the ship will be received also by the Chief Executive, the group being presented by the Ambassador of Argentina, Senor Dr. Felipe Espil. The ambassador will give a reception this afternoon at the embassy for the ship's officers, who will leave tonight for New York and will later go to West Point.

In the absence of the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Charles Francis Adams, the Acting Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ernest Lee Jahncke, will entertain at luncheon today at the Mayflower in compliment to Commander Francisco Lajous and the officers accompanying him on the midshipmen cruise.

The officers and midshipmen spent yesterday in Annapolis and will arrive here this morning to spend the day. The trip to the Naval Academy was made by train, the ship remaining in New York.

Mrs. Mitchell Attends Dinner for Niece.

Mrs. William DeWitt Mitchell was present at the dinner given last evening in St. Paul for her niece, Miss Gertrude Bancroft, and Mr. Hubert Brian Holland by Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Bancroft. Miss Bencroft's marriage to Mr. Holland will take place this evening at 8 o'clock in St. John's Episcopal Church, St. Paul.

Mr. Bradley B. Gilman and Mr. Erwin Griswold are in St. Paul for the wedding. The former will act as best man and the latter will be an usher. The bride and her fiance were feted on Sunday evening at dinner by Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Senkler.

The Minister of Venezuela and Senora de Arcaya have arrived in Washington from Atlantic City and plan to remain two weeks at the Legation before leaving again for the seashore.

Christening Held In Warsaw Cathedral.

The grandson of the Ambassador to Poland and Mrs. John North Willys, young John Willys Wilson Raymond de Aguirre, was baptized recently, the ceremony taking place at the American Cathedral Church of the Holy Trinity, Dean Frederick Beekman officiating. Miss Barrett Will Entertain 70 at Dinner

Event Will Honor Miss Kent, Bride Saturday, at Bar Harbor.

Miss Audrey Barreet, who recently arrived at Bar Harbor with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barrett, from a trip abroad, will entertain 70 guests at dinner tonight at the Bar Harbor Club in honor of Miss Elizabbeth Kent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Atwater Kent, and Mr. William Laurens Van Alen, whose marriage will take place on Saturday at Bar Harbor. After the dinner many of the guests will later attend the annual dance at the club in honor of the officers of the visiting British and American men-o'-war.

Miss Bertha Palmer, of Chicago; Miss Winifred Thorndike and Miss Eleanor McCormick, three of Miss Kent's bridesmaids, gave a dinner for her last night at Haree Forest, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer.

Three of the ushers for the wedding are from Washington. They include Mr. Robert R. Hitt, Mr. Malcolm S. McConihe and Mr. Randolph Burke.

Mr. Julius Garfinckel has sailed for England and France.

Lieut. Wilbur Macatee, of Blacksburg, Va., and Mrs. Macatee are the guests in whose honor Mr. Donald MacDonald, 3d, will entertain tonight at his home on Belmont road. Mr. MacDonald has just returned from a visit to Blacksburg.

Miss Louise MacDonald, sister of Mr. MacDonald, gave a dinner at their home on Sunday night in honor of Miss Jeannette Rankin, former congresswoman from Montana, who will sail tonight on the Europa for Europe.

Miss Rankin will go first to London and after a short stay there and in Paris she will leave for Geneva to attend the peace conferences.

New Yacht Put on Ways By Metcalf

Hebert, His Colleague in Senate, Returns From Europe.

With the return of Senator and Mrs. Felix Hebert from Europe on Saturday and the launching of a beautiful new yacht at Bath, Me., that day by Senator Jesse H. Metcalf, the "baby" State of Rhode Island rode into the social news over the week-end. Senator Hebert has been studying the unemployment situation abroad and with Mrs. Hebert has spent several weeks in Europe.

Senator and Mrs. Metcalf, who are both ardent yachtsmen, christened their craft Felicia, which went down the ways at the Maine seaport Saturday afternoon. One hundred and forty-eight feet and all steel, the Felicia is the first Diesel electric yacht ever built and will reign as a splendid successor to Felicia I, the steam yacht of the Rhode Island salon which has spent many days in the Potomac.

Although Senator and Mrs. Metcalf really live at the Hay-Adams House, yet the first pussywillow of spring beckons them to their craft in the Potomac and it is there that they live in the warmer months and entertain their friends for week-end cruises. Closing their hotel apartment and taking a few things to the pretty craft anchored in the river Senator and Mrs. Metcalf are "at home" on the water through the little season in Washington.

Among the Newport visitors last week-end were Mr. John W. Davis, who was Ambassador to the Court of St. James and presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket, and Mr. James Rockwell Sheffield, former envoy to Mexico who, with their wives, were guests of Mrs. Walter Belknap James, who entertained in their honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Percival Sheldon Ridsdale and their daughter, Miss Patricia Ridsdale, who have been at Lake Spofford, N. H., will spend August at Lake Place, N. Y.

Mr. Henry M. Rose, former assistant secretary of the United States Senate, and Mrs. Rose are visiting their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Rose, at Montclair, at their summer home near Bayhead.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman entertained at luncheon on Sunday at the Beach Club in Southampton, Long Island, in honor of Mrs. James Francis Sullivan, of Philadelphia.

Others in the company were Brig. Gen. Samuel E. Tillman, Miss Laura Tuckerman and members of her house party, including Miss Helen de Peyster, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lecompte Spalding, Mr. J. Sheridan Biays, Mr. James Todd and Senor Ricardo Padilla.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Joseph A. Gaston are at the Monterey Inn at Blue Ridge Summit, where they will spend some time. Also at the inn is Mrs. John V. White.

Capt. John M. Enochs, commander of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Enochs are spending some time at Old Point Comfort, where they are at the Chamberlin. Mrs. Enochs, before her marriage last year, was Miss Elizabeth Shirley, of Alexandria, Va.

Mrs. William Henry White will leave the Capital this week for Buena Vista Springs, where she will spend August. In September she will motor with friends in the Adirondacks, spending two weeks at West Point. Before returning in October, Mrs. White will spend some time in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Pope spent the week-end at Natural Bridge, Va.

Mrs. William P. McCracken, wife of Col. McCracken, entertained at luncheon for a company of eight on Saturday at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Powell, of Washington, have taken an apartment at Wardman Park Hotel, where they will live in the future.

Harts Entertain For Argentinians.

The Superintendent of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, U. S. N., entertained at dinner last evening at his quarters in honor of Lieut. Comdr. Daniel Garcia and Lieut. Walter von Rentzell, officers of the Argentine warship the Presidente Sarmiento, who accompanied the 46 cadets of the ship to Annapolis yesterday, where they were guests overnight of the cadets of the Naval Academy.

Today the Argentine officers and cadets will come to Washington to be received by the President, and a gala day has been planned in their honor, with a luncheon at the Mayflower, at which the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ernest Lee Jahncke, will be host, and a reception at 5 o'clock at the Argentine Embassy given by the Ambassador, Senor Dr. Don Felipe Espil.

Mrs. Dalton Risley and Miss Mabel C. McCallum, of Los Angeles, are guests at the Mayflower.

The Charge d'Affaires of Canada, Mr. Hume Wrong, will return this week from a vacation spent with Mrs. Wrong in their Canadian home.

Southern Visitor

MISS MILDRED WILLIFORD is visiting in Washington from her home in Atlanta as the guest of Mrs. Alfred Pembroke Thom at Pembroke Hall.

Newport Stay Is Commenced By Fletchers

Tariff Board Chairman Expects to Remain There Till Fall.

Mr. Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Tariff Commission, and Mrs. Fletcher, reached Newport yesterday from New York and will pass the late season at Rocky Hall, which they have leased. Mr. Fletcher, who was the former Ambassador to Mexico, Italy and Belgium, resigned recently from his post on the commission, hoping to enter again the ranks of the nonofficial contingent of Washington and New York about September 16.

Persuaded by President Hoover to remain as chief of the commission for two months longer, Mr. Fletcher, with his charming wife, will be "of Washington, although not in it," during the fall months. For they probably will remain at Newport until late in the season.

Friends are hoping, however, that the Fletchers may elect to make Washington their home unless Mr. Fletcher is appointed to some other desirable post. Once he was the outstanding contender for the portfolio of Secretary of State and his name has frequently been mentioned for an ambassadorial appointment.

With service in many countries of the world, China, Chile, Luxemburg, Portugal and others, Mr. Fletcher represents one of the few men of diplomatic "timber" available for foreign posts—when one is vacant. His name has also appeared several times in connection with the governor generalship post to the Philippine Islands as a successor to Mr. Dwight F. Davis.

Mrs. Robert Lee Spivey, of Hertford, N. C., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Nellie Zora Spivey, to Lieut. James E. Totten, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Wadsworth. The wedding is to take place in the early autumn.

Wives of Tomorrow

—FRANCES M'DONALD—

Our Next Generation.

WHAT a collection of museum pieces the next generation will be, if we can judge by the antics of the pajama-clad parade who are crowding pedestrians off sidewalks, jostling through street crowds, and in general making themselves an army of horrible examples of how to be in bad taste. Watching these poor little mimics one wonders what sort of parents produced them, and what sort of children they will themselves produce. Girls being pushed about by half-grown pimply youths on street corners. Bill, whose letter follows, should be read by every girl who thinks she is adding to her popularity by being pushed around like a sack of flour by curbstone Romeos.

Dear Frances McDonald: I guess you are supposed to help the older people who have such troubles, but I will feel better anyway to tell my story. I just got through high, and have a job and would be sitting on top of the world if it were not for my girl. I do not know what has got into her. She comes from a nice home, but it seems they let her do anything that comes into her head. At school there were all kinds of fellows in the class, of course. Some of them were the fine and some were just toughs. A bunch of these have a car. The girls they took out during school time were the sort like themselves—loud and tough. My girl began talking to one of these fellows just before school closed. I told her to be careful, as I know how this fellow talks about girls. If you stayed around to listen to him you would be punching him before you knew what you were doing. The decent fellows just kept out of his way. She laughed in the silliest way and said I was jealous.

Then school closed. I went to work for dad. But I see her every evening. Nights when we are out this gang—for that is all tthey are—keep passing in their car, yelling at her, making us conspicuous. I asked her if she could see why I objected to her talking to such people and she replied that she would rather be with them than with me and that they had some life in them and we were just dead—meaning myself and the fellows who do not yell at people from broken Fords. I am so disgusted I hardly know what to think. At noon yesterday I saw her downtown on the most conspicuous corner with two other girls and three fellows. The girls were all in pajamas and the fellows were pushing them about, pulling at them and making a show of them, while every one passing was giving them awful looks. Now, why should her mother allow her to act like this? You might say she could not know what the girls did downtown. But she must know what the girls wore downtown. Are pajamas intended to be worn at noon on busy street corners? Is there any way I can make this girl see that she is just getting tough? BILL.

And the answer is no. There is nothing any one can do. The innately right-minded girl shrinks from the vulgarity of the conspicuous. This girl craves it. Pajamas are charming in their place. But many who liked pajamas have now turned against them after viewing the pass to which they have come. They are merely an incidental in Bill's experience. With or without the aid of the latest fad this girl would have found her level—which is the street corner. Sad but true.

Deviled Crab for Dinner.

Deviled Crab — Potato Chips
Bread — Currant Jelly
Vegetable Salad
Peach Pudding — Cream
Coffee

Deviled Crab.

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2-3 cup cream
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon celery salt
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 hard cooked eggs, diced
1½ cups crab meat
2-3 cup cracker crumbs
3 tablespoons butter, melted

Melt four tablespoons of butter and add flour. Add milk and cream and cook until creamy sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add seasonings, eggs and crab meat. Pour into shallow, buttered baking dish. Cover with crumbs which have been mixed with three tablespoons of melted butter. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.

Vegetable Salad.

1 cup cooked peas
1 cup cooked green beans
½ cup diced celery
½ cup diced cucumbers
2 tablespoons chopped onions
2 tablespoons chopped pimentos
2-3 teaspoon salt
1-3 teaspoon pepper.
2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles
½ cup salad dressing

Peach Pudding.

3 cups sliced peaches
2-3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter

Blend peaches, sugar, cinnamon, salt, flour and water. Pour into buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with lemon juice and dot with butter. Cover with dough.

Dough.

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup lard.
4 tablespoons water

Mix flour and salt. Cut in lard and add water. When stiff dough forms roll it out and fit over peach mixture. Make four slits in top. Bake 25 minutes in moderate oven. Serve warm.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Mirande fashions a stately evening gown from white crepe romain, with a black and emerald green cire girdle and bow.

New York, Aug. 3.

WHICH do you want for fashion—white and black, or black and white? No-o-o-o, I'm not crazy—my question's a serious one, and if you know the answer you are very likely, both fashion-wise and chic!

For this summer, for instance, the correct answer is white and black—the white predominating and the black giving that ever-so-smart accent of sophistication. White panama hats are encircled with black velvet or cire ribbons, white eyelet-embroidered batiste reveals glimpses of a black satin slip through the openings, white patent leather purses are piped with black, white shantung frocks have black patent leather belts and white daytime frocks of any material are accompanied by the smartest-of-all accessory—black cotton gloves!

But, with the coming of cooler days, and more formal living, the correct answer changes to black and white! The little Second-Empire hats are black with white plumes and posies. Black satin frocks with white collars and cuffs are destined for a very popular and sparkling autumnal life—and, of course, white gloves will be worn with these black frocks. The smart suit will most certainly be of black wool with a white blouse and other discreet white touches. Fall bags of black kid or suede are piped with white, and—wel-l-l-l, I could go on and on! But I think, from just this much information, you'll have a pretty good idea of the difference between, and the importance of, black and white!

It all depends how you like your evening gown—each lady to her own fancy, of course! But I feel safe to say that you'll all find something to admire enviously in the evening gown I sketch for you today from Mirande. If you like color contrast, here it is—white crepe romain with black and vivid green cire (Cir-ray) satin for the girdle. If you like dignity and stateliness, here they are, in the simple decolletage, the molded hip line and the even, full skirt that brushes the floor. And if your heart is won by unusual detail, aren't you delighted with the odd tucking on the bodice and at the hips?

* * * *

And if you're wise, you'll see the possibilities of a vivid color contrast like this, and incorporate it into your own wardrobe!

* * * *

And what evening costume wouldn't be given added, demure charm if it possessed a wee ermine wrap like this one, which nobly upholds the graceful bell sleeves?

* * * *

You've never really lived (or slept!) until you have a bolero nightie with, guess? A skirt that goes to your waist, and doesn't attach at all to the bolero. What's between bolero and skirt? Your own little suntanned skin, my dears! And is it cute! The bolero of all-over lace, the skirt georgette, and then—pyjamas to put on instead of the skirt, wearing them with the same bolero for breakfast. Better send that stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dah-ray Department of The Washington Post—in a hurry—because, these leaflets aren't going to last!

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me of a preparation that will kill rose bugs and insects on nasturtiums that will not poison my pet cat or dog.

GERTRUDE S.

Nicotine in any form will kill insects on these plants. You can also destroy rose bugs by shaking them into a can of kerosene.

Please tell me what to do for a weeping willow which is two years old and covered with insects. My rose bushes are also covered with small black bugs. S. D. B.

Spray your weeping willow tree with any pyrethrum spray your dealer recommends, and spray your roses with the following formula:

Arsenate of Lead Spray.

3 teaspoonfuls of arsenate of lead powder.
1 ounce of any liquid soap.
1 teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate.
A gallon of water.

This formula contains poison, so must be kept out of the reach of children or other irresponsible persons and animals.

Please tell me why my hyacinths, which I grew in pots during the winter, become so dried. I refer to the blossoms, which withered before they opened. Also tell me the proper time to set out roses. I ordered some Paul Scarlett climbers and the grower told me it was too late to plant them now and that I must wait until fall.

GEORGE H. F.

You evidently brought your hyacinths to the light too soon. Unless they have a healthy root system established they never develop perfect flowers. They should be buried in a cold frame or kept in a cool, dark place for at least ten weeks before they are brought to the light. Some growers recommend keeping them in the dark only eight weeks, but I think ten weeks is safer. The consensus of opinion is in favor of fall planting for roses. They may be set out in the early spring but they seem to do best when planted in the fall. You evidently have a conscientious dealer. Roses planted at this time would never do well.

Please tell me when to sow the seed of the following plants: Gas plant, leopard's bane, Helen's flower (helenium) and hardy phlox. One of my peonies which I bought this spring is developing curled leaves. Please suggest a remedy. When should phlox be divided? MRS. L. L. M.

Leopard's bane is best propagated by division. However, it can be grown from seed, which must be sown in July. Helenium seed should be sown in July. Gas plant seed should be sown as soon as it is ripe in the fall. Hardy phlox seed may be sown at this time, though it is considered better to propagate phlox by division of the clumps. Seeds may give new or interesting colors or types, but as a rule, they result in muddy or magenta colors which have little charm. Although peonies are free from insects they are subject to pernicious bud rot. When buds fail to open the leaves are usually curled. Better avoid manure about the crowns of all plants affected with bud rot; also begin at the first signs of spring to spray the roots with Bordeaux mixture and keep up the spraying until sometime in late May. Make the applications a week apart. Phlox should be divided once in three years, the work should be done in the fall or in early spring before growth has been made.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

SLAMS WITH A PARTIAL SCORE.

THE rich bonuses paid for bidding and making Slams at Contract afford one of the most stimulating mental hazards in this most absorbing game.

The technique of Slam bidding has been a fruitful sourse of discussion since the beginnings of Contract. In the early days crude "cue" bidding was favored by some as the most exact way of showing safely biddable Slams. In the Approach Forcing System such methods are never advised except in the overbid of a suit bid by one of the opponents to show there are no losers in that suit and that the hand does contain distinct Slam possibilities.

A partial score is a distinct disadvantage in Slam bidding as it hampers the normal exchange of information. Both partners fear to show the full strength of their hands lest the contract be pushed too high and a sure game sacrificed seeking the will-o'-the-wisp of an unattainable Slam.

The usual convention is that any bid higher than a game indicates Slam possibilities; and the bidding is carried up from that point in accordance with the added strength held.

With a score of 40 or more, any response to an Opening bid becomes a Forcing bid, and the bidding must be kept open until a game is reached. Consequently with a very big hand it is often bettered for the Responding Hand to underbid the game, if possible, and find out what his partner's next response is, rather than make an immediate game bid or overbid of the game contract, which partner may pass. For instance, with 60 on score, South bids one spade. Holding spades K J x, hearts A x x, diamonds A Q 10, clubs K 10 x x, the best bid for North is one notrump and not two or three notrump or three spades. This insures at least one more chance to bid, and gives more time for interchange of information. When North makes a Slam try on the next round of bidding, South should know that he holds a very big hand even though the first response was only one notrump.

There is a great difference of opinion among players as to the meaning of a two-bid with part score. Some mean that they think their hand will make two-odd with very slight help from partner. Others play that their two-bid is as strong with or without a score. Inasmuch as partner should make a special effort to keep the bidding open if he has any strength whatever, it is hardly necessary to bid for the game even when holding a laydown for it, unless in addition the hand contains great honor strength. One solution of the problem is to reduce the requirements for a two-bid in a suit to 4-½ honor-tricks, under these conditions. In addition it is necessary for a player to have a fairly strong suit, especially if the bid is two spades or two hearts, as he may be left to play at that suit even though partner has no strength in it. Partner can then base any try for a Slam he may make on the assumption of 4-½ tricks as a minimum for the Opening bid. Any bid he may make shows some strength; he is not compelled to respond, as game has already been bid.

Contract is a game of very delicate inferences between partners. No two players are so closely attuned that they never have a misunderstanding. The following hand illustrates Slam bidding to a part-score, and shows how two players may place an entirely different construction on the bidding.

North and South vulnerable with 35 on score.

North	South
1N.T.	2♦ (1)
2N.T. (2)	3♣ (3)
3♠	3N.T. (4)
4♠ (5)	5♦
6♦	Pass

Result: Down two. (A spade was opened.)

1—South makes a minimum response knowing partner will not let the bidding die. To bid higher would prevent South from giving the full information as to his hand. A Jump bid of three in clubs or diamonds would also indicate a five-card suit.

2—The expected response.

3—Partner should construe this bid as probably a Slam try, as it continues the bidding beyond game. There is a possibility, however, that South has a weak but very freakish hand, which would play better at four clubs or four diamonds than at two notrump.

4—This confirms the probable inference that the three-club bid was a Slam try, as if South had a freak, he would bid four diamonds. It also shows that at least the club suit and perhaps both clubs and diamonds are four-card suits.

5—This bid was construed entirely differently by North and South. North claimed that he had made two minimum responses to South's bidding, and that his bid of four diamonds merely showed that he preferred to play the hand at diamonds, and that South should have regarded it in that light. South, however, drew an entirely different set of inferences:

(a) That North's two notrump bid did not necessarily indicate North's hand was a minimum, as at that time he did not know that South's hand might be a weak one.

(b) That North's three-diamond bid was not necessarily a minimum as it was not a game contract, and therefore compelled a further response from South.

(c) That South in bidding three notrump had taken full responsibility for the hand, and guaranteed that the hand was safe at that contract, otherwise, he would have left the bidding at two notrump; South expected to close the bidding at three notrump unless North could see a possible Slam. Consequently, any further bid by North could only be construed as a Slam try.

In spite of the outcome, it will be noted that if only North's heart and spade holdings were interchanged the hand would be a laydown for six.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The Defense Value of Honors.

In all trump bids the same hand possesses a double standard of values.

The value in attack—when played at own or partner's trump bids.

The value in defense—when played against opponent's trump bid.

In attack a hand such as spades A K Q 6 5 4 3 2, hearts 10 9 7, diamonds 3, clubs 3, is worth 8 tricks and easily justifies a shut-out Opening four-spade bid.

In defense—say against adverse diamond bid—the same hand is worth but 1 trick for the spade ace, since the spade King will probably be ruffed.

A REFERENDUM ON SYSTEMS.

The National Bridge Association, a Nation-wide organization of Bridge players, is now conducting a referendum to determine whether or not the Contract players of the United States wish to see standardization in bidding and, if so, on what conditions.

Ballots are being mailed out to various cities, but any Bridge players desiring to participate may secure copies of the ballot for themselves or their friends by writing to the National Bridge Association, at 370 Lexington avenue, New York.

Ever since the beginnings of Contract there has been much criticism of the multiplicity of bidding conventions. The National Bridge Association believes that the time has come when agreement can be reached to end this situation.

The result of the test will be interesting.

What Today Means to You

"LEO."

IF August 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger hours are from noon to 2:10 p. m., and from 8:15 p. m. to 7:45 p. m.

The planetary aspects of August 4 are very favorable, both for private and business life. New friends, whose association will ultimately benefit you, will be met, and old friendships renewed. It is an auspicious opportunity for making long-deferred, but necessary, changes in business, especially if they are typical of new ideas.

A child born on this August 4, in order to achieve its rightful position in life, will have to fight the vices of indolence and indifference. This will not be difficult, as its will power will be strongly developed. It will be quite positive, cynical, and possess considerable latent ability. It will be strongly affectionate—but only spasmodically.

Born on August 4, you should always avoid speculation. Although a fairly good reasoner, at critical times, you are impractical. You have not sufficient stamina to "cut your losses," when prudence dictates such a course. "Sticking at the last," and progressing slowly, is the only course that will insure your permanent success. You are a conscientious worker, and all tasks intrusted to your care are executed punctually, faithfully and well. Your horoscope indicates that you will shine as a noncommissioned officer, and fail if raised to the commissioned ranks.

You lack initiative and originality, but along imitative lines you excel. Nether do you possess any striking personality—one of the essentials of leadership. You can embrace a cause, and do it well. You can not, however, start one. You can keep things going in good order, but can not, however, get them going, once they have stopped.

You are very congenial and, to a certain extent, adaptable. Your disposition is kind, and you are very tolerant in your outlook. Of friends, you will have many, and you will always be welcome at social entertainments. In your home, you will take a great pride—especially if a woman. As husband or wife, you will be patient and constant. As a parent, you will be the friend and counselor of your children.

Successful people born August 4:
Sir Harry Lauder, actor.
Jesse W. Reno, inventor.
Silas G. Pratt, composer.
Oliver P. Morton, statesman.
Louis Le Conte, naturalist.
Lovell H. Rousseau, brigadier general.

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL MEETING CANCELED

Appointment of New Police Chief Was to Have Been Session's Topic.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

An informal meeting of the city council, planned for yesterday afternoon to discuss appointment of a head of the police department, to succeed Capt. W. W. Campbell, recently dismissed by City Manager Wallace Lawrence after he had pleaded guilty to robbing the market stall of Chauncey Bros., was called off. In view of the absence of Councilman Weil it was believed there might be no quorum, since Councilman Lamond is also absent in Europe.

Just what could have been accomplished by a meeting of the council over the question is not apparent, since selection of a police chief, or the head of any other department of the city government, rests entirely with the city manager, who, as a matter of routine, must report his selection to the city council at its next meeting, according to ordinance No. 3 of that same body.

It is understood from the city manager that he has so far received six applications for the position of police captain, five of which are in writing and one verbal. One of the applicants, who is understood to have the backing of the American Legion, is out of town and his is understood to be the verbal application. City Manager Lawrence has urged that any other applicants make their applications in writing at once, and he has given assurrance that such applications will receive his full consideration.

313 July Visits Made By Montgomery Nurses

The Montgomery County health nurses made 313 professional calls in July, according to the monthly report of the county heath department. The nurses made 278 calls on infants, preschool children and persons suffering from communicable diseases.

Eight health conferences and clinics were held at Rockville, Spencerville, Emory Grove and Laytonsville, which were attended by 144 persons. Eight persons were administered typhoid fever and smallpox immunization treatments.

Boy Badly Injured As Auto Overturns

Two Others Also Hurt in Accident in Fog Near Indianhead.

Joseph Bolger, 12 years old, of Indianhead, Md., was near death last night in Sibley Hospital from injuries received when an automobile in which he was riding left the road and overturned near Indianhead early yesterday. An early morning fog was blamed for the crash.

The boy is suffering of a fracture of the base of the skull and a broken jaw. His uncle, Thomas B. Bolger, 29 years old, also of Indianhead, is also under treatment for a possible fracture of the skull.

Henry T. Ward, 19 years old, also of Indianhead, was treated at Casualty Hospital for lacerations of the head. Ward is said to have been driving the automobile, which was on the way to Philadelphia.

The wrecked automobile and the injured trio were found by Alfonso Williams, colored, of 1239½ Sixth street northwest. He placed them in his automobile and brought them to Casualty Hospital. Young Bolger and his uncle were later transferred to Sibley Hospital.

Prince Georges Collects $8,000 in Fines in July

The Prince Georges County Police Court collected approximately $8,000 in fines in July, according to the report of Thomas R. Henault, clerk of the police court, presented yesterday to the county commissioners. This is the largest sum collected in one month since the establishment of the court.

The majority of the cases were in motor vehicle cases, of which 450 were tried in the course of the month. There were eighteen persons tried for driving while intoxicated and three for speeding in excess of 60 miles an hour.

11 Granted Citizenship In Court at Rockville

Uncle Sam gained eleven more citizens yesterday when final papers of citizenship were awarded by Judge Robert B. Peter in circuit court at Rockville to eleven residents of Montgomery County.

Those who gained citizenship were Michael Benedikt, William Joseph Davey, Miss Emily Ott Kronenbitter, Giovanni Santini, Miss Ethel Blanche Percival, Miss Sarah Catherine McIntyre, Samuel Sheer, Vieno Elizabeth Maybloom and George Complair.

Assault and Forgery Charged to Man, 51

Vincent W. Kramer, sr., alias Dziegielewski, 51 years old, 923 Ingraham street northwest, was arrested last night by Headquarters Detective C. C. Stepp for Montgomery County Police on charges of criminal assault. An additional charge of forgery was placed against him last night.

The man is alleged to have attacked Mrs. Mary T. Mueller, 57 years old, of near Wheaton, Md., July 5, when he drove her to her home in his automobile at the request of her son. The forgery charge was placed against him by his son, Vincent Kramer, jr., who charges that his father forged his name to a check for $69 issued to the District tax collector.

Two Thefts Reported To Alexandria Police

The Alexandria Hay and Grain Co., located at Oronoco and Henry streets, Alexandria, of which John B. Abraham, is manager, reported to the police yesterday that the office at that place had been broken into on Sunday and less than $1 stolen from the safe, which was unlocked.

Robert Holland, North Washington street boulevard camp in Alexandria, reported that early yesterday his tent was entered and $1,950 in cash and an Elgin open-face watch valued at $15 stolen.

Barcroft Residents Arm To Catch Night Prowler

Sheriff Fields Places Special Details on Duty, But Fears Innocent Persons May Suffer Unless Police Alone Are Allowed to Operate.

Aroused over the alleged midnight prowler, the residents of Barcroft in large numbers are out with fire arms of all descriptions, according to the county police, in an effort to catch him.

Despite the fact that Sheriff Howard B. Fields for the last ten days has had four men detailed in that section on all night duty, nothing has yet been seen that resembles a person prowling about in a way that would cause an arrest to be made.

To satisfy himself, having received many reports that a prowler had been seen, Fields also has spent a large part of each night recently in that section of the county with more than a dozen police officers.

According to the sheriff, residents may be seen on their porches with shot guns ready for action. All he fears is that some innocent bystander is liable to get shot unless the officers are left to do the watching.

ARLINGTON VOTERS GO TO POLLS TODAY

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the campaign over, the voters of the Thirtieth Senatorial District, which comprises the town of Arlington and the counties of Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William will today, beginning at 5:11 a. m. and continuing until 7:09, when the sun sets, go to the polls and cast their ballot for either Charles T. Jesse, of Arlington County or John W. Rust, of Fairfax County, for the Democratic nomination for the State Senate.

Col. Jesse, who has made an active campaign covering the entire district, is standing on his record as a member of the House of Delegates for four terms from Arlington County. Mr. Rust, who has not made as active a campaign, is advocating a closer cooperation with the Federal Government in its plan for the development of the metropolitan area, of which Arlington County is a part.

As in the past, there is little interest being shown in the election and only the united efforts of the supporters of both candidates will bring out a vote of any size in the county. It is estimated that the vote in the county will not exceed 2,000. Of this number Col. Jesse is conceded a large portion of it, carrying the county by a safe majority.

Political leaders over the entire district are predicting the election of Col. Jesse.

Walter O. Pickett, of Fort Myer Heights, Arlington County, is the first of the 29 persons, other than the five recognized Republicans, to announce that he is a Democratic candidate for one of the five seats on the county board which, on January 1, 1932, replaces the present county board.

"I am a Democrat and am not ashamed to admit it," said Mr. Pickett last night. The other 28 persons have announced themselves as Independents.

"I have been a resident of Arlington County for the past 26 years, have paid for my home and every dollar that I have earned I have seen to it that I have received a dollar in return for whatever I purchased. That will be my policy if elected to the county board. I am the poor man's candidate and I intend, if permitted, to see to it that for every dollar expended the taxpayer receives in return a like amount in benefits."

Contractors Push Work on Oil Road

Grading and Paving Being Rushed; Strip Will Be Opened Thursday.

Record time is being made by the firm of Carson & Gruman, road contractors, of Washington, in the reconstruction of what is known as the Oil road, leading from the Military road in Rosslyn to the southern wall of the Arlington National Cemetery.

The pouring of special concrete, which permits traffic over it in 24 hours, from in front of the oil storage plants to the Military road in Rosslyn, will be completed today and that section of the road opened to traffic on Thursday.

Grading is rapidly progressing from the oil stations to the southern wall of the cemetery and it is expected that pouring of concrete will be under way by Friday.

Due to the road fronting the business section of Rosslyn, the work is being rushed to completion. Indications are that the contractors will have the road open to traffic in less time than the contract provides, which is 30 days.

Habeas Corpus Involved By Mother to See Baby

Mrs. Catherine Grant, of Silver Spring, Md., yesterday filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the Circuit Court at Rockville, Md., alleging that her husband, Samuel Grant, of Takoma Park, Md., is unlawfully detaining in his custody their infant son, Raymond Edward Grant.

Through Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, Mrs. Grant asks that her husband be brought before the court and show the reason for such custody. The Grants are separated and the wife alleges that the husband will not permit her to see the child. Judge Robert B. Peter issued a writ returnable August 5 at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Wagon Sold Ice Cream, Beer.

Seminole, Okla., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—There were two sides to L. E. O'Kelly's ice cream wagon, officers discovered. From one window he dispensed ice cream, while from the other he served iced home brew. Since the officers could see only one side, he was arrested for violating the liquor laws.

Alexandria Boy Wins Honor.

Charles H. Fletcher, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Fletcher and captain of the Alexandria High School Cadets, has returned to his home in Alexandria from the citizens' military training camp at Fort Eustis, Va., where he was awarded first prize for being the best "white" in the regiment. Last year he was given the first prize as a "red."

FAIRFAX DEMOCRATS GO TO POLLS TODAY

Nominees Will Be Named for Various Offices in Lively Primary.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

The political storm that has been brewing in Fairfax County for the past few months will burst today when the Democratic voters will cast their ballots for the candidates of their choice. The Democratic nomination in the county is practically tantamount to election. All the county offices are to be filled except that of county clerk, who was elected four years ago for an eight-year term. The polls open at sunrise, 5:10 and close at sunset, 7:18 p. m. It is expected that the largest number of ballots in the history of the county will be cast in todays primary election.

All the county offices will be closely contested, except Supervisor Kyle Davis, of Lee magisterial district. Observers are somewhat doubtful as to the outcome in the supervisors races in several of the districts, especially Mount Vernon, where W. F. P. Reid, who has been a member of the county board for more than twenty years, and is at present Chairman of the board, is opposed by Herbert O. Blunt.

John W. Rust, of Fairfax, is opposed by Charles T. Jesse, of Arlington County, for the State Senate.

Two of the hottest contested races will be for the nomination for the House of Delegates from Fairfax County and the county treasurer's office. In each of these contests three candidates are in the field with the third candidate in each case the un known quantity. For the House of Delegates the voters will choose between Edmund H. Allen, of Newington; John Mackall, of Langley, and Herbert Williams, of East Woodford. For the past two years the county has been represented in the House of Delegates by Leon L. Freeman, Republican, of Vienna. Dr. Frank W. Huddleson, of Fairfax, incumbent in the treasurer's office, will be opposed by C. C. Carr, of Oakton, and Alton Money, of Vienna.

Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr, who has been in office since 1922, is opposed by Harold F. Hanes, of Herndon. County Commissioner of Revenue James U. Kincheloe will be opposed by A. Page Wrenn, of Herndon, a former county game warden.

Ardent politicians of the county were offering yesterday to bet that the four major county officials would be reelected, and very little of their money was being covered by adherents of the opposition.

John W. Rust, of Fairfax, Democratic candidate for the nomination to the Virginia State Senate from Fairfax, Arlington and Prince William Counties and Alexandria City, made his final appeal to the voters of the district last night over Radio Station WJSV, at Mount Vernon Hills, Va. Mr. Rust declared that he was desirous of seeing northern Virginia zoned and with parks along the Potomac River and is in favor of cooperation with the Federal authorities, but he does not believe that the State or its citizens should be deprived of any of their privileges or rights except on a reciprocity basis. He urges better understanding with Maryland in regard to the Potomac River, with greater privileges for the Virginians in the river, which is controlled at present by Maryland.

He states that he will work for better health and sanitation laws and to increase the efficiency of the public school system by raising the standard of education to insure proper facilities for the future boys and girls.

Judge Appointed Administrator.

Judge Robinson Moncure was appointed administrator, in corporation court in Alexandria yesterday, of the estate of the late Mrs. Fannie Bain, as she had made no will. The appointment was made at the request of four of her heirs. The estate is approximately $15,000.

PROPERTY SPECIFIED FOR SITE OF SCHOOL

Resolution Is Adopted on Takoma-Silver Spring-Woodside Plot.

Following spirited discusion for more than three hours, the general committee on the selection of a site for the proposed senior high school to serve the Takoma-Silver Spring-Woodside area last night failed to agree on any particular site, but a resolution specifying the territory within three-quarters of a mile of the bridge over Sligo Creek on Colesville road finally was adopted.

The resolution recommends to the Montgomery County commissioners that the high school be placed within a three-quarter mile radius of the bridge and that separate high schools be built for Takoma Park and Kensington in 1933 if residents so desire. The resolution was presented by Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county Democratic organization leader.

There are four availabe sites in the area specified. These include the two North Washington Realty Co. sites on Sligo parkway, one at Montgomery avenue and the other the old Burnett property; the Gruber property and the Mason Clark property, near the Indian Spring Golf Club.

There are 69 of the 91 members present and seven did not vote. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 44 to 18. The motion also urges that the sites for these schools should be close to the parkways being developed in the suburban area.

West River Postoffice Is Robbed Second Time

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 3.—For the second time within the last several months the postoffice at West River, Anne Arundel County, conducted by Samuel P. Chew in connection with his general merchandise store, was robbed some time last night. Mr. Chew reports that the thief or thieves made away with about $70 in cash and a quantity of stamps.

Discovery of the robbery was made by Mr. Chew when he opened the establishment for business at 6:30 o'clock this morning. Entrance to the store was made by prying the lock, and dynamite was used to blow open a large safe which contained the money and stamps. The thieves did not disturb any merchandise in the store, according to Mr. Chew.

Virginia Rotarians Will Hold Meeting

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 3.—More than 150 presidents, secretaries and individual members of the Rotary Clubs of the Fifty-sixth district, which takes in the entire State of Virginia, will meet in annual conference here Wednesday and Thursday, with the Charlottesville club as host.

There are 53 clubs and approximately 2,250 members in the district. The assembly officers are: District governor, Charles K. Brown, of Staunton; chairman, Roscoe Adams, of Charlottesville; secretary, Seth Burnley, of Charlottesville.

The two-day session will open at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Elks Home and will be presided over by District Governor Brown, Staunton, newspaperman, who was elected governor of the district conference in Norfolk in May. Mr. Brown recently returned from Europe, where he attended the convention of Rotary International in Vienna. The last executive conference of the district was held in Winchester in July of last year.

William Albert Smith, 28 years old, of 523 South Lee street, Alexandria, in Police Court in Alexandria yesterday morning had his case continued until tomorrow and was released on $1,000 bond.

Smith is charged with taking the car of L. G. Triplett, of 936 C street, Washington, from where it was parked in the 600 block Prince street, and driving it while under the influence of liquor; also with colliding with the car of T. T. Hubard, of Richmond, on the Washington Highway near Glebe road, when Mrs. Hubard received bruises and a sprained ankle.

Rotarians to Hold Crab Feast.

The regular luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club of Alexandria will be omitted today and held at 7:25 p. m. at the Old Dominion Boat Club, with a crab feast arranged by the chairman for the week, Abe Martin.

Council Organizes At Seat Pleasant

Committees Announced at Meeting; Town Bailiffs Not Appointed.

Standing committees for the year were appointed last night at a meeting of the mayor and council of Seat Pleasant, Md. Mayor Harmon O. Acuff announced at the meeting that he will transfer to the town treasury all fees he collects as justice of the peace for the town. Under the town charter the mayor is a justice of the peace.

Committees were announced as follows: Rules and ordinances—Arthur Jones, chairman; Edwin Fisher and Val Armstrong. Streets and lighting—Fabian Augustine, Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Jones. Sanitation—Van Moreland, chairman; Mr. Augustine and Mr. Jones. Finance—Mr. Fisher, Mr. Moreland and Mr. Jones. Public safety—Mr. Armstrong, chairman; Mr. Fisher and Mr. Augustine.

The council did not name the town bailiffs last night as the necessary ordinance has not been prepared.

Methodist Group Continues Inquiry

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., August 3.—Four Methodist ministers of the Danville district will reconvene here tomorrow, probably at the district parsonage, to continue their work as a committee of investigation, the purpose of which has been indicated by W. R. Purdum, chairman of the board of stewards of Moseley Memorial Church, is "to find out about reports going around about our pastor."

The actual nature of the reports he declined to discuss. "I can't afford he said, "to say what they are because no official charge has been filed with Dr. E. L. Bain, the presiding elder. I asked him if he wanted the church to make formal charges and he said that it was not necessary."

Know the truth
before accepting substitutes for Kotex

DON'T be confused by the careless expression, "just like Kotex." Perhaps the substitute looks the same. But demand to know more. Where was this substitute made? By whom? How? Who stands back of it? Is it hygienically safe . . . the kind of sanitary pad a hospital would select?

Last year more than 10,000,000 Kotex pads were used in hospitals. This is the pad that meets hospital requirements! You should be equally strict in selecting an accessory so definitely related to health.

Insist on Kotex. It's the world's standard. In addition, Kotex is supremely comfortable. Shaped to fit. Soft—and stays soft. Adjustable. Disposable. May be worn on either side with equal protection.

THRONG SEES CRASH, ENGINEER IS SAVED

Dangerous Fumes From Car Noted as Runaway Truck Is Observed.

Theodore P. Artaud, 55 years old, of 3021 Forty-fifth street, Wesley Heights, an appraisal engineer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, probably owes his life to a runaway truck that crashed into a tree by his home yesterday.

The truck had been parked on a hill half a block from the Artaud residence when the brakes loosened and it started down the grade, stopping before the house with a crash that soon drew several people to the scene. Eliza Dyson, a colored maid employed at 4447 Hawthorne street, one of the curious onlookers, noticed smoke escaping from beneath the closed doors of the Artaud garage and called the attention of others to this fact.

Workmen employed on a house across the street from the Artaud home investigated and found Artaud, clad in overalls, slumped on the floor beside his automobile with the motor running. He was evidently working on his car when overcome by the fumes. The Rescue Squad and Emergency Hospital ambulance responded and he was removed to Emergency Hospital where physicians say his condition is critical.

The members of Artaud's family, asleep on an upper floor at the time, did not learn until some time later that it was an occurance in their own home and not the crash of the truck that brought the emergency aid to the scene. According to members of his family, Artaud had been in ill health recently and had been overcome by the heat twice in recent weeks.

Mrs. Peck is survived by her husband, George Peck, and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Lee.

President Hoover yesterday appointed Charles Boyd Curtis, of New York City, now Minister to the Dominican Republic, as Minister to El Salvador.

Hans Frederick Arthur Schoenfeld, of Providence, R. I., who has been attached to the State Department on special service, was appointed to succeed Curtis as Minister to the Dominican Republic.

The vacancy occurred to San Salvador because of the recent resignation of Warren Delano Robbins to become chief of the newly created division of protocol of the State Department.

Rotarians Cruise Bay For Assembly Afloat

Baltimore, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Rotarians from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia set sail today for a two-day meeting afloat of the executive assembly of the thirty-fourth district.

This evening the steamer, the John Cadwalader, docked at Chestertown, where a sight-seeing tour and dinner were planned. Sixty-one clubs are represented on the steamer trip, which will take in most of Chesapeake Bay. The steamer was chartered by the Chestertown club, a member of which, Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, president of Washington College, is the Rotary district governor.

ENGINEERS IN RUSSIA GIVEN ADDED RIGHTS

Status of Technicians Set at Same Level as That of Workers.

Moscow, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Russian engineers, technicians and their families, until recently the "stepchildren" of the Soviet, are to have new privileges, giving them equality with industrial workers in several phases of material conditions in which they have been heretofore somewhat restricted.

The Central Economic Council and the Council of the People's Commissars have ordered that new and more favorable living conditions for this class be put into effect as a further step in carrying out the policy recently announced by Joseph Stalin to attract more of the intelligentsia to the service of the state.

Hereafter they will be placed in the same category as industrial workers, the highest privileged class, in the right to purchase food. Instead of being taxed heavily on salaries above 100 rubles, only those with incomes of 500 rubles or more will now have to pay an income tax of 3½ per cent.

They will be given the same housing space as the workers, and their children will be educated on the same basis as those of the workers. They will receive the same insurance benefits, and it is decreed that when an engineer or technician is transferred from one post to another his salary shall not be reduced.

The destruction of the Cathedral of the Redeemer, one of Russia's largest and most imposing churches, has been begun to make way for the building of a great auditorium to be known as the Palace of the Soviets.

One of the first portions of the structure to be attacked by the wrecking crews was the great central gilded dome, which is surrounded by four smaller ones.

Seventy pounds of gold, it is said, were used in finishing the dome, and this seems to be borne out by the care exercised in peeling off part of the covering of the main dome. The bottom half of this is now nothing but bare steel framework, but the top portion still glitters dazzlingly in the sun.

Joilet Prison Normal After Arms Search

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Warden Henry C. Hill tonight announced prisoners at the new State penitentiary will resume their normal activities tomorrow after having been locked in cells for two weeks while a search for weapons and combustibles was being conducted. All privileges will be restored.

The men were locked in cells after word reached Warden Hill of plans for a renewal of rioting at the institution such as occurred last April when four men were killed and damage estimated at $500,000 was done to property.

46 Argentine Cadets Due in Capital Today

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Forty-six cadets of the Argentine navy, headed by two officers, arrived here today by train from New York for an inspection of the United States Naval Academy.

The group, which arrived at New York on Thursday, on the training ship Presidente Sarmiento, will remain overnight at the academy and go tomorrow to Washington for a sight-seeing tour before returning to New York.

CLUBS PLAN HOUSES AT WOODLAND BEACH

Attractions at Site Appeal to Organizations as Well as Individuals.

Woodland Beach not only has proven attractive as a site for summer homes for individuals but is also being considered by several organizations as the spot on which to build clubhouses for their members.

Announcement of one or more such projects is expected within a few days, with others to follow as the clubs and societies get the opportunity to assemble their memberships and vote on the proposition of erecting clubhouses there.

A number of prominent clubwomen have been regular visitors at the beach, considering its advantages, and they have become firm boosters for this summer colony site on the South River, in Maryland.

You, too, may become a property owner there with little effort and expense. A lot costs only $93, and even this small amount need not be paid in cash. A down payment of $9, plus the cost of a subscription to The Washington Post, will enable you to make a selection and start your building plans. The rest may then be paid at the rate of $3.50 per month.

Just 32 miles from the Capital, Woodland Beach may be reached over excellent roads; and those who go there find 4½ miles of water front available for their pleasure, heavily wooded areas in which to lounge in the shade, shallow pools in which the children may wade in safety and a hundred other advantages which make the beach a perfect place in which to spend the summer months.

Farm Board Cotton Sale Plan Assailed

Senator Harris Insists That Current Crop Be Traded in German Deal.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Harris yesterday protested to President Hoover the proposed sale of stabilization cotton holdings by the Farm Board to Germany on long-term credit.

Speaking also on behalf of Senator Smith, of South Carolina, the Georgia Democrat said to dispose of the stabilization cotton in this manner would be "taking away a market which rightfully belongs to the current crop held by farmers."

Senator Harris recommended to the President as a substitute plan that if Germany wishes to purchase cotton in this country on long-term credit, the present crop be sold, with the Government aiding in the necessary financing. He urged that the stabilization cotton be held entirely from the market, both here and abroad.

Ambassador Sackett suggested to the German Government last week, with President Hoover's approval, that it buy on easy credit terms some of the wheat and cotton now held by Farm Board agencies.

Trip by Family Is Declared To Have Been Looting Tour

Shreveport, La., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—The father of a family of four which traveled in luxury over this section of the Southwest while the parent allegedly looted homes and assaulted small girls to divert suspicion from his robberies, tonight faced the possibility of death on the gallows.

Authorities had prepared fourteen charges against Roy Howard, who said he was an Oklahoma barber, and his wife. The charges will include at least one criminal assault count, it was announced, and prosecutors are prepared to demand the death penalty if they secure a grand jury indictment.

The two children were in custody of juvenile court while officials delved into the case.

Howard is charged with wholesale robberies in Texarkana, Tex., El Dorado and Camden, Ark., and Minden, La. During two of the robberies of which he is accused, small girls were criminally assaulted in their homes. Officers said they believed the assaults were perpetrated to turn suspicion of the robberies to negroes.

Howard, traveling in a high-powered automobile with his wife and their sons and a police dog, was arrested here. Loot from several of the houses was found in the car, police said. The family automobile was equipped to resemble a tourist's machine, and almost escaped attention of officers.

In each town he visited, Howard always managed to rob the mayor's home, officers said. A watch found in Howard's possession, identified as one stolen from Etandlee Roberts, of Denton, Tex., links the Howard family with a seriesof seven robberies here three weeks ago.

Scotch Coal Miners Agree.

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Archduke Anton of Hapsburg and his bride, Princess Ileana of Roumania, arrived today at Nathyasfoeld airdrome in a small sporting plane. The royal guests planned to spend two or three days here and then fly to Vienna.

Rich Man Accuses Wife of Infidelity

Searles Replying to Suit Says He Provided for Woman and Child.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Victor A. Searles, Palm Beach, New York and Atlantic City millionaire, today filed an answer to his wife's suit for separate maintenance, charging her with infidelity.

Mrs. Searles had accused her husband of a statutory offense "in violation of the Mann act," and said that "he is now being investigated by the Department of Justice."

Searles' answer today alleged in an affidavit that his wife had a "paramour * * *, a notorious criminal with whom she lived—until he left for parts unknown to escape prosecution by the United States Government."

He attacked a statement of Mrs. Searles that she had been left wholly without funds to support herself and her 5-year-old daughter, Betty, while her husband, a large Palm Beach property owner, lavished fortunes on other women, contending his wife "is neither destitute nor on the verge of starvation."

$20,000 Jewels Stolen.

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Theft of $20,000 worth of jewels by burglars who overlooked other jewelry valued at $40,000, was reported to the police today by Mrs. Oscar L. Gubelman, New York social registerite.

About The Showshops

With NELSON B. BELL

IN periods of economic depression it is noticeable that the condition often becomes mental, as well. To this, at least in part, may be attributed the increasing number of pessimists who pretend to perceive nothing but retrogression and collapse in the present status of the cinema.

The pictures, we learn from them, are terrible—story material the worst ever, acting at so low an ebb that any rank amateur ought to be able to do better, etc., etc., etc., all of which, if you examine it closely, you will find to give this department a severe pain in the neck!

Many months ago, we endeavored to point out in our artless and carefree way that requirements are imposed upon motion pictures that are not leveled against any other purportedly artistic medium. Stage plays, musical comedies and revues can be as mediocre as they please and it is taken as a matter of course. Every picture must be perfect—or else!

It is comforting to find so astute an observer and so authoritative a writer as Terry Ramsaye lending our view the benefit of his corroboration. In the August 1 issue of the Motion Picture Herald, Mr. Ramsaye says, in the course of much more extensive remarks:

"The motion picture industry has not finally determined how to make motion pictures. Also no one has yet arrived at a completely satisfactory formula for the production of literature, painting, sculpture, plays of the stage or masterpieces of music. The tremendous mortalities of ideas and material in the older arts are accepted facts. All motion pictures are expected to be successes!"

Goody, goody, for our side!

While we are on the topic, there was not much of a slump perceptible at the Fox last Friday, opening night of the current bill. Whatever the stimulus, and regardless of the character or quality of the entertainment being offered, it is a significant commentary upon the state of any enterprise when 11,000 people pay it respectful heed.

That, I am reliably informed, was the gross patronage at the Fox, Friday, in round numbers. The figure approaches four full capacities of the largest theater in the Capital in a single day—extraordinary attendance under most propitious weather conditions, let alone in the humid temperatures of early dog days.

Speaking of large theaters, the good Dr. Earl Carroll, whose new "Vanities" and Earl Carroll Theater are being primed for a simultaneous and early premiere, as originator of the disappearing orchestra, felt that something novel would be expected by the public in the disposition of the orchestra in his innovating and immaculate new temple of the Muses. So he has created an elaborate and unusual new device whereby three orchestras may be interchanged in the orchestra pit without interrupting the music.

The full orchestra of brass, wind and string instruments will drop out of sight, as if by magic, and will be replaced by, say, a dozen grand pianos. (I quote from Dr. Carroll's latest installment of a seemingly perpetual prospectus, but save the marks). Then the pianos could disappear as mysteriously and be replaced by a jazz band, or even by a practical fountain, playing merrily and illuminated by colored lights.

That's a dandy idea, and since some of the jazz bands I have heard recently have been all wet, that shouldn't, I vote for the fountain and the pretty lights!

In addition to her nightly broadcast, Kate Smith has been added to the current bill at the Palace Theater in New York. Kate is the only substitution in a program that is now in its third week in the country's ace vaudeville house. It is headed by Lou Holtz and bristles with important musical comedy names. The "Song bird of the South" is definitely and unequivocally in the "big time."

And it doesn't seem a minute longer ago than 1812 that she was virtually a local amateur, picking up vagrant weeks wherever they could be found lying around loose.

A voice came out of the past recently to utter a wail of anguish. The answer is briefly chronicled in the terse statement that Mrs. Katherine MacDonald Holmes, on July 30, received an interlocutory decree of divorce from her husband, Christian Holmes, a rancher living at Montecito, near Santa Barbara, Calif., on the grounds of cruelty and uncontrollable temper.

In case you have forgotten, Katherine MacDonald not so long ago was the reigning eyeful of the screen, known far and wide as "The American Beauty." Her acting was something else again, but she was gloriously endowed with pulchritude.

You'll have to write your own crack about Christian Holmes not bothering to maintain one, the sun's coming in on my back!

When George White's eleventh edition of the "Scandals" opens soon, there will be popular Washington favorites other than Rudy Vallee, Ethel Barrymore Colt, Eugene and Willie Howard and Everett Marshall in the cast. The completed personnel includes also Maxine and Virginia Loomis, who, as the Loomis Twins—and they are not twins at all, but several years apart—created no less than a sensation at the Metropolitan about a half dozen years ago, and the Gale Quadruplets, seen at the Earle not more than a month ago, if that long.

So the judge told Mr. Dreiser that Paramount had not violated its agreement with him in the matter of picturizing his ponderous two-volume novel, refused the temporary injunction for which the plaintiff had prayed; and Sylvia Sidney, appearing opposite Phillips Holmes in the principal feminine role, snatched at the wing of a transcontinental plane and flew East from the Coast to appear in person at the Criterion Theater, on Times Square, New York, when "An American Tragedy" is presented there this Thursday night for the first time on any screen; and how do you care for short, crisp sentences?

That one should be put in an endurance contest—endurance vile, as you might say!

Frills, Fripperies Return And Styles Turn Backward

Paris, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Time rolled backward three quarters of a century in the style world today as one of the leading couturiers presented the 1932 mode frankly based on the frills and fripperies of the frivolous fifties and sophisticated sixties.

Romantic little hats with plumes sweeping to the shoulders, tippet capes and the flounced skirts of Queen Victoria's day were the latest contributions to the style battle raging between the old-fashioned and modern mode protagonists.

Green, in all shades including grass, sage, billiard and bottle, was the outstanding color favorite.

Fabrics were matt-surfaced velvet, plain and figured tweeds, and chenille-embroidered crepes.

Black marocain afternoon frocks designed with twelve-inch flounces at the hip and hem lines and lower sleeves with dainty white chiffon frills were worn with tiny black hats no larger than a pancake, ornamented with uncurled ostrich swirling over the shoulders.

Gray wool street frocks with tunic blouses having tippet capes edged with gray, were accompanied by barrel astrakhan muffs, and tilted gray hats, trimmed with green, and red feathers pointing skyward.

Coats of dark green wool and beige and brown tweed, also displaying fur-edged tippet collars, were worn over silk embroidered on chenille embroidered crepe frocks.

Evening gowns of flame or gentian blue chiffon were designed with fitted hips and flaring skirts, given a billowing fullness near the hem by means of crinoline stiffening.

Today's hats were notable for their uplift trims, many being ornamented with brightened sprey or quills standing 6 to 8 inches above the brims.

Parking "Racket" Is Revealed Here

Postoffice and Revenue Workers Must Pay Rent Twice.

Another "racket" in Washington was uncovered yesterday when 100 or more employes of the Postoffice Department and Internal Revenue Bureau were asked to pay a month's rent for parking space on a vacant lot at Twelfth and C streets for which they had already paid $2 last week for the month of August.

Investigation brought out that the man the parkers had been paying for the privilege of parking had no agreement whatever with the Government and therefore had no right to the concession.

The new manager, L. L. Cumberland, produced a contract signed by F. A. Birgfield, chief clerk of the Treasury, showing that he is paying the Treasury $337.50 a month rent. Because of this rental he has raised the price from $2 to $3 a month.

The victims of this "racket" who have already paid $2 for the month of August will have to stand their loss as the Government can do nothing about it, according to Birgfield.

TUESDAY AUGUST 4, 1931 SPORTS

NATS DEALT TWIN DEFEAT BY ATHLETICS, 3-2, 6-5

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

AMONG the literature that finds its way into this office is the regular contribution of Mr. Al Lippe, of Philadelphia, whose multigraphed, multicolored fly-sheet expounding the positive greatness of the fighters in his stable upholds the best traditions of pugilistic advertising matter.

Mr. Lippe, on the subject of his fighters, is as modest and retiring as a regiment of Art Shires with reinforced lungs. The latest of his handbills, which treats exclusively of Sam Weiss, who fought Red Barry in the Fort Washington feature bout last night, would have it that Weiss is no less than the uncrowned light heavyweight champion of the world.

Lippe says: "You should see this warrior in action. A modern Jack Dillon. A showman galore. A deadly puncher. A master boxer. Ever aggressive. Weiss is really the uncrowned light heavyweight champion of the world."

Imposing Names

There is an imposing list of names circumscribing the full-length picture of Weiss on the handbill. In bold type we see listed Maxie Rosenbloom, Mickey Walker, Tommy Loughran, Tuffy Griffiths, Jimmy Slatter and Johnny Risko. Surely the best in their division and enough to catch the eye of any reader. And then in smaller type, much smaller, is appended the fact not that, they are listed among Weiss' victims, but that he is ready to conquer the entire line-up.

But the fact that Weiss still has the task of beating the best in the division before him does not deter Mr. Lippe from establishing his fighter as a pretender to the title. It's an old trick of the trade to surround a fighter's picture with a list of formidable names of men he has not beaten, but whom he will fight if the occasion presents itself. There is no harm in challenging and neither is there any harm in the reflected glory of would-be opponents' reputations.

Two Young Hopes

There are, however, two new names to conjure with in the fistic vale. These belong to Charley Retzlaff and Steve Hamas, the first a hard-hitting lumberjack from the wilds of Minnesota and the second a reformed college football player from Penn State College.

No more opportune time could be chosen by a young fighter trying to get in the big money than the present. Both Retzlaff and Hamas have plunged into pugilistic careers with the weapons best calculated to carry them far in public esteem—the old wallop.

The prize fight public never cottoned to the counter-punching of Tunney. John Q. Phan has little regard for the powder-puff punching of Young Stribling. Schmeling is a throw-back to the old school of wear-'em-down battlers. Sharkey has become a complete flop. All of this on the heels of Jack Dempsey and his intolerance of anything but a quick finish has left the public anticipating the appearance of another Dempsey.

Retzlaff, despite only two major conquests to his credit, holds out the greatest possibility of capturing the public's fancy. He finished Mateo Osa, Spanish trial horse, in three rounds the other night, and Marty Gallagher in five rounds in the semi-final to the Schmeling-Stribling embroglio at Cleveland.

Could Take It

This column never predicted great things for Marty Gallagher, pride of Washington's "Foggy Bottom," because it never had any admiration for Gallagher's flat-footed style of fighting. Neither was Gallagher over-endowed with fistic brains. He was easy to hit. But this column was always convinced that Gallinger could take it.

Gallagher had never been knocked out until he met up with Retzlaff at Cleveland. As a matter of fact, he was not fighting a losing battle when Retzlaff tagged him on the chin in the fifth round of the fray. That wallop is testimony of Retzlaff's punching power. Whatever may be said of Gallinger, he didn't go down until he was hit hard. Retzlaff apparently can hit. Unless he is rushed into too strong opposition at this stage of his career, he is undoubtedly America's white hope to regain a title that Schmeling carried off to the Old World for the first time in pugilistic history.

Tribe Defeats Browns, 5-3; Connally Stars

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Although wild at times, "Sergeant George" Connally, of the Cleveland Indians, tightened up in the pinches and held the Browns to 8 hits, while his teammates garnered twelve safeties and beat the St. Louisians 5 to 3 today. Hebert, Brownie pitcher, retired after the seventh, Blaeholder replacing him.

Cleveland bunched hits in the second, third, and fourth, getting four runs and adding the fifth in the ninth inning. St. Louis got a run in the first inning and in the second Storti, Brown third baseman knocked a home run with one on.

AMATEUR GOLF CODE FLAYED BY VON ELM; ONLY RICH FAVORED

GEORGE VON ELM.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—George Von Elm, "business man golfer, in a copyrighted signed story in the New York Evening Post today, declares the "Amateur Golf rule in this country needs a lot of revision."

Commenting on the question of expenses for an amateur golfer, Von Elm writes:

"Amateurism on the links must be, in the final analysis, purely a matter of finances. If you're a rich man or come from a family where pennies do not have to be counted, you can be a real amateur. I know probably two amateurs in the United States.

Know Ways and Means to Evade Rules.

"Every golfer whose game makes him a championship prospect knows there are ways and means to circumvent the amateur law as laid down by the U. S. Golf Association, and yet remain within the law.

"For instance, a golfer can accept legitimate traveling expenses from his club without feeling like a criminal—and, believe me, plenty of them have their way paid. But accepting expenses, so to speak, under the rose, isn't likely to help a golfer's game in a big championship. His conscience may bother him—yet he feels there can't be anything unlawful about doing the same thing in the U. S. G. A. does in special cases.

"The betting angle * * * * is one way for an amateur to get around the problem of expenses. If a wealthy club member wants to pay his way to the national, all he has to do is to play a round with the golfer, bet $500 or $1,000 that he can beat the star—and pay off on the eighteenth green."

Declares Code Is Out-moded.

After citing other methods of making money, such as the "stock market" and "literary work," Von Elm adds: "The only way such tactics can be done away with is to modify the amateur law to a working principle of modern life. The rule is out-moded today.

"There is no golfer among the top-notchers who does not capitalize the game willingly or otherwise."

"And of course there is the overworked 'guest' gag. A member of a club can't buy a railroad ticket for a youngster and send him to the national, but he can accompany the lad and pay all expenses without any one being the wiser.

"The stock market racket is another that has sent many an amateur to the big event. (I am, of course, referring to B. C.) If the U. S. G. A. objects to an open and above-board payment of legitimate expenses on the part of the boy's club, what is there to prevent some kind-hearted member from offering to carry stock for the lad? Naturally there is always a profit!

Game Is Capitalized by Top Notchers.

"If a golfer is 'big' enough for his name to sell, he can always turn literary. To be sure, that's against the rules—to sign one's name to an article which isn't written by the signee—but so many of our very best shot makers have got away with it that no one ever bothers to check up along those lines. And one of the latest 'trickers' of the 1931 vintage is the signing of a note for money borrowed from a friend. If the man from whom the money is borrowed never presents the note for payment, whose business is it but his? And the note is always evidence of the amateur's lily white intentions.

"The only way such tactics can be done away with is to modify the amateur law to a working principle of modern life. The rule is outmoded today. There is no golfer among the top-notchers who doesn't capitalize his game, willingly or otherwise. If he sells bonds, he sells more and bigger ones because his putter is "hot;" if he sells insurance, the policies are larger if he chips close to the pin in the major championships. And so on, ad infinitum. It's part of our modern civilization and no one can get away from it. Therefore, why not adjust the rule to suit the times—bring it up to date?

"I was barred from amateur competition for a year and had I wanted to keep my activities under cover not all the pussy-footers in the world could have found anything against my record. But I preferred to be honest; I admitted that my club in Salt Lake City had paid my tournament expenses—and they were legitimate. To this day I have never learned whether the U. S. G. A. judges barred me because of that knowledge—and it wasn't against the law, particularly at that time—or for a personal reason."

Carnera-Roberti Bout Delayed Until Tonight

Newark, N. J., August 3 (A.P.).—Rain tonight forced postponement of a scheduled 10-round bout here between Primo Carnera and Roberto Roberti, Italian heavyweights. It was announced the bout would be held tomorrow night.

PUBLIC LINKS TITLE GOAL TODAY

Motley Field of 186 in U. S. Tourney at St. Paul.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The Dick Whittingtons of American golf—the butcher, the baker and candlestick maker among them—open their annual struggle over the Keller Club course tomorrow for the national public links team and individual championships.

Virtually every section of America was represented by its bourgeois of the links in the twin struggle, which attracted 186 of the best marksmen of the public fairways. The Jims, Joes, Toms, Petes and Oles, whose finances preclude memberships in the private golf clubs, were all on deck, swinging their queer assortment of clubs on the eve of the five-day battle.

Most of the entries arrived in style, having their expense paid by civic and commercial organizations, but many hitch-hiked, snagged a fast-moving freight train or scraped enough money to feed gasoline to dilapidated automobiles for the trip. Virtually all the entries, many of whom some day will rank among the best shot makers in the game, perhaps, were on hand early for practice tours over the championship layout, which received such an unmerciful beating ten days ago in the $10,000 St. Paul open.

Qualify With Two 18-hole Rounds.

Thirty-six holes will be played in the qualifying round—eighteen holes tomorrow and Wednesday—and the team with the lowest medal score for the 36-hole jaunt will be victor in the annual struggle for the Warren G. Harding team trophy. Brooklyn, which captured the trophy last year at Jacksonville, Fla., with a fine 617 total, was the favorite to repeat.

There was strong competition, however, from 29 other cities from scattered sections of the Nation, including the former titleholders from Chicago, Pittsburgh, Washington and New York.

Robert Wingate, Jacksonville, was the defending champion in the individual play, but he, too, faced stiring competition. His foremost foe was the golfing clerk from Pittsburgh, Carl Kauffman, the Bobby Jones of the field. During the last five years, Kauffman has captured the crown three times, finished runner-up another time and lost by disqualification once—in 1930. He held the title three years in a row from 1927 to 1929, inclusive. Thirty-two will qualify for championship play Wednesday night, after which competition will proceed by match play at the rate of two rounds a day until Saturday when the finalists will match shots over 36 holes.

16 Entries Classed As Favorites.

From past performances and the complexion of works here this week, 16 entries were classed among the big favorites. Among them were Ade Fordham, St. Paul; Edgar Bolstad, St. Paul; James Reston, Columbus, Ohio; Art Sato, San Francisco; James Bushong, Portland Oreg.; Henry Fabbrizzio, Brooklyn; Dominic Starafaci, Brooklyn; Len Black and Wesley Casper, Louisville, Ky.; Carl Lundeen, Pittsburgh; A. L. Quigley, Chicago; Larry O'Palka, Detroit; Dr. I. R. Davis, St. Louis, and Guy McCall, Buffalo. Ed Greenway, Seattle, also gained some boosters by scoring a par 72 on one of his practice rounds despite a brisk wind, which shoved the scores out of sight.

Bergomas Outpoints Con O'Kelly at Garden

Londos-Dusek Return Bout Arranged

Turner Signs Pair for Match at Griffith Stadium Aug. 11.

Bar Only Two Holds; $10,000 Guarantee Is Reported.

THE ballyhoo for a return match betwen Jim Londos and Rudy Dusek was climaxed last light by the announcement of Promoter Joe Turner that Londos had agreed to meet Rough Rudy on August 11 at Griffith Stadium.

Turner was forced to unlimber his bankroll to the extent of a $10,000 guarantee to the Greek Idol who boasts the title of the Pennsylvania and New York commissions, according to the announcement from wrestling headquarters.

The generous purse to Londos is made possible by the drawing power of the Greek and Dusek, who have met here on two previous occasions in bouts that were followed by long controversies over Londos' methods of winning. The last match, two weeks ago, saw Dusek beaten on a hold which he claimed was a strangle, and a near-riot was incited by his followers among the crowd of 13,000 fans.

Dusek Gambling on Receipts.

According to Turner's announcement, Dusek is gambling on his share of the gate receipts, having waived a guarantee for the right of 50 per cent of the net profits of the show, with the added stipulation that he will protect Turner against loss should the gate fail to net the $10,000 promised Londos.

Agitation over Londos' custom of bringing his own referee to Washington for his bouts has resulted in a new method of selecting the arbiter for the bout at Griffith Stadium. Promoter Turner and Dusek will submit to Ed White, manager of Londos, a list of twelve acceptable referees from which White will name the man who will work the bout.

Strangle and Smother Holds Barred.

Only two holds will be barred in the match. These are the strangle, which cuts off the breath at the jugular vein, and the smother hold, applied over the wrestler's nose and mouth in an equally efficient method of preventing breathing.

Dusek's renowned thorhammer hold, which was barred in the last match between the pair, will be permitted, according to Turner. This hold is no hold at all, consisting of a well delivered blow to the midriff by the brawny lower arm of the Nebraskan.

Tigers Pound Faber In 8th to Win Duel, 7-2

Detroit, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The Detroit Tigers got to the veteran Red Faber for seven hits in the eighth inning today, made five runs out of them and defeated the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 2 in the third game of a series.

Prior to the hitting spree, which sent Faber out and Wehde in, Faber and Whitehill had engaged in a fairly even pitching duel. Detroit's other runs came from Alexander's single and a home run by Quellich in the second. Four Sox hits in the third accounted for the team's only scoring.

Barry-Weiss Fight Draw At Fort

McKenna Wins From Sloat; Pollock Defeats Irving.

REDS BARRY met a situation that demanded his entire concentration in his fight with Sam Weiss, Philadelphia light heavyweight, last night in the feature bout at Fort Washington, and slung enough punches in the last four rounds of the battle to earn a draw decision.

The Washington Red Head was a target for Weiss in the first four rounds of the fight as the gathering of 2,500 envisioned a defeat for Barry. Weiss brought his superior experience into play and won the first four rounds, tying Barry up when the latter sought to force the fighting, and scoring decisively in all of the early rounds.

Barry was in superb condition and profited by his errors in the early stages of the fight. Despite a bad cut under the eye which Weiss inflicted in the first round, the Washington fighter continued to force the milling, slowing Weiss up with steaming rights that he brought up from his knees.

Weiss Tires Near End.

Weiss tired perceptibly in the final rounds and Barry met the demand that he score decisively near the finish by making a target of the Philadelphian in the seventh and the eighth. The partisan Barry crowd yelped at the decision which was unanimous, but other than a draw would have cheated either battler.

The Sailor Oden-Soldier Clark welterweight slugging match, which went four rounds to a draw, stole the preliminary limelight from the semifinal. The two service boxers stood toe to toe and mixed, with the crowd in high glee throughout. Despite the absence of a knockdown, the battling was tense throughout.

In the Sailor McKenna-Clarence Sloat battle, the Washington gob repeated a previous victory over the Baltimorean. There were no knockdowns. McKenna was best from the opening bell. They are lightweights. Referee Short took cognizance of the slow action in the fourth round, and again in the fifth, warning both to fight.

Henry Irving's gameness could not offset the superior ability of Jack Pollock, former marine, and the former Washington amateur was beaten in four rounds. He was in distress at the closing bell, bleeding freely.

Douglas Sweatman, Washington featherweight, and Billy Reed, of Baltimore, fought to a four-round draw in the second preliminary. Sweatman proved the superior sharpshooter, with his blows carrying more energy than the Baltimoreans. He shaded Reed.

Milwaukee Managerial Post Awarded O'Rourke

Milwaukee, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Louis Nahin, president of the Milwaukee Association baseball team, today said Frank O'Rourke, infielder from the St. Louis Browns, would replace Marty Berghammer as manager of the Brewers.

Nahin said O'Rourke would join the Milwaukee team at Indianapolis tomorrow and take over third base, a position noticeably weak in the Brewer infield.

O'Rourke has had varied experience at infield positions. The change was made, Nahin said, because Berghammer apparently was not getting the results expected. Berghammer came to the club from Tulsa in the middle of the 1929 season.

GROVE WINS OPENER, HOME RUN BY TODT DECIDES FINAL GAME; NATS' PENNANT HOPES VANISH

Washington Must Win 38 of 52 if A's Divide 50.

Two Idle Days Faced Before Series Here With Red Sox.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 3.—The difficulty of the task that confronts the Nats if they have any remaining hope of overhauling the Athletics as a result of their double defeat today is seen in the standing of the clubs which shows the Mackmen ahead by 12 games, with only 50 remaining contests to play.

Should the Mackmen do no better than split even in their 50 contests still on the schedule, which would virtually mean an utter collapse of the team, the Nats to gain a tie for the pennant must win 38 of their remaining 52 games, which would constitute a comparative miracle if accomplished.

Nats Facing Idle Days.

Evidently figuring that the Nationals would need a little rest after topping off a long home stay with four hectic contests with the world's champion Athletics, the schedule-makers have given the Johnsons respites tomorrow and Wednesday, with a third off-day of the week listed for Friday.

Tomorrow the Nats have been told that they can forget all about baseball and need not even report at Griffith Stadium for practice, but Manager Johnson has called a session for Wednesday morning in preparation for battles with the Red Sox, which will be staged on Thursday, Saturday and Sunday, after which the Nats make their final 1931 swing through the West.

Manager Walter Johnson is getting as secretive about his pitching selections as is Connie Mack. He surprised even the members of the Washington team by starting Sad Sam Jones in today's opener after having originally announced that he would use Irving Hadley. In fact, Jones was told that he need not make this trip and then was hustled home to get his toothbrush after being knocked out of the box with one dead in Sunday's game.

FIRST GAME.

With the sacks loaded with Mackmen in the first, Myer fell down while fielding Miller's tap. While sitting down, he tossed the ball to Cronin for a forced play to end the inning.

Even the quiet Ossie Bluege became a chatterbox in the second when Umpire Van Grafian called McNair safe at third on Boley's sacrifice. Kuhel took the tap and made a fine peg, the runner apparently sliding into Bluege's glove as he caught the ball. Bluege argued long and loud over this decision, but to no avail. Myer then made a good play on Grove's roller to kill McNair at home.

Simmons' drive in the third missed being a homer by less than a yard. The ball hit the screen above the wall at the base of the stands in left center, fast fielding by Manush, who backed up West, holding it to a double.

When Umpire Moriarty called a third strike on Simmons, ending the fourth, the fly-chaser acted like a spoiled kid. Passing third, he gave Bluege's glove a kick, swooped his own glove off of the ground when he reached the outfield and then picked up Manush's and threw it in almost to short stop. Baby business like this should not have been tolerated and the "high hat" pole should have been put out of the game.

Both Harris and Spencer came within an ace of getting homers in the eighth. The former's blow landed within a few inches of the top of the right-field wall, while Simmons made a fine leaping catch backed up to the stands in left for Spencer's drive.

SECOND GAME.

Myer, who had opened the first game with a single, tripled down the right-field line on Earnshaw's first offering. He was caught trying to score after Simmons' catch of Rice's fly, due to Cochrane's clever blocking at the plate.

Cronin raced over toward third in round two to make a backhand catch of Miller's liner on the first bounce to rob the Mackman of a hit when he followed with a rifle peg to first. It was a sensational play.

Earnshaw did some fancy fielding to keep the Nats from knotting the string in the fifth. With Rice on third and two dead, Cronin tried to "squeeze" home the run. His bunt was well-nigh perfect, but the Mack pitcher threw him out by a whisker.

Rice went to the fence in right center to rob Cramer of an extra baser opening the fifth.

Fischer showed signs of wilting in the fifth and Brown faced the A's in the next round. He retired them on four pitches. Not to be outdone, Earnshaw made but four pitches to the Nats in their seventh.

3-Run Rally Off Jones in Third Inning Wins First Battle.

35,000 See Champions Outhit; Lead Is Now 12 Games.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—The Nats' good work in Washington Saturday and Sunday was eradicated by the Mackmen here this afternoon when they took both ends of a double-header, 3-2 and 6-5, the twin defeats again putting the Washington Club twelve games back of the league leaders and allowing the Yankees, who won, to pull up within three games of second place.

Both games were thrillers, with the teams battling intense heat as well as each other. Thirty-six thousand packed the stadium and they suffered, too, even tho'igh they saw their idols win twice. Lefty Bob Grove, who hurled the first game, winning his thirteenth straight and his twenty-second of the season, was near collapse at the finish, while Third Baseman Ossie Bluege was overcome in the first game and was unable to play in the second. Throughout both contests noncombatants of both teams swung towels to keep those in the game on their feet.

Jones Pitches By Request.

"Sad Sam" Jones, knocked out in the first round yesterday, asked for another chance today and drew it in the opener. He heard the shower call in the third today, Irving Hadley, who relieved him, performing brilliantly over the balance of the route. All of the scoring was done in two innings, the A's getting their runs in the third and the Nats in the eighth.

The Nationals outhit their foes in both games, but it was home runs which decided the issue in the second, which saw George Earnshaw go the route against Carl Fischer and Lloyd Brown. Simmons put the A's in the lead with his seventeenth homer in the second; Jimmy Foxx's twenty-first came with a man on in the fourth, while Phil Todt's broke a 5-all deadlock in the eighth to put the game in the bag for the champs. The Nats had a threerun lead in the early part of this game, but could not hold it.

West Hits 3 Doubles in Second Game.

Myer, Kuhel and Manush hit two safeties each in the opener, while Sammy West, who had three doubles and a single to show for yesterday's work, duplicated this performance to take sticking honors in the nightcap.

Simmons was a great help to the Mackmen in the first two frames of the second game. In the first, his fine throw from short left after catching Rice's fly nipped Myer, who had opened with a triple, at the plate and in the second he poled out his homer to put his team one to the good.

The Nationals solved Earnshaw for four hits in the third, however, despite a poor decision by Umpire Nallin at the plate and some stupid base-running by Fischer. Spencer opened with a single and Fischer's intended suicide went as a hit. Myer laid down a bunt and was safe on Foxx's bad throw to Williams, covering first. Spencer tried to score on the play and looked to be safe, but Nallin did not see things this way.

Pair of Doubles Scores 4 Runs.

Fischer held second while the play was being made at the plate and then stopped at third on Rice's clean liner to center. Then came Cronin's single and West's double, each of these blows scoring two runs.

In spite of this three-run lead, the Nats were trailing by a run after the home fourth. Earnshaw's double and Cramer's single gave the Macks one in the third and they molded three in the next frame, the result of Simmons' single, Foxx's homer which followed, and Miller's one-baser, Cronin's error, and a helpful out.

The Nats threatened in the fifth and made it five-all in the next frame, which West opened with his third double of the game. He moved up on a wild pitch and cantered home while Williams was tossing out Kuhel. This ended the scoring until Todt's homer over the right field wall gave the Mackmen the game in the eighth.

Grove Rescued by Double Play.

In the opening game, the difference between a Washington victory and defeat lay in a double-play negotiated by the Mackmen in the eighth round, when Grove was mighty close to be declared "out" by Connie Mack. Each team had a big inning in which five hits were inserted, the world's champs scoring four runs on theirs, which included a triple and two doubles, while the Nats were one short as a result of a two-bagger and four clean singles, due to the twin-murder mentioned, which emptied the bases before Washington started to work in earnest.

Due to two walks and a single, the Mackmen had three left in the first, while a man was nipped at the plate in the second. They finally broke

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—There are a number of things in need of correction or abolition, but I have been very busy of late and can only report I have been attending to these matters in the order of their importance. I have now gotten around to condemning the intense physical training that goes with sport, on the ground that the end doesn't justify the means, or vice versa.

For example, I will take the case of the high jumper, who spends hours in the gymnasium in the winter and on the athletic field in the spring, practicing to add quarter-inches to his jump, and goes without cake, pie, cigarettes, ice cream and beer in order to put himself into perfect physical condition for his jumps in the track meets. Now, high jumping is a very foolish pursuit, because the time never will come in the life of a high jumper when he can jump higher than a nonnigh jumper can clamber, with no more effort and certainly with much less preparation.

I have never see na high jumper for any practical purpose in an emergency, so his collegiate practice and abstinence are of no more effect in later years than his Latin and Greek, and the educators are beginning to ease up on Latin and Greek.

The only practical high jumping to be seen in everyday life is that discoursed now and again by bookmakers on the horse tracks when they find themselves short in the reach

KNIGHT COMMANDER WINS INAUGURAL AT HAWTHORNE

Norris' Colt Triumphs by 1-2 Length

Defeats Silverdale in $5,000 Sprint at Six Furlongs.

Royal Tree Repeats at Odds of 7-2 at Empire City.

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Knight Commander, carrying the silks of James Norris, jr., youthful Chicago sportsman, won the $5,000 Inaugural Handicap, which opened the eighteen-day meeting at the historical Hawthorne court today, oldest in Chicago.

The 5-year-old son of Whiskaway—Ruth Ware won by a half length over John F. Schorr's Silverdale, with Brown Wisdom third. Knight Commander ran the 6 furlongs in 1:12 4-5 over a fast track. It was his tenth victory of the season and his fifth triumph in his last six starts.

The stake drew a remarkable field of 23 entries, including practically every crack sprinter in the West, but scratches reduced the starting field to 10. No More and Hot Shot, coupled as the Davidson entry, and My Dandy, stablemate of Brown Wisdom, flashed the early speed and turning into the stretch the Davidson pair were running one-two. Knight Commander, with Frank Chiavetta in the saddle, came from behind to take the lead in midstretch. Knight Commander paid $10.08 to win.

Royal Tree Never Headed.

Empire City Race Track, N. Y., Aug. 3. (A.P.).—Royal Tree, the consistent colt which comprises Ike Perlstein's one-horse stable, carried the coral and sky blue silks to his second straight victory in the Sleepy Hollow Purse of a mile and 70 yards here this afternoon. As in his previous effort, the 4-year-old son of Snob II ran away from his opposition and won as if he outclassed the nine other platers in the race. Jimmy Burke brought the colt home with four lengths of daylight and Royal Tree's backers got odds of 7 to 2. The time was 1:47 1-5.

Royal Tree shot right into the lead and opened up three lengths' margin over Airliner and Goad. The farther Ike's champion went the more he increased his advantage under snug handling. Airliner finally tossed up the sponge in the stretch and Goad also tired. Noine, a slow beginner, came with his usual mighty rush in the final stages, but could not threaten Royal Tree. Burke was using up the latter in the last few yards, but he won by four lengths. Odds closed powerfully to take the low position, a half length behind Noine.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CRYSTAL PRINCE, $23.72, $10.84, $7.42; MAKING BUBBLES, $16.58, $8.54; EXCAVATION, $11.80.

CRYSTAL PRINCE improved his position gradually and, coming fast on the outside in the stretch, got to the front nearing the finish. MAKING BUBBLES made a game bid at midstretch and took a slight advantage, but could not resist winner. EXCAVATION was fairly well up from the start. CURMUDGEON met with interference in the first quarter and made up ground to finish fast. ON SIR and FOXCHASE tired badly after making the pace. ZODE also tired.

SECOND RACE—One hundred and sixty feet more than six furlongs (Hawthorne course). Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward; Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:52. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TADDYWAWA, $9.68, $4.72 $3.20; MORSUN, $13.02, $5.56; NELLIE CUSTIS, $2.42

TADDYWAWA was colse up on the outside from the start and, coming fast in the stretch, caught the early leaders and was slowly drawing away at the end. MORSUN, showing improvement, took command in the stretch and held on fairly well. NELLIE CUSTIS could not keep up in the early stages, but made up some ground in stretch. CULLODEN went fairly well. TOMBREAU tired. OUTCRY was in close quarters soon after the start.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, colts, horses and geldings. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:29. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZIDA, $19.78, $7.68, $6.24; MODERN TIMES, $7.96, $5.90; JIM ORMONT, $6.68.

ZIDA, never far from the pace, moved up steadily after entering the stretch and, catching MODERN TIMES in the last furlong, held her to the finish. MODERN TIMES took a good lead when DOCTOR PARRISH tired and raced fairly well to the finish. JIM ORMONT showed a creditable effort and was close up at end. THE MONGOL made up some ground. MONTANARO raced poorly in the early stages and although making up some ground in stretch, did not threaten. ISLAM raced very wide at stretch turn. DOCTOR PARRISH tired badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, colts, horses and geldings. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:25. Off at 5:37. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL MANAGER, $17.24, $8.78, $6.36; SEARINGTON, $7.70, $6.18; ATLIL, $9.40.

ROYAL MANAGER raced well up from start and, taking a short lead after going half the distance, held away to the finish. SEARINGTON, although meeting with early interference, improved his position steadily and was going well at end. ATLIL, crowded and badly bumped after the start, ran a strong race to stage a game finish. ALTO met with early interference and was on the outside thereafter. DUELIST bore in sharply soon after the start causing GARRICK, ALTO, SEARINGTON and ATLIL to take up. SETH'S BALLOT was shut off and almost fell during the back stretch run.

—Hawthorne Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 3.—An eight-race program will be offered the patrons of Hawthorne today with an allowance affair for 3-year-olds exclusively, a test over the mile-and-a-sixteenth route, as the feature attraction. This event has attracted a list of six game routers to contest the $1,700 purse.

The remainder of the program is turned over to the cheaper platers, but with large fields entered in many races, the contests should offer some thrilling sport.

In the headliner, the consistent MOUTH PIECE, from the LeMar Stock Farm, was beaten a head, but in the shorter route here figures to gain the honors. STONE MARTIN has displayed rare courage in recent efforts and is the one to fear. QUATRA BAS is nicely weighted with 106 pounds and appears best of the others.

FIRST RACE—A limit field of juveniles will face the barrier in the opener at 5½ furlongs. SHARP THOUGHTS, from the Pantages string, faltered in his last, but with that effort as a conditioner, the youngster should show the way to his opponents. KATHERINE FOX, a highly regarded juvenile, has raced with better company and is favored for the place, with FRENCH HONEY, from the Audley string, selected over MISTY for the minor award.

SECOND RACE—ST. JIM appears best of the field pitted against him in the 6½ furlongs of the second. Chief opposition should be furnished by LADY EBONY, with DICK MORRIS given the show call.

THIRD RACE—BLACK COMET showed a splendid performance to finish second to Celtic Prince last start and against this field figures to score easily. CONSCIENCE has raced with classier horses and rates the place call, with DON ALVARO as the show choice.

FOURTH RACE—A select field of juveniles will parade to the post in the fourth event, which will be decided over the five-and-a-half furlong route. UNENCUMBERED has raced consistently in previous races and should have little difficulty in showing the way to his five rivals. PORTDEN finished second to UNENCUMBERED in their last meeting and figures to go as well here. BERTJOHN has not raced to his morning trials but is favored to gain the short end of the purse.

SIXTH RACE—MASTER ACE and RIFF RAFF will battle it out in the sixth at a mile and an eighth, which attracted twenty platers. The former has shown some fair efforts recently and is given the call. ENGLEWOOD has trained well but may falter at the route.

SEVENTH RACE—In the seventh, another large field of platers have been entered to contest the nine furlong test. LADRONE, a clever router, was beaten a neck after setting the pace, and should improve enough to gain the purse. JEM and GORMOND should finish in that order.

EIGHTH RACE—ALLEGRETTO appears best of the claimers which will be dispatched over the mile and a sixteenth of the final event. STIMULATE has turned in some clever performances recently and is the one to fear. ANN CLAY has raced with better horses than she meets here and may prove troublesome. DRASTIC CELT has turned in some speedy trials and may upset the calculations.

STAR PLAYS AID YANKS TO WIN, 9-8

Catches by Ruth and Combs Aid as Red Sox Succumb.

BOSTON, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Brilliant catches in the outfield by Babe Ruth and Earl Combs and fine relief pitching by Vernon Gomez enabled the New York Yankees to emerge with a 9-to-8 decision over the Red Sox in a free-hitting bout today. The victory gave the visitors a 3-to-2 edge thus far in the seven-game series.

After being kept well in hand by Ed Wells for six innings, the Sox came to life to score twice in the seventh, driving him from the box, and then rocked his successor, Johnson, for four more in the eighth. The tying run was on second when the rookie, Gomez, went to the rescue and halted the Boston rebellion.

Earl Webb, Sox outfielder, made his fiftieth and fifty-first doubles of the year, his second one driving in three runs in the eighth.

Runs Still Evade Reds As Cubs Triumph, 8-0

Chicago, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Bob Smith blanked the Cincinnati Reds this afternoon as the Cubs took the series opener, 8 to 0, and thus ran the string of scoreless innings compiled by the cellar occupants to 40. The Reds have not scored in the last four games or in the last four innings of the preceding one.

Silas Johnson was the Red hurler, and he got off to a bad start in the first when Blair beat out a scratch hit, and he walked three men to force over a run. Vince Barton hit the first home run of his Major League career in the third with English on base to cinch the contest. A big seventh inning gave the Cubs five runs on five hits, and brought Ray Kolp into the game to finish up.

In suffering their fourth consecutive shutout the Reds tied the all-time major league record in that respect. Two clubs, the Boston Braves of 1906 and the Cincinnati Reds of 1908, were blanked in four straight games. No team has ever been held scoreless five consecutive times.

DIXIE PIGS' MOUND ACE WILL FACE SAKS IN FINAL GAME

Jones to Face Mannix or Payne

Teams to Clash on Maryland U. Field Next Sunday.

Game Will Determine Championship of City League.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

FOLLOWING their surprise defeat at the hands of the Saks Clothiers on the South Ellipse Sunday, the Dixie Pigs are making strenuous plans to insure themselves against another such defeat when the two teams clash again next Sunday in the third and final tilt of the Capital City League play-off series. The site of the game has not been determined, but it is believed that the Maryland U. Stadium will again be the scene of battle.

Manager Hugh Waldrop still believes he was right in starting "Shorty" Culberson despite the fact that it was off "Shorty" that the Clothiers scored their winning tallies. Culberson tossed plenty of curves in that first inning, but Mulhall, Barry & Co. were stepping into his portside slants, with the result that Mr. Culberson retired after one inning of toil.

"Lefty" Jones, who took up the pitching burden in the second inning, never gave the Saks sluggers a chance to get set for one of his pitches. He mixed his deliveries, and seldom sent one breezing across the center of the pan. The result was easy flies, grounders and pop-ups. Jones, with his lazy, tried-appearing attitude, is one of the best sandlotters in the business, and when he is right he can set his opponents down in one-two-three order. "Lefty" probably will pitch for the Dixies in the final, all-important game.

Payne Likely Choice of Mothershead.

"Wild Bill" Payne, who more than justified Manager Motherhead's faith in him with a commendable performance Sunday, may get the call in the final. Saks played like real champions behind Payne, making some almost impossible catches and using their heads when quick thinking meant disaster or victory. Only on one occasion did a Saks player make a bad play, and the lad who was responsible more than made up for it with his fine play throughout the remainder of the game.

With Payne doing the hurling, Charley Mannix is available for duty on first. This puts Bernie Jones in left field and Barry in center. Ben Birch, on second, rounded out the revamped Clothiers' line-up and the team exhibited the best defensive play it has shown all season.

Payne and Dove Stage Scene.

Payne and Eddie Dove, third baseman of the Suburbanites, gave a realistic imitation of Fred Marberry and Al Simmons when the latter was struck by one of the big boy's pitches midway in the game. Dove, just about half the size of Payne, looked ready for action, but he passed the matter off and took his base. When he was almost dusted off again in the ninth, however, Dove could hardly control his emotions. Payne, too, was a bit rattled at Dove's contention that an attempt was being made to "bean" him. The Saks twirler, naturally wild, was off balance with all of the excitement stirred up by the rooters of both teams.

With a chance at the champion Takoma Tigers the reward awaiting the winner of the last game, both teams will go into action with both barrels cocked. Despite their loss Sunday, the Pigs still reign as favorites, but after Sunday's thriller almost anything can be expected.

MIRACLES OF SPORTS. —By Robert Edgren

Diamond Dust

R. E. McDONALD, one of the most popular members of the District of Columbia Umpires Association, is taking a panning from his friends as a result of an error in the box score of the Saks-Dixie Pig game Sunday. The summary listed the umpires of the game as Hughes and McDonald, whereas the latter was far, far from the scene of battle umpiring another game. We hope that this note will save Mr. McDonald from any more of those irritating remarks such as, "Well, you certainly made a mess of things in that game."

Just one more sidelight on the game and we'll leave you in peace. It seems to us that the management of the Saks Team owes Mike Eslin, the batboy, a big vote of thanks and free transportation to the next game for his unceasing "rooting" for his favorites Sunday. Mike appointed himself a one-man cheering section for the Clothiers, using every opportunity to make a remark about the opposition. The main objects of Make's chatter were "Fee" Collier and "Huck" Snahl, and although the pair pretended not to hear, a deaf man couldn't have escaped Mike's scathing denunciation.

The Takoma Tigers and St. Joseph's A. C. have made tentative arrangements for a game to be played Sunday. The site of the game is the main problem facing the teams, although two fields may be made available for the fray.

All members of Spengler Post Team are requested to attend an important meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Manager Hayre. Plans for the forthcoming trip to Charles Town, W. Va., will be discussed.

Members of the National Pale Dry Midgets are to report today at 5 p. m. on the Camp Meigs diamond for their game with Nash Post.

Manager Beall of the Cherrydale A. C. is anxious to get in touch with the manager of the O Street Yankees concerning a game for Sunday. Beall can be reached at Clarendon 703-W-1 after 6 p. m.

Candidates for the Congress Heights A. C. Football Team are requested to meet Wednesday at the home of Alton Cox, 615 Alabama avenue southeast at 8:30 p. m.

The Annandale A. C., which scored a 12-7 victory over the Cavaliers Sunday, is anxious to arrange more games with unlimited teams. The manager of the Annandale Club can be reached at Columbia 6363.

"Snitz" Nau's Olmsted Grill Team are rarin' to go after their 5-to-3 defeat of the Chevy Chase A. C. Sunday. Any strong unlimited teams are challenged for games. "Snitz" can be reached at Potomac 6134.

The Saks Clothiers are without a game for Saturday due to the third cancellation of a scheduled game with the Naval Hospital tossers. Dick Mothershead would like to arrange a game with a fast unlimited nine. He can be reached at District 3050 during the day.

The Bethesda A. C. is seeking games for Thursday at 5 p. m. and Saturday at 3 p. m. Manager Best can be reached between 5 and 7 p. m. at Bradley 233.

FIREMEN BOOKING.

The District of Columbia Fire Department Nine is booking games with strong unlimited teams preparatory to its annual clash with the Police Nine. The Smoke Eaters have won fourteen of fifteen games played this Season. Manager Hager, at Engine Company No. 9, is arranging the schedule.

JUNIOR NINES IN CRUCIAL SERIES

Stewarts to Oppose Schwartz Sunday in Play-off.

PLAY for the junior championship of The Post's Captial City League will begin Sunday when the Stewart's Pharmacy and Schwartz Jewelry Co. teams meet in the first of a three-game series. The Stewart nine clinched the Section A title with a hard-fought 3-2 victory over the Ross Jewelers Sunday. The Schwartz Team captured its section title several weeks ago.

The managers of the two teams will meet Thursday night in the Sports Department of The Post to receive final instructions for the play-off. The same rules which have governed play throughout the regular Capital City League season will be followed in the titular series.

High School Stars Boasted by Rivals.

Both teams are composed chiefly of high school players. The Pharmacists, however, have been together since their insect days, when the team was under the direction of "Spud" Coleman. Of course there have been additions to the squad, but taken as a whole the team is the same as the one which finished in a three-cornered tie for the insect title in 1928. Playing together has welded the boys into a clean-fielding, hard-hitting aggregation that the Jewelers are going to find hard to beat.

The Jewelers have also been together for the last two seasons, and the team that Manager Raymond has steered to the city title series this year compares favorably with last year's team. Containing some of the best of the junior players, the Jewelers swept everything before them in their section, and seem in a fair way capable of doing the same against the Druggists.

Schwartz Has Edge in Hitting.

The latter nine scored some easy victories over admittedly strong opponents, but the team does not shape up with the champions of Section B. The Stewart batters can hit, but the Schwartz team can hit just a bit harder, and their fielding is good, but the Jewelers again shade them by a fair-sized margin.

There is only one advtantage the Brooklanders hold over their opponents, and that is their ability to keep fighting when the cause seems lost, and it is this fighting spirit that may lash them into a mad frenzy that will eventually carry them to the city title.

Cards Awarded Moss, Pitcher, From Brooklyn

Pittsburgh, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Secretary Clarence Lloyd of the St. Louis Cardinals announced here today that the Cardinals had been awarded Pitcher Ray Moss on waivers from Brooklyn. Moss, Lloyd said, earlier in the season was awarded to Boston, but reverted to Brooklyn.

Since the Cardinals already have the summer limit of 25 players, it is regarded as likely that Moss will be sent to one of their minor league farms.

Alexandria Sports

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 3.—The third annual tennis tournament of the Alexandria Recreation Department will be held on August 10 on the local courts, it was announced today by Director J. Prex Wilson.

Eight players must be entered in each class for the tournament to be held and the names of all entrants must be submitted to the office of the director of recreation not later than August 6.

The matches will be played at 5 o'clock. Prizes will be given to the winners of all groups. This tennis tournament will be a feature in connection of the closing of the grounds for the summer season.

Last year's senior title was won by Joe Duncan, while Charlie Nicholson copped the junior honors. The matches attracted lots of attention.

Coddles Owens has been selected to coach the Iroquois football team for the 1931 season. This was decided at a meeting of the players held today.

The Iroquois won the senior honors here in 1930.

George Beats Stasiak After Losing First Fall

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Ed Don George defeated Stan Stasiak in a spit-fall wrestling match here tonight. Stasiak won the first fall in 16:49, George the second and third in 15:48 4-5, and 4:44 4-5. George weighed 219; Stasiak 253.

Len Macaluso, former Colgate football star, has his record string of 27 straight victories broken when Rudy Laditzi held him to a 30-minute draw. Macaluso weighed 195, Laditzi 222.

Dempsey Divorce At Reno Is Delayed

Reno, Nev., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Crowded calendars in the divorce courts and minor details of a property agreement prevented Reno's divorce judges from hearing the cases today of Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., and Jack Dempsey.

Robert Burns, attorney for Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, announced that because a few details of his property settlement with Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress, remained to be cleared up, Dempsey's complaint would not be filed before further conferences with Miss Taylor's attorney.

Pitching Record of Grove Overshadows Rival League

As the major league races draw nearer to the deciding days, pitching becomes one of the chief topics of conversation among the fans. It is noted and commented upon that the National League has no pitcher ranking with Grove, who yesterday won his twenty-second game, or Earnshaw. The Cards, rushing along to another pennant, have four or five men of about equal ability. One is the old reliable Burleigh Grimes, yet Grimes boasts of no such record as the two main shooters of the champion Athletics.

Brooklyn has one of the outstanding pitchers in the country in Dazzy Vance, but his record beside Grove is a sad one. McGraw has three fine pitchers in Hubbell, Walker and Fitzsimmons, but they show no such marks as the Athletics' pair.

There are all kinds of rumors going the rounds of late that Lefty Grove's arm is sore, that he won't be able to reach the high mark of 30 victories. Critics have said that Mack has overworked his three best shots. That criticism is best answered in the present standing of the Mackmen, who can take a beating now and then from their chief foes and still count on coasting through to another title.

The American League through the last ten years always has had outstanding pitchers. It is felt in the American League now that the Athletics have their flag almost nailed down, that Grove will be worked in spots to set a new winning record for pitchers. He comes nearer to having a chance of upsetting Sergeant Bagby's 31 victories set in 1920 than any pitcher since that time.

In this connection the figures of leading pitchers since Bagby's days may be worth passing up for reference as Grove keeps up his stunts.

BRITISH STAR PLAYS MRS. VAN RYN

Pair Reach Finals in Net Tourney at Southampton.

EASTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Dorothy Shepherd-Barron, captain of the British Wightman Cup Team, and Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, gained the final round in the annual maidstone invitation tennis tournament today. Mrs. Shepherd-Barron's way to the final was reached with far less expenditure of energy than Mrs. Van Ryn's.

The latter played five hard sets in singles, defeating Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere, of Boston, 3—6, 6—3, 6—1, in the third round, and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, of Wilmington, Del., in the semifinals, 6—4, 10—8.

The British star with the odd service stroke dropped the first set to Mary Greef, of Kansas City, but finally won at 4—6, 6—3, 6—3.

In all, Mrs. Van Ryn played 75 games of tennis today. After her singles matches she took the court with Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana., Calif, star, and lost in doubles to Sarah and Mianne Palfrey, the Boston sisters, 6—4, 7—5.

Briton Varies Game for Victory.

Mrs. Shepherd-Barron encountered a serious and hard-hitting Miss Greef in their semifinal round match and she won mainly because she mixed her driving game with a plentitude of lobs of varying length.

Miss Greef and Penelope Anderson, Richmond, Va., were at set point five times before they eliminated the Palfrey sisters in the doubles quarter-finals, 2—6, 9—7, 6—3.

Semifinal round survivors in women's doubles found both English combinations still in the field. Betty Nuthall and Phyllis Mudford gained the round before the finals by beating Alice Marble, San Francisco, and Dorothy Weisel, Sacramento, 6—1, 6—3, after which the other Britishers—Mrs. Eilleen Bennett Whittingstall and Dorothy Round—eliminated Norma Taubele, New York, and Mrs. Jessie Spalding, Easthampton, 6—3, 6—2.

Tomorrow the Nuthall-Mudford team encounters Mrs. Jessup and Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, Mass., while Mrs. Whittingstall and Miss Round meet Miss Anderson and Miss Greef.

HIGH JUMP AND VAULT CALLED UNNECESSARY

effort and such painful self-denial learning to heave himself up and over a bar that any child would have the sense to go under, not over.

All this physical training has the primary object of improving the subject's proficiency in athletics, but I am in a very surly mood about the whole proposition, and I don't even grant that proficiency in athletics will be of as much benefit in the long run as proficiency in telling Scotch jokes or drinking Scotch whisky.

In later years, when an athlete is in business, he is rather likely to find that if he goes around bulging his muscles and saying to people, "Feel how hard my legs are; that comes from high jumping of Exeter and Williams," he will fail to land the job or the order because the other people around the table in the club, where business is done, haven't been taking very good care of themselves and resent the smug superiority of any one who does. Very little business is done on the running track or on the gymnasium tackle because business is a sedentary occupation, very often attended by ham-and-cheese on rye and alcoholic refreshments with a Scotch joke running clear.

Training Routine Is Abnormal.

The training routine of the athlete is an abnormal method of life and in a way the athlete who goes to such extremes to improve himself at his games is taking an unfair advantage of the fellow who lives the normal life and goes at sport just as he happens to be. Certainly, a fellow of, say, 35 years, who stands on his toes and breathes "Ah" 35 times before an open window every morning winter and summer, and puts in his spare time goading himself to strenuous sport can not claim to be living a normal life, and obviously he is no even match for the man of the same age who follows the normal human inclination to spare himself all avoidable physical effort.

The theory behind all this training appears to be that in time everybody will be athletic and that the span of life will be much prolonged. Extended to its logical conclusion, this theory in its fulfillment would have everybody living forever, which would be a pretty terrible state of affairs. The world would be cluttered up with a lot of old bores calling themselves the grand old men of one sport or another and nothing would ever get done any more with these old ones posing for their pictures in leopard-skin rugs and the young ones constantly drinking milk and training and admiring their physical development.

U. S. L. T. A. Selects Players For Wightman Cup Team

Mrs. Moody, Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Harper, Marjorie Morrill, Mrs. Jessup and Mrs. Wightman Named.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Three women stars from the Far West and three from the East were selected today to represent the United States in the Wightman Cup matches with Great Britain at Forest Hills Friday and Saturday.

The team captain, Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, of Boston, will have valuable assistance from Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, of San Francisco; Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif.; Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper of Oakland, Calif.; Marjorie Morrill, of Dedham, Mass., and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, of Wilmington, Del.

Of this formidable squad, Mrs. Harper and Miss Morrill, the country's first and second ranking players, will be newcomers to Wightman Cup competition. Mrs. Moody has been on every American Wightman Cup team since the series was started in 1923 except in 1926, when illness kept her off the courts. Mrs. Wightman, as a doubles player exclusively, has been on four teams, as has Miss Jacobs. Mrs. Wightman participated in the 1923-24-27-29 series and Miss Jacobs, called out first for service in 1927, has been on every team since. Mrs. Jessup played with the American squad in 1924 and 1926.

The squad, as selected, contains only two players represented on the ranking list of 32 prepared by the United States Lawn Tennis Association on the basis of 1930 play. Neither Mrs. Moody nor Miss Jacobs was ranked on account of "insufficient data." Mrs. Jessup just this year has emerged from a semiretirement and Mrs. Wightman's fame lies chiefly in her doubles play.

Mrs. Jessup's selection came as no surprise to tennis followers, for the Wilmington veteran has come back with a vengeance this year. At Seabright, she gave Mrs. Moody her only real competition, taking seven games from "Golden Helen" in the semifinals. Mrs. Moody went on to crush Miss Jacobs by love scores in the finals.

Opposing the Americans in the five singles and two doubles matches will be a strong British team, including Betty Nuthall, Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, Mrs. Dorothy C. Shepherd-Barron, Phyllis Mudford and Dorothy Round.

The order in which the American players will participate in singles and doubles will be announced Wednesday by the International play committee of the U. S. L. T. A. The draw for play against their English competitors will not be made public the same evening.

SWIM TITLES IN BALANCE SATURDAY

Annual D. C. A. A. U. Meet Scheduled at Tech Pool.

THE annual District A. A. U. swimming championship meet will be held Saturday starting at 2 p. m. in the Tech High School swimming pool. Entries for the meet close at the pool Thursday at 6 p. m. A fee of 50 cents must accompany each entry blank.

Six events each for men and women and two for boys and girls under 16 years of age are on the program. The men's program includes a 200-yard free-style race, 150-yard back stroke, 100-yard breast stroke and 50-yard free style races and low-board diving. Women will compete in the 100-yard free style, 100-yard back stroke, 100-yard breast stroke, 50-yard free style races and low-board diving. The diving event consists of five compulsory and six voluntary dives. Children under 16 will compete in a 50-yard free-style race.

Two Sets of Prizes to Winners.

Prizes include the District of Columbia A. A. U. gold, silver and bronze medals awarded first, second and third place winners in each event, and the Welfare Recreational Association gold, silver and bronze medals also awarded the three swimmers crossing the line ahead of the rest of the field.

The North Capitol Citizens Association Trophy will be presented to the club or organization whose swimmers score the highest number of points in the championship events. To obtain permanent possession of the trophy a club must win it three times.

Philadelphia, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—George "Mule" Haas, center fielder of the Philadelphia Athletics, has a fractured left wrist and will be lost to the champions for at least three weeks. The extent of the injury was discovered today when the wrist was X-rayed. Haas injured the wrist on July 25. He played in both games that day, but suffered so much pain he could not play the next day at Cleveland. The injury was diagnosed as a sprain, but the soreness continued, so it was decided to X-ray the wrist.

TENNIS ACES ADVANCE IN TOURNEY

9 of First 10 Ranked in Competition at Southampton.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Favorites generally marched through the first round of competition in the annual Meadow Club tennis tournament today. Boasting the most representative entry list in its history, the tournament drew nine of this country's first ten ranking players, including the national champion, John Hope Doeg, of Newark, N. J. The only absentee among the first ten stars was Frank X. Shields, of New York.

All of the top ranking stars advanced, including Doeg, Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Calif., Doeg's conqueror in the Longwood Bowl and Seabright tournaments; Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex.; Sidney B. Wood, jr., New York, defending champion; Gregory S. Mangin, Newark, N. J.; John Van Ryn, Philadelphia; George Lott, Philadelphia, and Bryan Grant, of Atlanta.

Stars Extended to 3 Sets.

Lott, Grant and Sutter all had some sort of trouble in the first round. Lott was carried to three sets by Martin Buxby, of Miami, Fla., 2—6, 6—2, 6—0. Frittering away a first-set lead, and then bearing down, Grant elimina'ed Edward W. Feibleman, of New York, 11-13, 6—3, 6—4. Sutter stopped Victor Hockmeyer, New York, in three sets, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1.

Doeg's first-round opponent, Irwin A. Powell, of Southampton, surrendered at 6—3, 6—4. Vines overpowered Ryan Hamlin, East Hampton, 6—3, 6—3, and Wood accounted for E. M. Beales, a local product, 6—3, 6—4.

Mangin put out William R. Bragawa, of New York, 6—2, 6—2; and Van Ryn outscored Henry S. Moore, White Plains, N. Y., 6—1, 7

MILK IN HOT WEATHER.

THIS is the season of the year to watch the quality of the milk. A dirty product is not nice in any season, but it moves from the not nice into the dangerous class when the weather gets hot. There are several methods by which we can get a rough idea of the cleanliness of milk. The United States Department of Agriculture, dairy division, on request, will send a copy of milk inspector letter No. 148, "Uses of the Methylene-Blue Test."

This is a simple test that can be used by dairy inspectors, farm inspectors, managers of creameries and dealers in milk. If creamery managers would make this test on the milk brought to them, and show the results to their farmer patrons, they would get a cleaner product. The test is a simple procedure by which the amount of dirt in a quart of milk can be demonstrated. It does not require expensive equipment nor is it difficult to operate. It is a valuable procedure by which a creamery operator can improve the quality of his supply.

In towns where the dairy men do not clarify their milk the purchaser may get helpful information by looking for dirt on the inside of the bottom of the bottle. This method is of no service if the milk has been clarified.

The consumer will do well if he refuses to buy milk that has not been chilled and then kept cold until the time of delivery. Incidentally, the consumer not equipped to keep milk cold in the home had better limit his household to milk powder, condensed or evaporated milk, during the hot season, at least. Any person in the habit of buying dipped milk had better switch to bottled milk for the warm season.

As a rule, buying milk from a neighbor and getting milk from one cow is a very dangerous practice. Many persons have picked up tuberculosis, typhoid fever, and undulant fever that way. However, if the practice is ever justified it is during hot weather. The advantage of getting milk twice a day and consuming it within six hours after it comes from the cow may outweigh the disadvantages and dangers of the supply—at least during the hot months.

A milk purchaser who is in doubt about his supply had better boil the milk or pasteurize it. Milk can be pasteurized in the home. It can be heated, put in a thermos bottle while hot, and then set to one side and left. Under room conditions, the process of pasteurization will keep up for several hours.

BLISTERS ON THE FEET.

D. E. R. writes: What is the cause of small blisters appearing on the soles of the feet? I pierce them with a sterilized needle, water comes from them, I put iodine on the open sore and it heals up. This continues on other places of the soles of the feet. They heal up almost in a day or two after they are pierced and the water comes out.

Could this be from improper shoes, or is it a symptom of some disease?

REPLY.

This disease is known as pompholyx. Most cases are due to ringworm.

The treatment of ringworm of the feet is well known. Wearing well ventilated shoes and cool stockings helps.

KEEP YOUR FINGERS CLEAN.

G. H. writes: How can I cure hangnails? They are very painful.

REPLY.

Keep the nails and fingertips clean. Protect them against too much water, soap and chemicals.

STOCKS RETAIN PART OF GAINS AT CLOSING

Market Opens With Advance in Prices, But Losses Cut Rises 1 to 3 Points.

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Stocks began the new week today with a show of spirit, but tired of the rally in the last hour when much of the extreme advance, running from 1 to 3 points, disappeared.

Final prices, however, were higher for most principal issues, as the late selling was only half-hearted and failed to accelerate the sluggish pace of the earlier advance. Sales totaled 882,700 shares.

In the absence of domestic influences, it was assumed that the smoothness with which German financial affairs appear to be running and the sustained recovery of the English pound had removed immediate causes of worry abroad, permitting a closer examination of the state of trade at home. Brokerage houses are counting on a recovery after Labor Day, although it is admitted that the durability of any improvement will be the important point.

Commodities Are Unstable.

A good deal depends on what the commodities do; at present they are very unstable. Dun's index of wholesale prices sagged seven-tenths of 1 per cent during July, contrasting with a narrow June gain.

Market theorists were encouraged by the action of the rail shares, which gave a fairly satisfactory performance, although the trading in that group was lifeless. New York Central got 3 points higher, although it had to yield two-thirds of the rise. Union Pacific, Illinois Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago Northwestern and Delaware & Hudson closed with gains of 1 to 2. New Haven and Nickel Plate preferred were up 3.

Steel shares showed fair vitality but final advances were fractional. American Can, Westinghouse and J. I. Case turned heavy toward the close, although Westinghouse recovered. International Silver dropped 8 points on a few sales. McKeesson & Roberts, Saewy, Endicott Johnson & Penney were willing to rise. Allied Chemical's 8-point advance was cut in half.

Standard Oil Shares.

Standard Oil of New Jersey responded to declaration of the regular and usual extra dividend and there was a moderate amount of interest in other petroleum stocks on the strength of further crude price increases. The Standard of Indiana dividend cut was announced just as the market was closing, accompanied by President Seubert's statement that prospects of improvement in the oil industry were currently better than for some time past.

Shorts in cotton covered in the early trading, but the advance failed to hold and the close was 4 points net lower to 1 higher. Wheat eased ⅝ to ¾ of a cent, influenced by an increase in visible supply, bearish crop estimates and beneficial Northwestern rains. Corn also sagged, finishing ⅜ to 1⅜ cents lower, reflecting rainy weather and unofficial forecasts on the crop.

Receipts of about $1,000,000 in gold from England, the first importation since October, 1929, represented a private commercial transaction. Banks here did nothing to contribute to the Bank of England's problems during the recent period of sterling's weakness, although the flow to this country might well have been large. Now that the British central bank is fortified by a huge credit in New York and Paris, local bankers anticipate no further concern over the pound. Cables advanced three-sixteenths today, reaching 4.86 11-16. Other European rates, notably the Dutch guilder, were firm.

POTOMAC INSURANCE SELECTS DIRECTORS

Meeting of August 1, 1831, Recalled With Comparison of Resources.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Stockholders of the Potomac Insurance Co. of the District of Columbia met yesterday and cast their annual ballot for directors to serve for the ensuing year. Directors are as follows: J. W. Lawler, Lee Brown, Henry Gomont, A. A. Hoehling, Charles E. Hood, Charles E. Howe, O. H. P. Johnson, Thomas C. Moore, F. Norie-Miller, S. Norie-Miller, C. F. R. Ogilby, Alexander K. Phillips, Frederick Richardson, George W. White.

The company celebrated its 100th anniversary March 2, and in connection with yesterday's elections it is of interest to note an election that took place on Monday, August 1, 1831. At this meeting the following trustees or directors of the company were declared elected: Otho M. Linthicum, Clement Smith, William S. Nicholls, Charles A. Burnett, William Hayman, Raphael Semmes, Joel Cruttenden, William W. Corcoran, Robert Read, John Marbury, Lewis Johnson, John Kurtz.

All Prominent Men.

All of the latter were prominent men of Georgetown and Washington at that time. It is also noted that the following evening, August 2, there was held an election of officers of this old company and the names of W. W. Corcoran and Raphael Semmes appear as tellers upon that occasion, having "passed and collected the ballots of those present."

The minutes of July, 1831, state that a financial statement was presented. It showed the paid-in capital stock as $15,100. The surplus then was $4,289.61 and the company had outstanding insurance of $344,200.

Rates at that time were high and upon receiving an application for a policy on any one risk, the board of directors were called together to decide what rate was equitable for the property. Very often the risk was rejected. The insurance rate on brick dwellings in the outlying limits of Georgetown in those days was $5 per thousand. At present, it is announced as $1 per thousand anywhere within the District.

George W. White is president of the Potomac Insurance Co.; Alexander K. Phillips, secretary; J. W. Lawler and W. C. Dent, assistant secretaries.

Capital Now $500,000.

The company, it was stated yesterday, now shows paid-in capital of $500,000 and surplus to policy-holders of $1,855,415.12. It operates in 42 states and is said to be the oldest and strongest fire insurance company in Washington.

Washington Rapid Transit Co. filed its June statement of operations yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. In the item of net income for the month, a surplus of $1,082.42 is shown against a deficit of $2,500.44 for the month last year. For the first half of 1931, there is a deficit in this item of $1,262.64, as compared with a deficit of $3,728.07 for the corresponding period in 1930.

Word has been received from the American College of Life Underwriters at Pittsburgh that four Washington men have been awarded the C. L. U. certificates after passing the special examinations. The examinations were taken by 521 candidates, representing 151 cities and towns in 37 States and the District of Columbia, British Guina and Cuba.

The American College of Life Underwriters, which awards the C. L. U., was established by outstanding leaders in the life insurance vocation for the threefold purpose of (1) encouraging and fostering training of students in educational institutions for the career of professional life underwriter, (2) cooperating with educational institutions in general life insurance education and (3) recognizing properly qualified life underwriters with a professional designation.

Washington Men Honored.

Washington men honored are Carl S. Dow, agent Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.; Joseph A. Marr, associate general agent State Mutual Life Assurance Co; Earle W. Sapp, general agent New England Mutual Life Insurance Co; Paul D. Sleeper, general agent Aetna Life Insurance Co. Washingtonians who hold C. L. U. certificates awarded prior to this year are Maynard C Burrell, James A. DeForce, H. Cochran Fisher, Frank D. Roach, Dwight T. Scott and H. Lawrence Choate.

A slight recession after the optimism engendered by the Hoover Moratorium plan, but no marked changes in the business situation, are observed by Dr. Stephen I. Miller, executive manager National Association of Credit Men, in his monthly business review sent to the association's 25,000 members yesterday.

Writer Addresses Women's Council

Mrs. Florence Stoddard Reviews Book at Meeting of Democratic Club.

Mrs. Florence Jackson Stoddard, writer and authority on world affairs, last night was the principal speaker at a picnic meeting of the District Women's Democratic Educational Council, held in Rock Creek Park, when she gave a review of "America Comes of Age."

Her talk on the book was made more interesting to members of the organization when it was learned that the author has written a political novel which deals with the political life around Washington, and which will be published soon. Some of the books she has written are "Myths of Gnaranis," "At the Shoe of Venus," "A Comedy of Industry" and "As Old as the Moon."

This was one of the regular outdoor meetings of organizations, which have become the custom during the summer months. They are held monthly, and following the main address there is always a discussion of topics of interest to active Democratic women. Mrs. Clara Wright Smith is president of the council.

Arlington Kiwanis Club To Receive Its Charter

The Kiwanis Club of Arlington County will hold its weekly meeting tomorrow at Windsor Arms, Glebe road, at 12:15 o'clock. At this meeting final plans for "charter night," which has been announced for the evening of August 12, at Arlington Hall, will be made.

President Amos C. Crounse announced last night that the charter will be presented to the club by F. Berry Plummer, of Hagerstown, Md., district governor. The acceptance address will be made by the president.

FAMOUS SEER
THE MAN WHO KNOWS

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be, tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills and suits. If it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power. Tells you exactly what you wish to know. Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Don't delay. DAILY, 10-8 P. M. SUNDAY, 10-3 P. M. (Copyrighted, 1931.)

DRIVER OF AVENGER IN ALLEGED ATTACK CASE IS ARRESTED

REPORTED ASSAILANTS APPEAR BEFORE JUDGE

Police Hunt for Two More Believed to Have Aided Wheaton Resident.

Thomas King, 26 years old, of 2100 Nineteenth street northwest, the alleged driver of the automobile in which William H. Gordon, of Wheaton, Md., avenged an alleged attempted assault by two men upon Mrs. Anne Noble Sparks, was arrested yesterday and charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

King was taken into custody by Precinct Detective Robert L. Jones, of the Tenth Precinct, and is accused of having aided Gordon in an alleged assault on the accused assailants of the woman.

Gordon and the two alleged assailants of the woman were given a preliminary hearing yesterday before Judge Ralph Given in Police Court. Gordon was bound over to the grand jury under $3,000 bond.

Two Others Are Held.

William P. Dermott and Howell R. Boulden, both 23, were held by Judge Given for Prince Georges County authorities. They are wanted by the Maryland police for attempted criminal assault on Mrs. Sparks, who lives at 1101 Clifton street northwest. She is still in a serious condition at Sibley Hospital.

Meanwhile police were seeking two more men believed to have aided Gordon in his alleged reprisals. Although the latter denied he was accompanied by any one else, Dermott and Boulden have furnished police with descriptions of men they said were with him when he picked them up in his car.

Claims Bad Beating.

Dermott told police he was badly beaten by Gordon after he had been forced at pistol point to enter his car and driven to M street, around the corner from Sibley Hospital. He said both he and Boulden were then driven to a garage near Eighteenth street and Columbia road, where they were both beaten by Gordon with a blackjack.

Police, who responded to calls of neighbors, said he was still beating the two when they arrived. They arrested the trio. The three other men were said to have fled.

2 Capital Youths Taken in Baltimore

Detective Questions Pair About $426 Found in Luggage.

Two Washington youths, arrested on suspicion in Baltimore yesterday, were being questioned late last night by Detective Sergt. Van D. Hughes, of the Washington police, regarding the presence of $426.60 in small change and bills, which was found in two suit cases taken from their possession by Baltimore detectives.

Those arrested are Thomas J. Sullivan, 20 years old, who said he was from this city but refused to give his address, and William D. Blue, 18 years old, who said he lives on Tenth street near D street northwest.

Each of them, according to Baltimore police, had an unloaded pistol and bullets in his coat pocket. They refused to talk, according to police, but their landlord told authorities that they moved into an apartment last Saturday.

They are being held for investigation.

Policeman Wrests Gun From Attacker

Man Allegedly Drunk Is Arrested After Displaying Pistol.

Pluck and quick thinking saved Patrolman M. C. Houck, of the Second Precinct, from possible death last night when he wrenched a pistol from the grasp of an allegedly drunken Negro.

Houck had gone to 423 M street northwest to investigate a complaint that a drunken man was behaving in a disorderly manner in front of the house. He found a Negro on the front steps of the house in a drunken condition, he said. On approaching him, Houck said the Negro pulled out a pistol and stuck it against his stomach.

Houck wrenched the gun from the Negro's grasp, he reported. It was not discharged. The Negro gave his name as James L. Lewis, 60 years old, of the M street address. He was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Thief Snatches Money From Depositor in Bank

While counting his money in a bank at Seventh and M streets northwest, between $75 and $100 was snatched from the hands of Emmett M. Pursley, 17 Bryant street northwest, by a colored man who ran out of the door, Mr. Pursley told police.

He said he thinks he can identify the man who was described as between 22 and 25 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall and a rather neat dresser, wearing a straw colored shirt, dark pants and a dark cap. Mr. Pursley said he was standing at a table counting the bills, when the thief grabbed them from his hands.

Boy, 5, Injured by Auto.

Russell Lyles, jr., colored, 5 years old, of 63 Quincy place northwest, was seriously hurt yesterday when struck by an automobile at First and Florida avenue northwest, driven by Fannie G. Brown, colored, 30 years old, of 1891 Oregon avenue northwest. He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital. He is believed to have a fracture of the skull.

OFFICER'S WIFE GETS CLASS B RATING IN GLIDER TEST

The officer is stationed here with the Bureau of Naval Aeronautics. Lieut. and Mrs. Barnaby live at 4336 Lowell street northwest. They are attending the second annual national glider and soaring contest being held in Elmira, N. Y. The lieutenant flew the first glider from the dirigible Los Angeles. The contests will continue for two weeks. Only one pilot, Robert Eaton, of Norwich, has earned a Class A rating so far.

PROBATE IS ASKED OF HENDERSON WILL

Document of April 8, 1931, Offered Executor; Estate Shrinks.

The District Supreme Court was asked yesterday to admit to probate the last will of Mrs. Mary F. Henderson, in which Jesse Shima, Japanese confidante of the aged Sixteenth street dowager, was named as one of the principal beneficiaries.

The move, the first of a series of legal maneuvers that is certain to follow because of the filing of six wills of Mrs. Henderson, was initiated by George E. Edelin, named as executor, through Julius I. Peyser, his law partner.

Estate Over $1,000,000.

The request for probate of the will, which was dated April 8, 1931, showed a vast difference between the popular estimate of the Henderson estate and that of the executor. Mr. Edelin said that there was real estate "in excess of $1,000,000" and personal property valued at $275,000. Heretofore estimates of the estate dominated by the former social dictator of Washington have run as high as $6,000,000. Frequent heavy "donations" have depleted the estate's resources.

Maj. Peyser notified the court that an audit would be necessary to determine exactly just what were the holdings of the estate. The estate of Mrs. Henderson, her husband, the late John B. Henderson, senator from Missouri, and her son, John B. Henderson, jr., are closely intermingled.

The executor asked the Supreme Court to issue citations to Henry N. Arnold, Frances Arnold, Beatrice Henderson Wholean, Harry A. Seay, Jesse S. Shima, C. K. Hasegawa, William Carter and the National Gallery of Art. The citation would place under "notice" all the principal beneficiaries without mentioning Dr. John H. Kellogg, who is a major beneficiary under one of the half dozen wills.

Arnolds Only Heirs at Law.

The only heirs at law and next of kin of Mrs. Henderson are Henry N. Arnold and Frances Arnold, both of New York City, the court is told. The petition further sets forth that Mrs. Henderson left as a survivor Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean, whose adoption by the wealthy widow was being attacked by her at the time of her death.

Others interested in the probate of other wills of Mrs. Henderson are expected to follow Mr. Edelin's lead in asking that the wills of various dates be admitted to probate. Courthouse attaches believe the outcome will eventually be placed before a jury in Probate Court for adjudication. They believe there is small chance of an out-of-court agreement since the beneficiaries of numerous wills are so widely separated in what they would receive.

Boy, 14, Is Arrested As Police Hunt Thief

Arrested in Catlin's, Inc., electrical fixture store, at 1324 New York avenue northwest, when the establishment opened for business yesterday morning, Alexander Bundy, 14, colored, who said he lived at 815 Florida avenue northeast, was turned over to the receiving home by Firs' Precinct police.

Police had set a trap there to catch thieves who allegedly removed several radio sets from the store. Alexander told authorities that he found the rear door open and walked in.

ELKS LODGES PLAN MARYLAND REUNION

Three-Day Meeting Begins Next Monday in Cumberland.

A reunion of the lodges of the B. P. O. Elks of Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia will be held next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at Fort Cumberland Hotel, in Cumberland, Md., where plans have been made for an interesting program of events.

BIDS ON NEW HEALTH STRUCTURE OPENED

Capital Firm Enters Lowest Figure for Work Including Terraces.

Bids on the new Public Health Office Building to be constructed between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, Constitution avenue and C street, were opened in the Office of the Supervising Architect yesterday. When bids were invited it was requested that two figures be submitted, one including and the other excluding the terracing portion of the work.

The National Construction Co., at 631 Tower Building, Washington, was low for the bid which included the terraces with an offer of $823,899. Second place went to the Wills, Taylor & Mafera Corporation, of 303 West Forty-second street, New York City, with a bid of $826,000. For the alternate proposals these same two companies placed low, but with the order reversed. Wills, Taylor & Mafera bid $776,000 and the National Construction Co. $786,899 for the work excluding the terracing. Close bidding was evident throughout the list of companies submitting figures.

The American Elevator Co., of Louisville, Ky., was low bidder for construction of the elevators with a bid of $20,448. Second place went to the Westbrook Elevator Co., of Danville, Va., who bid $20,865. Washington concerns did not fare so well in this part of the work, the Haughton Elevator & Machine Co bidding $21,896, the Otis Elevator Co. $20,932 and the A. B. See Elevator Co. $24,000.

J. H. de Sibour, of Washington, is architect for the building.

Woman Is Exonerated In Auto Death of Child

Mrs. Catherine Robertson, 40, 5208 Fifth street northwest, was exonerated yesterday by a coroner's jury of blame in the death of 6-year-old William A. S. Stokes, 4418 Fifteenth street northwest, run over and killed by her car Sunday night.

Mrs. Robertson, an employe of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., said she did not see the boy in time to avoid striking him. William, the only son of Mrs. Mildred S. Stokes, suffered a fractured skull, broken legs, and internal injuries, from which he died. The accident occurred at Fifteenth and Buchanan streets northwest.

ATTORNEY ESCAPES SHOT FROM PISTOL; POLICE ARREST MAN

John F. Land, 37, Accused of Firing at M. J. O'Connor During Argument.

BULLET MISSES, BURIES ITSELF IN NEARBY DOOR

No Explanation Made as to Nature of Quarrel in K Street House.

John Fletcher Land, 37 years old, was arrested by police of the Third Precinct last night and charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, after it is alleged he fired a shot at Miles J. O'Connor, an attorney in the Internal Revenue Department, during an argument in the former's apartment at 1745 K street northwest.

O'Connor told police that he was at a loss to explain why the shot was fired at him. He admitted, however, that there had been an argument and he was preparing to leave the apartment when Land produced a pistol.

Went to Land's Apartment.

In company with his wife, O'Connor said, he went to Land's apartment early last night. An argument followed, he declared, during which Land ordered him to leave. According to the story O'Connor told police, he had just turned toward the door, when Land picked up the gun. His back was turned, he said, and he did not relize his danger until Mrs. O'Connor screamed.

He wheeled about in time to see Land standing in the middle of the floor drawing the pistol from a holster. As he pushed his wife out of danger, O'Connor said, Land fired. The bullet passed under his left armpit and lodged in the half-open door.

O'Connors Later Released.

When police arrived they said O'Connor and his wife were attempting to leave the building by a rear entrance. The three were taken to the police station, but Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor were later released.

O'Connor, who is an assistant chief in the general counsel's office of the Internal Revenue Bureau, was fined $100 in Police Court last month on a charge of reckless driving, after it is alleged the automobile he was driving struck a parked car near Seventeenth and K streets northwest. He lives at 1750 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Authorities Are Coming To Get Convicted Slayer

Nebraska authorities are expected to arrive here some time today to return Jose Rodriguez, 20-year-old convicted slayer, who was captured Saturday at the Mexican Embassy, where he entered a plea for intervention by the Mexican government. He hopes to have his sentence lightened. He was serving his term in the Ingleside (Nebr.) State Penal Hospital and from which he escaped July 21.

Rodriguez is being held at Gallinger Hospital under police guard. He was taken there after embassy officials called police. Rodriguez, who beat his way from the Middle West here, is believed to be mentally unbalanced. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in Lincoln, Nebr., in 1929, after a young man had been killed in a brawl.

East Potomac Traffic Plan Accord Reached

An agreement has been reached between the District Highway Department and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission on plans for relief of congestion in East Potomac Park at Fourteenth street, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, chief engineer for the District, said yesterday.

While District authorities at first held out for the construction of an overpass on Fourteenth street, they are now willing to let Fifteenth street be extended first through the Washington Monument Grounds. This can not be accomplished, however, until Congress agrees and appropriates the necessary money.

Georgetown Observatory Director to Make Changes

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

REV. JOHN S. O'CONOR, S. J., new director of the seismological observatory at Georgetown University, who succeeds the Rev. Frederick Sohon. Father O'Conor came from the University of St. Louis, where he was studying.

Rev. John S. O'Conor Will Relocate Laboratory as First Step.

The Rev. John S. O'Conor, S. J., newly appointed director of the Georgetown Seismological Observatory, arrived in Washington yesterday and has taken up his new duties as head of this important scientific office. Father O'Conor, who succeeds the Rev. Frederick W. Sohon as director, comes from St. Louis, where he carried on research work in seismology at the University of St. Louis.

One of the first pieces of work which Father O'Conor will undertake is the relocation of the entire laboratory. At present situated in the main building, the delicate instruments will be moved to a specially constructed vault built in the side of a hill on the university grounds. It is believed that this will do away with interior interferences which for some time have troubled the scientists in their readings.

Before coming to Georgetown Father O'Conor specialized in seismology at Fordham, as well as the University of St. Louis. He was born in New York City, attending elementary school there. In 1915 he came to Georgetown for the first time as a student. He entered the Jesuit Order at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and later studied extensively at Woodstock Theological Seminary, at Woodstock, Md. From 1924 to 1926 he was director of the Fordham seismological station. During the summer of 1930 he was acting director of the Georgetown Observatory, relieving Father Sohon, who was then on leave.

The Georgetown University Seismological Observatory is known as one of the largest and finest in the world. It was established in 1911 by Father Francis Tondorf who served until his death in 1929. It was under his guidance that the observatory grew until it attained its present ranking. Father Sohon became the second director and served until the recent appointment of Father O'Conor. The station is completely equipped with two mechanical and three photographic machines which register, as well as picture, the tremors of the earth. It is one of the most important of a large chain throughout the country cooperating in the compilation and study of scientific data.

The Georgetown station is virtually the only one in the East which has been in continuous operation since its foundation and it now has branches in Woodstock, Md., and Weston, Mass., as well as in the Republic of Guatemala in Central America.

END POSSIBLE TODAY IN TAXI RATE BATTLE

Statement Whether Diamond Will Join in Agreement Is Awaited.

It is expected that the turning point toward peace or further warfare in the taxicab rate battle will be reached today, when officials of the Diamond Cab Co. are expected to reveal whether they intend to increase their fare to the new level established by other cab companies, or keep it at what is now the lowest rate in the city.

All leading taxicab companies, except the Diamond and two others negotiated a peace agreement a week ago, through which their rates were placed on a 25-cent minimum, 35-cent maximum zone basis. Directors of the Diamond Co. are supposed to have met yesterday to decide whether they would fall in line with this agreement or retain their present fare of 20 cents.

Whether this meeting was held or not was not stated last night. Harry C. Davis, designated spokesman for the directors, could not be reached. Those in charge at the cab company offices said they had not been notified of any change in the rates and did not know if any meeting had been held.

If the Diamond Co. decides to keep the low fare, warfare on the taxicab front is likely to be met by action of the Public Utilities Commission in stepping in as arbitrator. This will mean the ultimate establishment of the former meter system, taxicab owners predicted. On the other hand, if the Diamond Co. raises its rates to the same level as other companies, taxicabs will be free to operate without official interference, it was stated.

Man Fined for Being Drunk.

Witnesses failing to appear, J. J. O'Dell, who was arrested Saturday night and lodged in the Arlington County Jail on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was fined $16.25, including costs, on a charge of being under the influence of liquor in a public place by Judge Harry R. Thomas in Arlington Police Court yesterday.

CONFESSED SLAYER ABSOLVES SUSPECT

Robinson Says Brown Had No Part in Killing of Taxicab Driver.

William C. Robinson, alias Robertson, 19 years old, colored, confessed killer of Mannie Solomon, 29 years old, taxicab driver, who was killed while resisting a holdup last Wednesday, yesterday absolved Ralph Brown, 22 years old, colored, of any complicity in the killing.

Brown, who lives at 130 D street southwest, has been under arrest since Staurday and is said to have admitted acting as a lookout for the "Silent Four," as the band styled themselves, in an attempted holdup of the store of Isadore Koblem, at 1356 South Capitol street.

After the thwarted holdup Brown said he left the others and did not participate in the Solomon killing. This story was corroborated by Robinson. However, Brown is still being held in connection with the holdup attempt at Koblem's store.

Detectives have been unable to link Brown or Robinson with any other crimes in the city. The whereabouts of the other two men, sought in connection with the Solomon shooting are unknown to the police.

Passenger Hurt as Auto Strikes Telegraph Pole

Thurston T. Smith, 28 years old, of 1415 Rhode Island avenue northwest, was injured yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding struck a telegraph pole on Chesapeake street southeast. He was in an automobile driven by Juan B. Raldan, 34 years old, of 2022 F street northwest.

Smith was taken to Casualty Hospital for treatment of injuries to the head.

Bicentennial Group to Meet.

The subcommittee on committee for the Arlington County Bicentennial Council will meet tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, Military road, Cherrydale. The meeting has been called for the purpose of selecting personnel for committees to carry on the program for the bicentennial program.

THE LINDBERGHS SAY BYE-BYE TO BABY.

MRS. LINDBERGH (bending over Junior)—Bye-bye iddle snooky-ookus! . . . Mommer's going to Japan. . . . She'll be right back. . . . Now don't cry. . . . That's the iddle darling! . . . Oh, Charles!

Col. Lindbergh.—Yes, dear.

Mrs. Lindbergh.—Come and say good-by to Junior!

Col. Lindbergh.—G'by, sweetkins. . . . There, there, now, don't scowl like that. . . . Mommer and popper aren't going to be gone more than a jiffy. . . . They're only going 7,000 miles.

Mrs. Lindbergh—Just 7,000 'ittle bittle miles, doodum. . . . You just be a good little boy for just an 'ittle bittle while. . . . Mommer'll bring you a Japanese doll.

Col. Lindbergh.—I'd like to take the little tike with us.

Mrs. Lindbergh.—So would I, dear; but we can't.

Col. Lindbergh.—Shucks. . . . He's nearly old enough to fly. . . . I'll buy him a plane in another six months. . . . That's why most babies are so peevish—they don't like staying on the ground.

• • • •

JUNIOR.—Go-ga-ga!

Nurse.—I honestly think he knows what you're saying.

Colonel.—Of course he does. He's trying to tell me that if we'll take him along he won't make a sound.

Junior.—Moo-oo-oo.

Colonel.—Hark! . . . Hear what he's saying.

Junior.—Moo. . . . Moo-oo-oooooo. . . . glk . . . glk.

Colonel (proudly).—He's trying to say Moose Factory. . . . That's one of our first stops.

Mrs. Lindbergh.—I really think he is.

Junior.—Kaa-aa. . . . Kaa-aa. . . .

Colonel.—Now he's trying to pronounce Kamchatka.

Nurse.—He's the cutest thing. . . . Look at him take hold of the side of his crib and shake it.

Colonel.—He's trying to get it off the ground.

• • • •

MRS. LINDBERGH.—The little darling! . . . I do hate to go and leave him.

Colonel.—Don't take on like that. . . . It isn't as if we were going on a long trip, you know.

Mrs. Lindbergh (to the nurse).—We really won't be gone any time at all, but if he misses us and cries just tell him we've just gone bye-bye for a little while and will be right back.

Colonel (to Junior).—So long, kiddikins! . . . and be a nice baby. . . . Daddy and mommer are only going to Ottawa, Moose Factory, Churchill, Baker Lake, Aklavik, Point Barrow, Nome, Karaginskii, Petropaviosk, Kamchatka, the Karlie Islands, Nemuro and Tokyo.

Mrs. Lindbergh.—Just to Ottawa, Moose Factory, Churchill, Baker Lake, Aklavik, Point Barrow, Nome, Karaginskii, Petropaviosk, Kamchatka, the Karlie Islands, Nemuro and Tokyo, darling. . . . Bye bye!

PAINTERS PROTEST WAGES ON JOB AT REVENUE BUILDING

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR SEEKING SETTLEMENT

Contractor Says Rate Being Paid Is Above Prevailing Open Shop Level.

The Department of Labor is expected to decide within the next few days whether the prevailing rate of wages for painters on the new Internal Revenue Building should correspond with the union scale of $11 a day following a complaint from union heads that out-of-town men are being hired to do the work for between $5 and $7 a day.

Hugh L. Kerwin, director of conciliation of the Department of Labor, began an investigation into the complaints yesterday and called upon painters to give testimony. He said it would be several days before a report is completed for the Secretary of Labor and a decision rendered.

Concern Is Nonunion.

The paint contract is being carried out by the Alliance Construction Co., of New York, a nonunion concern. Herman Morris, head of the organization, said yesterday that he is paying the men more than the prevailing rate of wage for open shops in Washington.

The open shop wage, Mr. Herman pointed out, is $7.20 a day, or ninety cents per hour. He said that 25 per cent of the painters on the Internal Revenue Building are receiving $8 a day or $1 an hour; 40 per cent $10 a day and some as high as $12 a day which is higher than the union wage.

The Department of Labor will probably set a standard wage for all the painters. Under the Bacon-Davis act, the Secretary of Labor is given power to decide what the prevailing rate of wages shall be on a government project. This law was designed to prevent "cut-rate" contractors from gaining low bids on Federal projects and then employing out of town workmen at a lower wage than those existing at the scene of construction.

650 Union Painters Here.

Washington has between 600 and 650 union painters and a larger number of nonunion workmen who class themselves as painters, it is estimated by building authorities. They work for wages ranging from $6 to $8 a day, it is charged. Union heads complain that union painters have been discriminated against in favor of the nonunion painters and men from out of town. Mr. Herman said that he is willing to employ union men if they are willing to receive what he considers to be the prevailing wage.

Painting work on the Internal Revenue building is said by the Treasury Department officials to be satisfactory. Two cases of mild sabotage were reported at the building last week; one man is said to have deliberately smeared the walls; another put hand prints on wet paint, it was reported. They were discharged and threatened to protest to the Treasury Department, but no official complaint was received.

Refusal of Prison Shirts Approved by Union Group

A letter commending the District Commissioners and Supt. of Police Pratt on their decision not to purchase regulation police shirts through the Lorton Reformatory Workhouse was drafted last night by the Central Labor Union at a meeting at the Typographical Temple.

The union members had assembled with the announced intention of protesting proposed Lorton purchases, as unfair to organized labor. Announcement of the Commissioners' decision, however, resulted in the commendatory letter rather than one of protest.

President R. A. Dickson announced the appointment of a labor committee to cooperate with the Washington Bicentennial Commission in its plans for next year's fete. He named Edward Roche, Government Printing Office; Frank Lee, vice president of the Mount Vernon Savings Bank, and Frank J. Coleman, secretary of the Central Labor Union.

Union labor's protest of alleged low painters' wages in the construction of the new Internal Revenue Building did not come before the meeting.

Foreign Veterans Post To Cruise on Potomac

Members of Follow Me Post, No. 1830, Veterans of Foreign Wars, with their ladies' auxiliary, will make the moonlight cruise down the Potomac tonight on the Wilson Line steamer City of Washington. Girl's Hip Fractured As Automobile Skids

Catherine Hopkins, 12 years old, of 1249 Lawrence street northeast, was taken to Sibley Hospital yesterday suffering from a fractured hip as the result of an automobile accident yesterday.

The girl was in an automobile with her mother, Mrs. Matthew S. Hopkins, and had started on a day's outing to a resort about 40 miles from Washington. The car skidded on gravel and was thrown to the side of the road.

The girl was brought to Sibley Hospital in a private automobile.

'Hebbie,' Reporter Names 'Rare' Animal Found in Pit

A small animal, with a head somewhat on the lines of a frog's and a body like a lizard's found in an excavation near the Union Station yesterday was taken to the Zoo by a Post reporter for identification. Hebegonia, as the little creature was affectionately called, had a liking for lettuce and an aversion to sunshine—and who hasn't?

Hebegonia, it was thought by The Post staff, had the earmarks (she had other kinds too) of distinction and it was hoped (principally by a desperate city editor) she might develop into a real animal rarity—one of those things that would allow the paper to break out a headline something like:

Post Discovers Rare Oooffus Ooffus In Excavation; Given to Zoo.

Alas for our hopes, however. The Zoo said that Hebegonia was nothing more than a marble salamander, common (and that common was the nastiest crack) throughout the Eastern United States and Hebegonia and her little brothers and sisters and fathers and mothers and uncles and aunts just dearly love these marshy lands around the District.

In fact several of Hebbie's little cousins were already boarding at the Zoo and if you'd like to see them they will be tickled pink to look you over, too—any day at the Zoo. Just ask the man to show you the spotted or the marble salamander and remember us to Hebbie.
